U. S. FACES GASOLINE RATION

TELLS HOW U. S. BOMBED JAPAN WITHOUT A LOSS

Doolittle, as Leader, Gets Medal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The historic bombing of Tokio on April 18 was accomplished without the loss of a single plane by an American squadron led by the famous Jimmy Doolittle, outstanding speed flyer and test pilot of the days of peace.

This news was broken dramatically to the American people today as the airman—now Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle of the army air force—told the story of the raid after receiving the congressional medal of honor from President Roosevelt at a colorful White House ceremony.

The American flyers unloaded bombs within sight of Emperor Hirohito's palace, spread devastation among military targets thru an area 40 miles long and 20 miles wide, and flew on to other Japanese cities without meeting effective opposition, Doolittle said.

Hoots at Jap Claims.

Doolittle emphasized that all planes and men came thru safely and hooted at Japanese claims that they have one or more of the American planes on display. He also revealed for the first time the extent of the damage wrought by the American bombs.

Direct hits left a nearly completed cruiser or battleship near Tokio in flames, he said. The Mitsubishi aircraft factory at Nagoya was strewn with incendiary bombs. Among other targets were installations north of Tokio, the navy yard at Yokohama, and industrial concentrations, docks, shipyards, fuel storage tanks, and ammunition dumps at Yokesuke, Kenagawa, Kobe, and Osaka, Doolittle revealed.

The objectives were all of a military nature, and extreme care was used not to drop bombs on nonmilitary targets, Doolittle said. By his express orders no bombs were dropped on the imperial palace.

Used North American Bombers.

The American planes were North American B-25 medium bombers specially equipped for attack and manned by men who had volunteered for a "hazardous, important, and interesting mission" without knowing what it was. They trained for weeks in the United States before departing on the mission.

The squadron swept in on Tokio "housetop high," in order to be beneath the fuse range of enemy anti-aircraft guns, Doolittle said. On approaching objectives they climbed to 1,500 feet, the minimum height for safety from their own bombs, and descended again after releasing the bombs.

Doolittle described the lack of opposition as "amazing." He said a few pursuit ships rose to meet them, but the pilots apparently lacked the experience of Jap flyers in other theaters of war. When nine enemy planes attempted to attack his ship he was able to elude them without firing a shot, he said.

Japs Hit Own Balloons.

The Americans sometimes flew underneath Japanese balloons, and some of these balloons were destroyed by Japanese anti-aircraft fire, he said.

Doolittle refused to give any information on two points which have been puzzling the Japanese since the raid—where the ships came from and where they went. He also did not discuss the Russian announcement shortly after the raid that an American plane had landed in Russian territory and been interned.

The 79 men who accompanied Doolittle have each been awarded the distinguished service cross, the war

HOW THE PACIFIC OCEAN IS DIVIDED

In all issues of tomorrow's Tribune will appear a full page color map of the central and southwest Pacific, showing the strategic and otherwise important islands. How the control of this part of the world is divided between the united nations and Japan is indicated on the map, which is provided with a wealth of detail valuable in following the progress of the war in the Pacific.

NEWS OF WAR FROM WORLD'S MAJOR FRONTS

Latest war developments:

The main fighting in the western Pacific was transferred to the eastern provinces of China with Burma practically abandoned to the Japanese, who have started a new offensive in Chekiang province. This inspired a Chinese spokesman at Chungking to call on the allies for more planes and supplies. Chungking admitted that the invaders had captured an important town in Chekiang. A Chinese-Japanese battle on the Burma-Thailand border continued.

Nazis Counterattack.

Moscow reported its offensive on the Kharkov front is still rolling ahead, altho it was acknowleged that a German counter offensive had begun 80 miles southeast of Kharkov. The Red army is striking for a main highway used by the Nazis to shift reserves. A London report said the Reds had gained a foothold on this road. The Russians said they still were fighting the Germans on the Kerch peninsula, where Berlin reported that its forces have reached the coast of the Kerch strait at all points after destroying three Red armies.

French Fight British.

Off the coast of Algiers a fight between French and British ships and planes developed when the French forced down a British plane, said a dispatch from Vichy, France. A British destroyer fired on two French torpedo boats. Each side lost a plane in the clash.

BRITISH-FRENCH NAVAL FIGHT IN MEDITERRANEAN

Planes and Warships Clash Off Algiers.

VICHY, France, May 20 [Wednesday].—French and British forces engaged in a brief gun battle Monday morning off Algiers in the Mediterranean and each side lost an airplane, an official dispatch said last night.

This clash, 500 miles east of Gibraltar, apparently was not militarily important, except that it further sharpened Vichy's official temper already aroused by the British seizure of Madagascar in the Indian ocean.

The action was said to have started when a British plane was hailed by a French pursuit craft, which opened fire and forced the British craft down.

Fires on Torpedo Boats.

Immediately, the official account said, a British destroyer in neighboring waters opened fire with antiaircraft guns and cannon on two French torpedo boats which, the French said, had been ordered out to save the British plane.

Then the torpedo boats turned their fire on the British plane and sank it.

One French plane was reported missing after British destroyers threw up a heavy anti-aircraft barrage around a French pursuit squadron which, it was announced, came out to protect the torpedo boats.

Vichy Guns Shoot at Plane.

Anti-aircraft batteries around Vichy went into action early today as a lone plane of undisclosed nationality circled over the city after wave upon wave of planes had skirted north of the city, flying southeast.

[The course of the planes indicated they were British craft headed for Italy.]

The planes passed over in a constant stream, after which the lone craft circled the town and caused the anti-aircraft batteries to toss five shells into the air. The plane droned on despite the fire, then turned back to the northwest.

Nazis Striking Back: Moscow; 3 Soviet Armies Ripped: Berlin

'Kharkov Drive Gains'

MOSCOW, May 20 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The Russians announced today that the Red army still was rolling ahead on the Kharkov front, but acknowledged that a German counter-offensive had begun 80 miles southeast of Kharkov in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector.

On the Kerch peninsula the communique said the Russians still were battling the Germans in the vicinity of the port of Kerch. Warships of the Black sea fleet were reported shelling the German positions.

[Roundabout reports relayed by a British news agency stated that Russian reserves had arrived on the Kerch peninsula from the Caucasus across Kerch strait, and that soviet resistance had been stiffened.]

Near an Important Junction.

The German counterstroke south of Kharkov was some 30 miles east of Lozovaya, an important junction on the north-south Nazi highway serving Kharkov.

Repeated German counterattacks on the Kharkov front were beaten off, the communique said, and a supplement said that 62 Nazi tanks were destroyed in yesterday's fighting. Four hundred had been claimed destroyed up to yesterday.

Soviet dispatches said that the main Red army drive toward Kharkov was against a major highway used by the Nazis, that a large town had been recaptured, and that Cossack cavalrymen were slashing the Nazi flanks about that key city.

[Moscow reports to London said the Russians already had gained a foothold on the highway, which is of great importance to the Nazis for the movement of their reserves.]

Frequent Counterattacks.

The German Marshal Fedor von Bock was throwing in continual counterattacks and, for the first time in the war, was using parachutists for defensive and not offensive purposes in an effort to relieve his encircled detachments.

None of these German counterthrusts, soviet accounts said, had brought Marshal Semeon Timoshenko to a halt in the Kharkov drive.

'150,000 Men Seized'

BERLIN, May 19 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—A special announcement by the German high command said tonight that German forces "pursuing the beaten Russians have reached the coast of the Kerch strait along its entire length" after destroying three defending Red armies.

The strait, in places only a few miles wide, separates the Kerch peninsula from the Caucasus.

"The last bridgeheads on both sides of the city of Kerch, which were strongly fortified, were stormed in the course of today after overcoming bitter resistance," the German high command said.

"The battle of attack and pursuit, which thus has been concluded, led to the destruction of three soviet armies with 17 infantry divisions, three infantry brigades, two cavalry divisions and four armored brigades.

List Captured Booty.

"After high, bloody losses, the enemy left in our hands 149,256 prisoners, 1,133 guns, 273 mortars, 258 armored vehicles, 3,814 motor vehicles, several thousand horses, and innumerable quantities of light arms and material.

"Only remnants of the enemy forces were able to gain the coast across the strait."

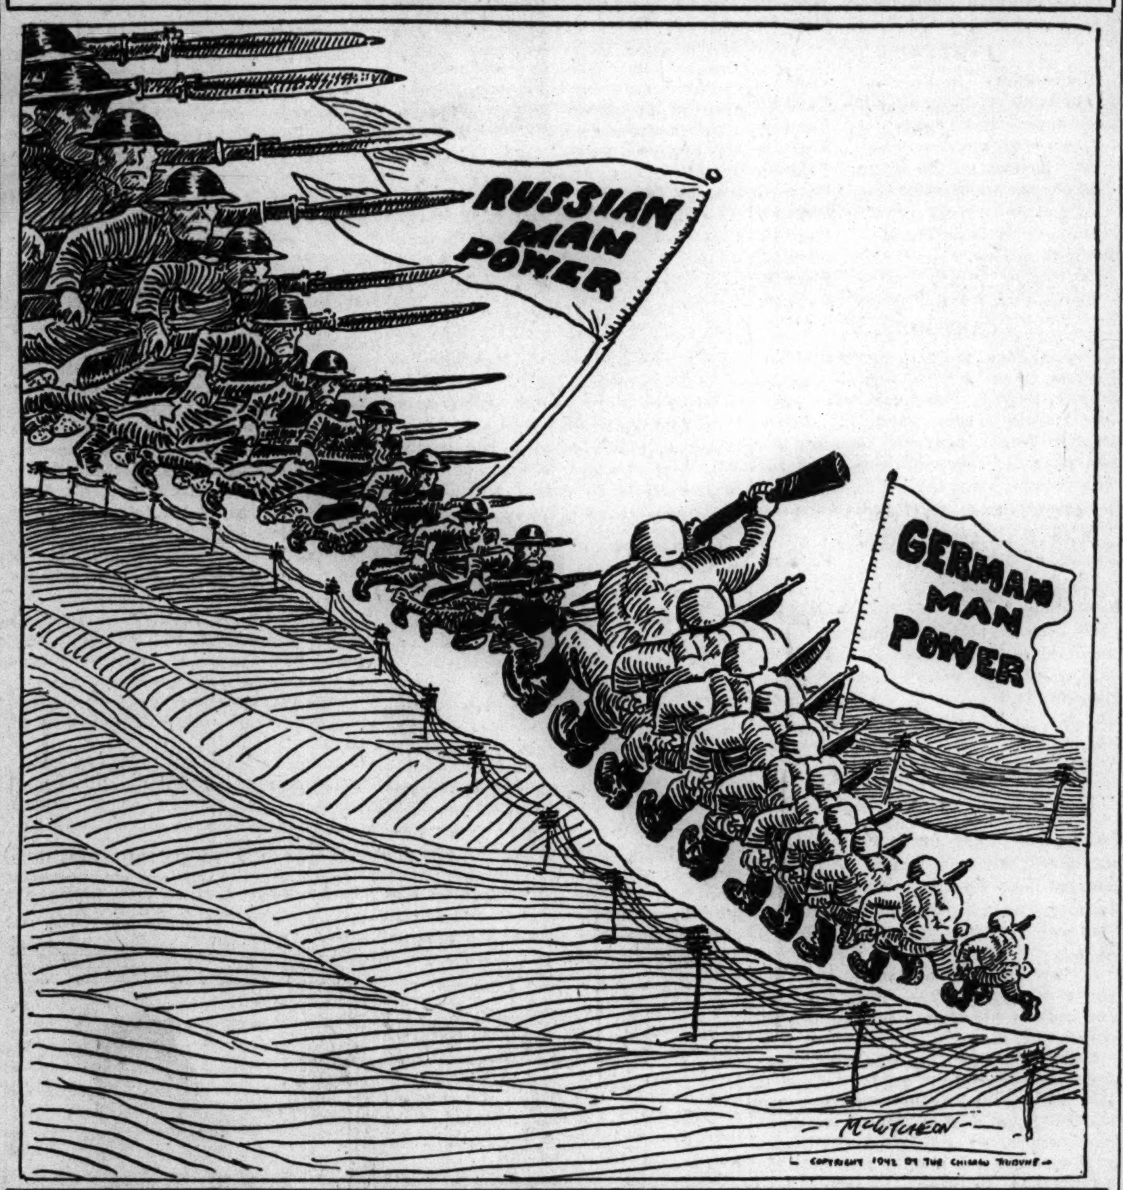
Sixteen ships, a minesweeper and 23 smaller coastal vessels and 323 planes were destroyed by German air squadrons which fought incessantly and contributed to this "tremendous success," the bulletin said. It said 10 more medium sized ships were damaged by bombs.

Claim Reds Lose 447 Tanks.

The high command said the Nazi army at Kharkov had destroyed 447 soviet tanks up to yesterday and repelled new mass attacks by the Red army. It said the air force put out of action 550 trucks of various types.

"In the area to the rear of the central [Smolensk] sector a strong soviet band was crushed," the high command said. This was an apparent reference to guerrilla operations, and one of the few times the high command had officially taken cognizance of their operations.

THIS SEEMS TO BE THE MILITARY SITUATION ON EASTERN FRONT



Trap Pupil, 15, in Explosion Extortion Plot

BY KERMIT HOLT.

A 15 year old Lindblom High school student who threatened to blow up a row of three south side bungalows unless he was paid $2,000 in extortion money will go on trial in federal court this week, it was disclosed yesterday.

The student is Edgar Brewster Cox, of 6117 South Kilpatrick avenue. He was seized by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation last Friday as he crept thru the weeds at 65th street and the Belt railroad to keep a rendezvous with his intended victim.

Mary D. Bailey, assistant United States district attorney, who filed the criminal information in the United States District court, said Cox had been released into the custody of his mother until a date is set for trial. He is charged with sending a threatening letter thru the mails.

What the Letter Said.

Police said Cox, a shy, studious boy who never has been in trouble before, told them he picked Mrs. Max A. Balmer, 6635 Kilpatrick avenue, as his victim "because she had enough money to help out poor families in the neighborhood."

Early last week Mrs. Balmer received the following letter [written in atrocious English, police said, in an attempt to ward off suspicion]:

"Mrs. Balmer:

"I met you on train we're good friends.

"Need 2,000 for mother's operation. Will give back as soon as possible. If you do not give me money I will blow up your home when you have company, will make next two homes go too—Look like you cheat on gas company. Penny for fuse.

"Your Home Boom."

"Please I would not want to do this terrible thing. Your life is worth more also others. Please don't tell or else your home Boom. Don't tell anybody.

"Bring money in 20, 10, 5, 1 dollar bills. Also bring this note: Will give you IOU for money and interest too. Meet me at 65th street and Belt tracks at 10 Friday May 15."

Mrs. Balmer ignored the letter until she received a telephone call Friday morning.

"You better have that money," Cox told her over the telephone and then hung up. Mrs. Balmer then notified the FBI, drew out $2,000 from the bank and set out for the meeting place.

Admits Sending Letter.

A cordon was thrown around the railroad intersection and government agents, concealed in the weeds, grabbed Cox as he arrived to keep his appointment.

Miss Bailey said Cox readily admitted having sent the extortion letter and blamed it on his disappointment at not being appointed supervisor of a number of neighborhood newspaper delivery boys.

He was taken to the juvenile detention home and later turned over to the custody of his mother because the crime was his first offense, Miss Bailey said. The case probably will be assigned today to a federal judge.

A LITTLE FANCY WORK PUTS WOMEN'S HOSE SHORTAGE ON THE RUN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The camouflaged stockings of the wife of a Washington bank president have the ladies of Washington hurrying to their embroidery baskets.

Mrs. Bruce Baird, wife of the president of the National Savings and Trust company, is triumphing over the silk and nylon shortage by what she calls her "war stockings."

When she finds a run or a hole in her hose she embroiders an ornamental design over it in a color harmonizing with her costume.

She converts the holes into flowers and the runs into trailing green stems or tendrils. The other day, when wearing a gray suit with violet gloves and bag, she embroidered purple violets above her heels and followed the run half way up her leg in green. Then she embroidered more violets at the top.

"I just try to make an ornament of a handicap," she said. "That's all it is. I embroider trees, flowers, anything. I may come out some day with bunny rabbits running around my legs. It just depends on what mood I'm in when I start to work.

"The design, naturally, is not quite the same on both legs. In fact, it may vary considerably, but it preserves the stockings indefinitely."

ESTIMATES AXIS PLANE OUTPUT IS DOUBLED BY FOES

New York, May 19 (AP).—J. Carlton Ward Jr., president of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane corporation, today estimated the airplane output of the united nations at 8,600 monthly, or exactly double the axis production. He said his figures were "based on sufficient authority to give them validity as engineering data."

He estimated enemy production as: Germany and occupied territory, 2,900; Italy, 700, and Japan, 500.

His figures on united nations output were: United States, 3,300; Great Britain, 2,400, and Russia, 2,900.

Ward said he was sure the United States would reach President Roosevelt's goal of 60,000 planes in 1942, but cautioned, "Don't forget that other powers had a tremendous backlog of planes on hand."

He recalled that Hitler and Mussolini had started production in 1933, Russia probably in 1935, England in 1938, and the Japs about the same time.

Chicago Area Gas Users to Get Rate Cut

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Reductions of at least 2¼ million dollars a year—and possibly more—in the bills of 1 million gas users in the Chicago area will be made within the next few weeks, it was learned yesterday. Four utility companies serving Chicago and northern Illinois have offered to cut their rates by this amount as a result of a recent slash in charges they pay pipe line companies for natural gas, a component of the gas served to consumers.

This was confirmed last night by members of the commission in Springfield, who said the new rate schedules are being worked out and will be placed in force soon.

Four Companies Involved.

Besides Peoples Gas, the companies involved and the yearly rate cuts they have offered to make are: Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, $735,000; Western United Gas and Electric company, $295,000, and Illinois Northern Utilities company, $31,000.

Peoples Gas serves 800,000 customers in Chicago. The other three companies serve more than 200,000 gas customers outside the city.

The rate slashes to consumers are an aftermath of a decision by the United States Supreme court two months ago upholding a cut of $3,750,000 a year in charges of the Natural Gas Pipe Line Company of America, which pipes gas to the utilities in this area.

All companies except Peoples Gas have agreed to transmit the entire amount of the future savings in pipe line charges on to their customers in the form of reduced bills, commerce commissioners said. Peoples Gas' share of the pipe line cut is $2,400,000 annually. The company is offering to reduce its charges to customers by half this amount. Commission members said final action on this proposal has not been taken.

Argue Profit Insufficient.

Officials of Peoples Gas have contended that the company is earning a return of less than 5.9 per cent a year on its property valuation, and that the right to earn a return of that percentage was upheld by the Illinois Supreme court two years ago in a decision which denied an increase in rates in litigation then.

The proposed new schedule filed by Peoples Gas would reduce gas bills by 3 to 5 per cent to all consumers except large industrial users. Reductions by the other three utilities would average 6 to 7 per cent.

The impending rate changes are apart from a prospective refund of 6 million dollars to the same million customers, which also results from the pipe line rate cut. The refunds will be made because the pipe line reduction was made retroactive to Sept. 1, 1940.

6 Pct. Income Tax Rate Voted by Committee

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—An increase from 4 per cent to 6 per cent in the normal tax on incomes of American taxpayers was voted today by the house ways and means committee, drafting the new 8 billion dollar tax bill. The committee decided to take about 3 billions of the 8 billion dollar total from individual income tax payers.

While the normal tax increase of 2 per cent will involve an added burden upon the wage earner, the real blow will fall when the committee decides upon the surtaxes to be applied. Surtaxes formerly were reserved for large incomes, but now they apply to every dollar of net income.

By deciding to raise about 500 millions less than the treasury request for 3½ billions from individual taxpayers the committee indicated surtaxes will be somewhat less than the tremendous increases suggested by the treasury.

12 to 86 Per Cent Suggested.

These started at 12 per cent for the first $500 of net income and ran to 30 per cent for the $10,000 class. Surtaxes ranging up to 86 per cent were proposed on incomes of $100,000 and more.

Net income is the amount remaining after personal exemptions and other legal deductions have been calculated. The committee already has cut personal exemptions from the present $750 to $500 for single men, and from $1,500 to $1,200 for married persons. It rejected the treasury proposal that the $400 credit for dependents be cut to $300.

The earned income credit of 10 per cent, which the treasury asked to be eliminated, was retained by the committee.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] said the committee, in several weeks of executive sessions, had studied five rate schedules ranging between the treasury proposals, which would have produced 3½ billions in new revenue, and the committee's own staff proposals, which would have raised 2 billion 400 millions more than the present yield.

Adopt Compromise Goal.

The final decision, Doughton said, was to adopt the suggestion of a committee member for a yield of 2 billion 750 million dollars. Forcing married persons to file joint returns, a permission which formerly permitted couples with large incomes to cut their tax bills, will garner another 300 millions. A total therefore of 3 billion 50 million dollars is the tentative yield of the new bill from individual returns alone.

The committee has decided tentatively to increase corporation income taxes by an extra 3 billions. This leaves about 2 billion 700 million dollars to be raised from estate and gift taxes and excise taxes upon a long list of commodities, if the treasury's goal of 8 billion 700 million dollars is to be raised.

A general sales tax long has been debated as the best method of obtaining any deficit below this total.

305 Saloons Shut Doors; Fail to Renew Licenses

Three hundred five bars closed yesterday voluntarily or were closed by the police last night after failing to renew their liquor licenses. At deadline time yesterday for renewing licenses for the next six months, 8,083 had been issued. The total for the last six months was 8,597, according to Louis Rixmann, city collector. Some of the bars closed were in bowling alleys and other places of amusement, while the rest were in taverns.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

JULY 1 LIKELY DATE IN MOVE TO SAVE TIRES

Size of Allotment Being Studied.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—A nation-wide gasoline ration is in prospect, effective July 1, as a rubber conservation measure. No decision has been reached but at least four governmental agencies are making plans for it.

This news came from administrative offices today while President Roosevelt at a press conference slyly parried reporters' question. He said there was no need to restrict gasoline consumption in petroleum production regions where there is now a surplus of fuel because of the breakdown in tanker transportation to some sections of the United States. There is no need for nation-wide rationing, he added casually, unless it's to conserve rubber.

Permanent Order Expected.

The temporary gas rationing in 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia, which became effective last Friday, will expire July 1 and it has been announced that it will be superseded by a permanent order before that date, at least for the Atlantic seaboard states and the states of Washington and Oregon.

It was learned that Joseph B. Eastman, head of the Office of Defense transportation, told a group of national park representatives and western legislators a few days ago that plans were being prepared for a July 1 national gasoline rationing program if the rubber shortage should warrant. His office this afternoon declined to comment.

[Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director, in Chicago yesterday for a meeting of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., said he had no comment on possible nation-wide gasoline rationing. "When the plans are made I'll have something to say, but not before," he asserted. He added that his attitude on tire conservation has been expressed frequently.]

Decision Is Difficult.

At the office of Price Administrator Leon Henderson it was said that the machinery for nation-wide gasoline rationing was being set up but that the decision to invoke the curtailment on driving had not been reached. It was explained that there are so many agencies involved in the preliminary studies that it was difficult to reach a decision of whether to ration the entire country, and if so how, and how much fuel per automobile.

"We have plenty of petroleum, but we cannot distribute it," the OPA said. "We cannot get enough of it from the southwest and west to the eastern seaboard.

"Enemy action has made unsafe the long tanker haul from the gulf."

The War Production board, responsible for the future supplies of rubber for the planes, tanks, ships, and miscellaneous equipment, is also concerned.

Calls Rationing "Inevitable."

Arthur B. Newhall, WPB rubber coordinator, said tonight that nation-wide gasoline rationing is "inevitable by the end of the summer" as a means of conserving rubber.

Informed officials said a final decision may be reached at a WPB meeting next Tuesday.

Petroleum Coördinator Harold Ickes has consistently shunned responsibility for irksome gasoline rationing but from his associates it was learned there is little prospect that the seaboard gasoline shortage will soon be eased inasmuch as additional facilities are needed to assure adequate supplies for even heating and industrial oil to that section.

Doubts Midwest Effect.

Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged that some form of extending the gasoline rationing is under discussion, but said that there is nothing to get excited about because the rule of reason will prevail.

In discussing gasoline rationing the chief executive said he saw no use of restricting sale of oil and gasoline in the midwestern areas served by pipe lines or in the southwest and Pacific coast areas where gas is produced. He expressed himself in favor of diverting some of the tank car and truck facilities of such areas to sections of the country wholly dependent upon such transportation to get oil and gasoline.

Asked if it were not true that almost all the tankers have been taken off the eastern seaboard in order to carry gas and oil to other areas of the world, Mr. Roosevelt said, yes and no.

INSOLVENT PRESS CANNOT BE FREE, SAYS PUBLISHER

Warns Debts Encourage Selfish Influences.

The successful operation of newspapers is the best guarantee of freedom of the press, James E. Stiles, president of the New York State Publishers association, declared yesterday. He spoke before about 200 newspaper executives at the 58th spring convention of the Inland Daily Press association in the Hotel Sherman.

"A newspaper that is inequitably beholden to the banks," said Mr. Stiles, "the paper companies, mortgagees and money lenders, as equally as to unscrupulous advertisers, does not have any freedom of action. It is bound and shackled by its own debts."

Few newspapers have sold out lock, stock and barrel to any organization or interest, he said, but there are perhaps hundreds whose policies are influenced or dictated from various sources.

Dubious of Government Ads.

With approbation, Mr. Stiles quoted Anne O'Hare McCormick of the New York Times, who said that a newspaper that does not sell advertising has to sell itself. He warned against public printing contracts which include a voice in editorial policy, and advised caution as to the proposal to have the federal government buy 50 or 100 million dollars worth of advertising space.

Stiles gave excerpts from an editorial on "The Duty of Newspapers," written by Joseph Medill, founder of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE:

"Journals like our own are in some sort regarded as watchmen on the walls, to look for approach of danger toward what their readers hold dear. . . . Men look to them not only for facts but for opinions. They do not often create, but they shape and give direction to public sentiment."

Traditional courage has been shown by the press in its attacks on the New Deal, Stiles said, and many specific criticisms have been effective.

Urges Leadership in Changes.

"There are far reaching, almost revolutionary changes, that seem likely to be given momentum by the war, which will affect us all alike," he declared. "I am fearful the press may not appraise them at their true character, exerting real leadership, in merging them into our system and economy to the best advantage and with the least friction for all elements involved."

He urged a moratorium on newspaper feuds.

"The time-honored but dishonorable custom of running down the opposition newspaper and maligning its staff, usefulness as an advertising medium, and truthfulness of its circulation claims, has proved a boomerang," he said.

President Sends Message.

President Roosevelt sent the following telegram to the convention:

"Every editor and publisher must answer the question: 'What do my readers have the right to expect of their newspaper?' The men and women of a nation at war have the right to expect of their newspapers the same loyalty with which they send their men to join our fighting forces. The same energy with which they raise food and make arms for America and the other united nations. The same courage with which they face an enemy who would destroy the world. The same vision with which they foresee the world of freedom for which we are fighting.

'Your answer — to yourself and to them — can be only one answer. I know you will make it."

PRESS FREEDOM CALLED POSTWAR 'MUST' BY BARTON

Insists It Can Retake Yielded Rights.

New York, May 19 [Special].—If the liberties which we have voluntarily surrendered in the interest of the war effort are to be recovered after the peace, the free press must remain, according to Bruce Barton, advertising executive and former representative in congress, speaking before the Proprietary association today.

Barton, after pointing out that scientists and researchers, not great military leaders, will continue to be the most important individuals in the world as they have been thru the ages, emphasized the importance of a free press in a country that would continue the liberties which have made the United States what it is today.

One After Another Gone.

Comparing the free press with Australia's position in the Pacific, Barton said:

"In the Pacific our forces and those of the allied nations have lost one strategic stronghold after another—Shanghai, Hongkong, Singapore, Java, Rangoon, Bataan. If only Australia can be held it will be a base from which we can proceed eventually to reconquer all we have lost.

Losses on Home Front.

"Similarly, on the home front we have lost, by patriotic voluntary relinquishment, our right to manage our own business, to travel at will, to buy sugar and gasoline or tires, to decide where or when we shall work and for how much. All these are precious liberties. To lose them forever would mean that we had lost the war at home, whatever happens abroad.

"They will not be lost if the free press remains. From that base we can retake all that we have temporarily surrendered.

"Thomas Jefferson, our first great American Democrat, said: 'Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a movement to prefer the latter.'"

ILLINOIS TECH ALUMNI START $3,000,000 DRIVE

Alumni of the Illinois Institute of Technology, at a dinner last night in the University club, launched a drive for a $3,000,000 living endowment for the general development of the institution. Living endowments are based on annual gifts from each alumnus.

Two primary objectives of the campaign will be the creation of a memorial library and a fieldhouse. The library will be named after George Noble Carman, for 40 years director of Lewis institute, which was merged with Armour institute as the Illinois institute.

Among the speakers at last night's dinner were Henry T. Heald, president of Illinois Tech, and Adolph H. Fensholt, general chairman of the drive.

HOFFMAN BLASTS HITLER APPROACH IN PURGE SCHEME

Charges Thirst for Gold at Cost of Lives.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Rep. Hoffman.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], one of the principal targets of the purge recently initiated by a communist front group, charged in the house today that the attempted political execution of senators and representatives follows "the Hitler line of seeking to divide and conquer."

In one of the most strongly worded speeches heard in congress in many a day, Hoffman attacked "the heirs of some of those who accumulated millions because the principles of free enterprise were established and maintained here in America and who are now seeking to subsidize publications which by their attacks on loyal Americans may well give Hitler, Hirohito, and Mussolini the impression that our people are not united in the effort to defeat them."

Mentioned in Purge List.

Hoffman was mentioned in the list of three senators and 26 representatives listed in a special supplement of the left wing magazine New Republic last week as marked for a purge by the so-called Union for Democratic action because of their "obstructionist" policies.

Officers of the UDA are known to the Dies committee on un-American activities as followers of the Communist party line.

The announcement and the smear story which accompanied it were characterized by Hoffman as a "scurrilous, lying attack which follows the method of personal abuse, vilification and charges of disloyalty pursued by a certain class of publication and organization which has adopted a rule or ruin policy.

Scheme for Gold Charged.

"The eminent gentlemen who are behind this attack upon congress seem to feel, and they act," Hoffman continued, "as if the Americans of the present day could be pushed around by a lot of trade-mad, title-loving worshippers of foreign philosophies and titled leaders.

"To them, we must have world trade, even tho we pay in blood and sacrifice the lives of millions of Americans to fill with gold the coffers of those who seem to care naught what be the cost, so long as our merchant princes may sell abroad."

Referring to the "would be purgers," he said:

"If these arrogant, egotistical mouthpieces of the money changers, who spread falsehoods and vilification from their swivel chairs; who challenge the patriotism of the millions of voters who sent their representatives to congress, think they can shove, gag, intimidate, and cause the political execution of these members of congress, then indeed will their ignorance and their arrogance destroy them.

"Then indeed if they follow that course, will Hitler, Hirohito, and Mussolini have cause to rejoice because of the disunity which they create.

"Let them know that we do not propose to be either intimidated or have our patriotic efforts thwarted by title worshipping, nobility-minded, self-annointed Delilah hairclippers who, conscientiously or otherwise, furnish propaganda for Hitler."

BRITISH GROUP SAYS MIDWEST DOES BEST JOB IN U. S. ON WAR

New York, May 19 [Special].—Tribute to the people and the war effort in the middle west is paid in the current issue of the monthly periodical of the Research Group of London, which declares that the middle west is doing its difficult tasks far better than any other section of the country.

Research Group of London was founded several years ago by a group of young British conservatives, formerly known as the Imperial Policy group. It issues a pamphlet each month, entitled Memorandum of Information on Foreign Affairs. This consists mainly of a digest of informed comment on military, economic, and political affairs.

"The most realistic people are to be found in the middle west, where there is a calm and sound understanding of the war," says the pamphlet. "Moreover," it continued, "they are getting on with their difficult tasks far better than any other part of the country.

"In the east and west there is tremendous activity but it is spasmodic and too little coördinated. Production goes up only when there is bad news and a sense of danger and dies down again when things look calmer."

U. S. TAKES CITY BOYS TO FARMS AND VICE VERSA

Ironic Note Is Found in Racine Experiment.

Racine, Wis., May 19 [Special].—Racine High school boys will be dismissed from classes on Thursdays and Fridays for the remainder of the school year to permit their employment on Wisconsin truck farms where farmers are desperate for help, it was announced today.

The plan has been worked out by R. D. Scoon, United States employment officer here, with the approval of school authorities and will get its first test Thursday morning when trucks will pick up 50 boys at the city's two high schools.

Farm Boys Brought In.

To qualify for the farm work plan, school authorities said, boys must be sufficiently up in their studies to be able to make up lost work in the forepart of the week. Scoon has fixed a pay rate for them of 30 cents an hour which the farmers have agreed to pay. The work for the most part will be in weeding and cultivating cabbages, onions, and tomatoes.

As the boys leave the city to take up their farm duties, their trucks will pass the National Youth Administration resident center, a converted mansion, where 60 farm boys from rural Wisconsin are living at government expense while they learn how to be airplane mechanics in the Racine vocational school.

The NYA boys range in age from 16 to 22, while the average age of the high school boys is between 16 and 17. When the NYA students have completed vocational training courses they are placed in industrial jobs by Scoon.

City Boys Pleased.

The high school boys are said to have been pleased at the chance to get into the country and get to work. Applicants with adequate scholastic standing have exceeded the first weeks' quota, it was said. If the trial is successful, 100 boys will be taken next week, according to Scoon.

The boys will be expected to devote Saturdays to farm work and efforts will be made to induce them to work full time during the summer.

TELLS WHY SOME CHICAGO SCHOOL COSTS ARE HIGH

McCahey Explains State Law Requirements.

(Serious and repeated charges have been made against the Chicago board of education by citizens' committees, teachers' unions, and individuals. The Tribune has laid these charges before James B. McCahey, president of the board of education. In this and subsequent articles Mr. McCahey's answers to the charges are presented.)

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

THE CHARGE: Too much money spent for noneducational items.

Of Chicago's school dollar 26.9 cents goes to what federal statisticians call "noninstructive items," compared with an average of 22.7 cents for these purposes in 74 cities thruout the United States.

THE ANSWER:

There should be neither mystery nor speculation concerning the reasons for the higher Chicago costs, according to James B. McCahey, president of the board of education. The reasons for the difference are simple, he says, and he gives the following explanation:

The Illinois legislature in 1927 abolished the contract system for maintaining and operating Chicago's 400 school buildings.

High Salaries Provided.

Now the engineers [$300 to $470 a month], the janitors [$145 to $155 a month], the firemen [$193 to $233 a month] plus the janitresses and window washers, are civil service employés. And unionized, too.

Under the contract system, which still prevails in New York and many other cities, there is competitive bidding for the job of keeping the school buildings clean and warm.

Contractors can hire labor as cheaply as they please—including the school boys in the old days, at least.

However, appeals to humanity and much lobbying turned the school chores into civil service jobs. If Chicago's "noninstruction" school costs are to be brought down much, the legislature will have to change the law first.

Operation Costs Compared.

In Chicago operation and maintenance of plant account for 18 cents of the school dollar. The average for 74 cities of over 100,000 population is 13.2 cents. In New York, which is highly touted by some critics of the Chicago school board because 77.8 goes for instruction, plant operating and maintenance total only 9.3 cents —under the contract system. If Chicago had the contract system on the New York basis instruction cost should shoot up to 81.8 cents of the school dollar.

The Mellinger committee of citizens, whose survey was financed by the school board, recommended closing six schools where attendance has declined and reducing the cleaning forces in 42 schools. It was claimed savings would total $207,000 a year. Comprising the committee are A. H. Mellinger, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Oscar G. Mayer, a former president, and Holman D. Pettibone. A final report is awaited.

"In its theory, the committee took the children out of six schools but didn't go any farther," McCahey says. "Transferred to other schools—more difficult for these children to reach—these children still would need teachers and supplies. You can't just wipe them out.

Sounds Good on Paper.

"In calculating reductions of cleaning staffs, the committee figured that there should be 6½ janitors for this and 7½ janitresses for that. You can do it on paper but it won't work with people."

The committee reported that "unusually high" pay is received by the operating and maintenance forces—no higher than city wage scales but higher than those of private industry for the type of work. All the local governments should seek reductions, it was said.

"Chicago is pretty much a union town and believes its public employés should get good wages," is McCahey's comment.

During the last 10 years nonteaching employés of the Chicago board have increased by about 24 per cent. In this period there were approximately 50 new school buildings and additions put up, including the giant Lane Technical and Chicago Vocational schools, each of which has about 50 maintenance and operation employés.

More Clerks Needed Now.

Lunchroom employés, formerly paid out of receipts directly by the lunchroom managers, have been put under civil service. Clerks of many varieties in the downtown board office have increased in number largely because many are working on national defense and WPA projects in a supervisory capacity.

In the following list McCahey said that categories marked with an asterisk [*] might well be charged to instruction:

Civil service title—	1942.	1932.
Engineer custodians	382	333
Assistant engineers	111	81
Firemen	503	456
Janitors	1,386	1,114
Janitresses	453	530
Window washers	58	40
*School clerks	570	340
Penny lunch attendants	365	206
Bathroom attendants	115	158
*Truant officers	145	115
*Playground attendants	116	63
Bureau of architecture	124	155
Repairmen	425	530
Clerks, etc	758	672
High school lunchrooms	778	....
	6,289	4,793

School clerks may be placed in the teaching category in records, on the basis of two clerks equaling one teacher, according to rules of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools.

Federal statistics on "general control," which covers administration of the entire school system, were cited by McCahey in reply to those who picture politicians in the clover at Chicago board headquarters.

Costs in Other Cities.

In Chicago this item takes only 2.8 cents of the school dollar, compared with 3.5 for Los Angeles, 2.7 for Detroit, 4.5 for Philadelphia, and 3.0 average for the cities of over 100,000 population.

New York's figure is the same as Chicago's, but the big job of making out pay rolls is handled in each New York schoolhouse instead of at headquarters. Furthermore, New York's school system does not contribute to the cost of a central purchasing agency which serves all local governmental agencies. In Chicago all purchasing expense is included in "general control."

[In a subsequent article Mr. McCahey takes up his critics' charge that the Chicago public school system lacks a centralized purchasing department of the New York type.]

STANTON FREED BY DUNNE OVER POLICE PROTEST

Danny Stanton, veteran public enemy, won his freedom yesterday when Chief Justice Robert Jerome Dunne of the Criminal court granted a writ of habeas corpus. Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan wanted a continuance of one week on the hearing in order to give him time to investigate Stanton's recent activities. This was denied.

Stanton and three men who said they were gamblers were arrested Saturday night by Sergt. George Barnes of the police labor detail. Sergt. Barnes said he acted on information that Stanton had obtained control over 15 unions affiliated with the bartenders and waiters' international alliance, and would undertake to dictate to restaurant and tavern owners and hotel keepers.

While in custody Stanton admitted he had been a prohibition era beer runner. He said he now makes a living by betting on horse races.

"We'll have him in again soon," said Chief Sullivan. "And the next time he won't act like he owns the building."

YE OLDE TOWNE OF OUILMETTE KEEPS BIRTHDAY

Wilmette women boasted of their ages last night at the 50th anniversary dinner of Ye Olde Towne Folkes of Ouilmette. So did the men. Mrs. Mary Loutsch of 2321 Glenview road had the best reason. She's 85, and recalled the days when Wilmette's streets were cowpaths. Phillip Hoffmann of 512 Ridge road, looked back almost as far. He's 80.

Some of the assemblage came in old-fashioned costumes. Rosemary Engles and Richard Steger, pupils at St. Joseph's parochial school, circled the banquet tables in the Wilmette Masonic temple in a 1908 roadster. Other students of the school presented a historical pageant. About Ouilmette: That's the original spelling of Wilmette.

MARTIN, ROSS NOMINATED IN PENNSYLVANIA

Sen. Davis Loses in G.O.P. Governorship Bid.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 20 [Wednesday]—[Special].—Maj. Gen. Edward Martin, Republican, and Auditor General F. Clair Ross. Democrat, won the Pennsylvania nominations for governor in yesterday's primary election, it became apparent early today on the basis of returns from more than half the state's 8,124 precincts.

Both victors were supported by the state organizations and had little trouble in piling up heavy leads from the outset of the count.

Gen. Martin dealt United States Sen. James J. Davis, the former secretary of agriculture, his first political defeat. Returns from 5,428 precincts, including 1,319 of Philadelphia's 1,322 and 206 in Allegheny [Pittsburgh] gave Martin 377,802 to Davis' 293,956.

Ross Beats Guffey Choice.

Ross, backed by National Committeeman David L. Lawrence, gained a two to one lead over Judge Ralph H. Smith, supported by Sen. Joseph F. Guffey, in the Democratic contest.

Returns from 4,936 districts, 1,319 from Philadelphia, and 202 from Allegheny [Pittsburgh] gave: Ross, 171,198; Smith, 105,100, Luther A. Harr, 40,608.

The state also nominated candidates for lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs, 25 seats in the state senate, 208 in the assembly, 33 in congress, and one each on the Supreme and Superior courts.

Martin's headquarters considered the contest definitely decided on the basis of returns at 2 a. m. Davis' headquarters workers conceded that "it looks bad."

The trend for Martin and Ross extended also to their full slates for other state-wide officers with not a break in the lineup.

Harr Held F. D. R. Choice.

Democratic State Chairman Meredith Meyers threw his support to Harr, United States bituminous coal consumers' counsel, as a compromise candidate. Harr was also supported by the Philadelphia Record, proadministration newspaper of David Stern, and was reported by his friends to be the real choice of President Roosevelt.

Martin and Davis staged a spirited campaign for the Republican nomination. Davis accused Martin, who recently retired from the army, as "running out on the army," while the former soldier retorted Davis should be content with his senate seat. The white haired senator has two years remaining in his senate term.

2 SMALL BOYS PULL PAL OUT OF OGDEN SLIP

Three Thomas school boys went for a hike along the lake front yesterday: Jerry Novich, 7 years old, of 2339 Janssen avenue; Anthony Miller, 9, of 2323 Bosworth avenue, and Jack Schibinski, 7, of 1406 Fullerton avenue. Jerry fell into the water of Ogden slip. Jack seized a ring on a post by the water's edge. Anthony clasped Jack's other hand and swung out over the slip. He grasped Jerry, and the two young rescuers pulled him to safety. The police took Jerry to Passavant hospital, dried him out and took him home.

WAAC UNIFORM IS SECRET, BUT UNDIES AREN'T

Pink Cotton's the Thing for Unmentionables.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The color of the uniform of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps is a deep secret, but the color of their nether garments is not.

They will be pink. Pink cotton.

By the end of the week, of course, this may have been changed to purple wool, so quickly has the uniform the WAAC been changed in recent weeks. One day it was to be two shades of khaki. The next day it was blue.

It's Khaki Again.

Today, with final designs in the hands of Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, for approval, the consensus it that it is khaki again.

In any event, the latest WPB regulations will be followed faithfully. Stockings will be cotton, and girdles, if included as equipment, will not be two way stretch, nor will they zip.

The British government provides such garments only to members of its Auxiliary Territorial service who have a 42 inch bust, but army officers here have been busy lately studying samples of girdle fabrics.

They'll Be Tailor Made.

It is said the uniform will have to be tailor made for each WAAC, as manufacturers and the government have been unable to get together on size and quantity lots. Members of the WAAC may wear civilian clothes while off duty.

The only other bit of news from the women's front today is that the government's plan to install bath tubs at Fort Des Moines, Ia., the WAAC camp, has been stalemated by priorities. Showers will have to do the work.

RESUME CLIPPER HOPS TO BRITAIN VIA CANADA PORT

A MARITIME CANADIAN AIRPORT, May 19 (AP).—With 49 passengers and a crew of 13 aboard, Pan American airways' big flying boat, Pacific Clipper, left this port today en route to the British Isles on the first scheduled flight over the northern route since service via this route was discontinued in 1939 due to the outbreak of war.

The clipper reached here from Port Washington, N. Y., yesterday and took on 741 pounds of Canadian mail. Aboard the plane were military officials of many nations and a Pan American airways crew in addition to the one in charge of the flight.

The flight marked inauguration of a new schedule calling for two round trips weekly between Britain and the United States. The maritime port will be an intermediate stop to take on and discharge Canadian passengers and mail.

Story of Raid on Tokio Revealed

HOW U. S. BOMBED JAPAN WITHOUT LOSS OF A PLANE

Doolittle, as Leader, Gets Congress Medal.

department announced following the White House ceremony.

Names of the 79 other participants in the raid were announced by the war department in the order awarding them the decorations. The whereabouts of these men were not revealed, nor was there mention of casualties.

Issues Formal Statement.

The war department also released a formal statement by Doolittle giving additional eyewitness details. In the statement Doolittle said there was apparently no advance knowledge of the raid in Japan and that not more than 30 Japanese pursuit planes were observed during the flight. He said several of these are known to have been shot down.

Several squadrons of destroyers and some battleships and cruisers were seen off shore, he said, and one of the raiding party reported seeing a Japanese ball game in progress.

"Pilots, bombardiers, and all members of the crew performed their duties with great calmness and remarkable precision," the statement asserted. "It appeared to us that practically every bomb reached the target for which it was intended."

Medal Presentation a Surprise.

Doolittle, who was promoted from lieutenant colonel to brigadier general the day the raid, was summoned to the White house for the medal ceremony. Shortly after the stubby flyer made his way into the executive office, reporters were called in to share the surprise.

Mr. Roosevelt told the reporters that not even a columnist had guessed about the award to Doolittle and that the award came as a complete surprise to the flyer.

Doolittle stood at the President's desk with Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces. Also in the room was Mrs. Doolittle, who was flown here from Los Angeles yesterday.

She made the flight without any other explanation than that she was coming by White House invitation. She did not know her husband was in the country and was thrilled to see him again and share his great moment.

Marshall Reads Citation.

In making the award the President handed the citation to Gen. Marshall and asked him to read it. In a firm voice the general read:

"Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle, United States army, for conspicuous leadership above and beyond the call of duty, involving personal valor and intrepidity at an extreme hazard to life. With the apparent certainty of being forced to land in enemy territory or to perish at sea, Doolittle personally led a squadron of army bombers, manned by volunteer crews in a highly destructive raid on the Japanese mainland."

The medal was then pinned on the flyer's breast. Mr. Roosevelt shook his hand. Generals Marshall and Arnold saluted Doolittle in keeping with the army custom that entitled the wearer, even tho he be a private, to a salute from an enlisted man or officer be he general of the armies himself. The generals also shook his hand. Mrs. Doolittle rewarded her husband with a kiss.

Censors Withhold Story.

While the medal ceremony came as a surprise to the capital, the fact that Doolittle had conceived and led the daring raid on the Japanese cities April 18, had been whispered about the capital for weeks.

THE TRIBUNE had the story the day after the raids and was unable to get a release from the Office of Censorship or army censors. Even when the army somewhat-tipped its hand on the raid by promoting Doolittle two grades, censors refused to authorize release of the story. Again when an official war department communique acknowledged that American planes had made the raid, the army refused to permit Doolittle's part in the raids to be made public.

This government at first withheld all information on the bombing raid because the Japanese were most anxious to know how the raids were conducted. The Japanese were anxious to know how the planes reached Japan, how many were employed and what damage was claimed by this country. Most of this information still is being withheld.

15 to 20 Planes Indicated.

Japanese reported light bombers were engaged in the raids. With the army awarding the medal of honor to Doolittle and the distinguished service crosses to 79 other participants, it was assumed that 80 flyers were engaged, which would indicate from 15 to 20 planes were employed in the attack.

No explanation was given as to how the army planes were brought within striking distance of Japan. The office of censorship refused to authorize details of the raid when THE TRIBUNE sought permission to do so.

Port Moresby Ghost Town.

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea, May 19 (AP). — The most heavily bombed base near Australia, Port Moresby, has become a virtual ghost town, with its civilians gone and most of its houses and buildings badly damaged.

The port has taken attack after atack from the Japanese in three and one-half months. The 52d raid of the war yesterday was the heaviest on an Australian sector since the initial attack on Darwin in February.

Thirty-four bombers flew over in waves of 16 and 18, at extreme altitude, accompanied by 15 fighter planes.

SON CABLES HE'S SAFE; U. S. LISTS HIM AS MISSING

Mr. and Mrs. William Rodenberg of West Exchange street, Crete, in Will county, were torn between fear and hope yesterday concerning the fate of their son, Harry, a marine. On May 4 they received a cablegram from Australia, purportedly signed by Harry, in which he said he had been evacuated safely from Corregidor. On May 11 a telegram from the government at Washington, D. C., said their son was among the missing when Corregidor fell. Now the Rodenbergs don't know which source to believe.

AMERICA WILL PLAY BIG ROLE IN A SECOND FRONT, SMUTS AVERS

[By wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CAIRO, Egypt, May 19.—The United States probably will play a major rôle in opening a second front at a point most likely to bring a decision, Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, premier of South Africa, declared today. He regards the United States' strength as decisive reënforcement of allied arms.

The premier had inspected South African troops on the Libyan front and gave a press interview before leaving for South Africa. He said South African troops would fight anywhere in Africa, whether in Tripoli or at Dakar [Senegal, French West Africa].

"Dakar," he said, "is Africa for us, but it is almost American for you."

He explained that South African troops enlisted only for service in Africa and that there had been no change in this policy. When an American correspondent arrived late for the interview, Smuts beamed mischievously and said, "Just like America, always late. In fact, you are nearly always too late." But it was passed as a joke and a moment later the marshal was discussing the decisive rôle America would play in winning the war.

AUSSIE WOWSERS RELAX LAWS ON SUNDAY SHOWS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 19 (AP).—Australia's "wowsers," or blue noses, gradually are relaxing their restrictions against Sunday entertainment since United States soldiers arrived, altho it is still impossible in most cities to see a Sunday movie.

Newly inaugurated Sunday shows in Sydney are heavily patronized. Sunday dances in the principal cities have proved extremely popular. Many canteens and service men's clubs are now on a seven day week basis.

The Victoria state cabinet decided this week to allow one movie and one stage show in Melbourne for uniformed men and companions each Sunday with a token admittance charge, one silver coin. Theater men, however, objected that a fairly high fee was required.

DOOLITTLE NOTED 25 YEARS FOR HIS FEATS AS FLYER

Legendary Figure of U. S. Airways at 45.

James H. Doolittle is a flyer who grew up with aviation. Every few months, over a period of nearly 25 years, his spectacular achievements as a pilot have been reported in the press.

He has established speed records and has won many air races. Once he piloted a ship over the Andes mountains after breaking both ankles in an accident. He was the first man to make a "blind flight" test.

Now 45 years old, Doolittle is the legendary character of the airways. Literally, nobody doubts his ability to do anything that man can do with a plane. Seven years ago the Gas Craft club in New York, composed of ex-service, commercial, and private pilots, polled its members on the question: "Who is America's outstanding airplane pilot?" The answers were almost unanimous: "Doolittle."

Fought in Last War.

He has escaped death so often by narrow margins that his friends believe he has a charmed life.

In 1917 Doolittle was a flyer in the Lafayette escadrille in France. On one occasion he fought three German planes. They were too many for him. He was shot in the leg and his plane was wrecked.

In 1922, as an army lieutenant, Doolittle completed a one stop flight from Jacksonville, Fla., to San Diego, Cal. For this he received the distinguished service cross. Three years later in air races at Baltimore, Md., he established a seaplane speed record of 235 miles an hour. The next day he flew 245 miles an hour, defeating British and Italian flyers.

In 1929 he went to Santiago, Chile, to prove to the government there that flights over the Andes were feasible. On the appointed day a takeoff platform along the harbor collapsed and his ankles were broken. After a few hours rest, and with both legs in plaster casts, he took off and made the run over the high mountains. As a result of this feat the aircraft company he represented obtained a large order from the Chileans.

Demonstrated Blind Flying.

The blind flight test was made in 1929. Locked in a cockpit from which he could see nothing, he took off, made a 15 minute flight and landed safely — a complete demonstration that planes could be flown by radio direction.

One of his closest escapes was in that same year. In the national air races at Cleveland, O., he tried to drive a plane faster than its construction would permit. He went into a power dive that tore the wings off the craft. At 3,000 feet he took to his parachute and landed safely.

In September, 1931, Doolittle flew from Burbank, Cal., to Newark, N. J., in 11 hours 15 minutes. The next month he made a St. Louis-Chicago flight in 1 hour 11 minutes. He also visited Ottawa, Ont., Washington, D. C., and Mexico City, Mexico, in a 12 hour trip.

During the 1930-'35 period he tested many planes of radical types. He could handle them all.

Urged Separate Air Force.

Following the policy enunciated by the late Gen. William Mitchell, Doolittle in 1935 recommended that a separate air force be set up independent of the army or navy.

It was as a commercial air traveler, and not as an army officer, that he went to China in 1933 to make demonstration flights.

Recalled to active service in June, 1940 as a major, Doolittle was until recently reported engaged in research and engineering problems affecting airplane production. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel last Jan. 6.

Born in Alameda, Cal., Dec. 14, 1896, Doolittle was graduated from the University of California in 1918. He had received his primary education in the schools of Los Angeles, Cal., and of Nome, Alaska. He was married in 1917 to Josephine Daniels. They have two sons, James Jr. and John. James is a lieutenant in the army air force. The family home is in Detroit, Mich.

Says Doolittle Planned Bombing Last December

Los Angeles, May 19 (AP).—Last Dec. 7 Jimmy Doolittle told a group of friends at municipal airport, "I'm going to get into this thing with both feet. I'm going to Tokio—with a plane load of bombs." Dudley Steele, airport manager, recalled the conversation today as he heard the news that Brig. Gen. Doolittle—everybody here calls him Jimmy—had led the American bombing attack on Japan.

Tell of Chicagoland Men Who Took That Ride to Japan

Keeps a Pledge

When Charles A. Lindbergh made his solo flight across the Atlantic in May of 1927, Richard A. Knobloch, then a boy of 9, predicted, "Some day I'll fly farther than Lindbergh."

Today, on the 15th anniversary of Lindbergh's flight, it appears that Knobloch has fulfilled his prediction, for he was cited yesterday as one of the 79 flyers who participated with Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle in the dramatic air raids on Tokio and other Japanese cities April 18. He was awarded the distinguished service cross.

A Military Family.

Knobloch is a first lieutenant in the air force and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Knobloch, whose home is on the military reservation at Fort Sheridan, where the elder Knobloch is chief civilian operating engineer. The happy parents last night recalled their son's boyhood boast as they received congratulations from army men and others.

Lieut. Richard A. Knobloch.

Lieut. Knobloch will become 24 years old May 27. Fifteen years of his life were spent at Fort Sheridan so that he came into an army career naturally. For a time, however, he had planned to become a veterinarian; then war clouds revived the army urge and particularly the flying urge. From boyhood he had hopes to become a flyer.

Leaves University.

In 1939 at the end of his junior year, he left the University of Wisconsin and entered the army air corps. A dental defect almost stopped him, but he had the defect remedied, and began his air training Dec. 1, 1940.

He trained at different camps and received his commission as second lieutenant at Randolph field, Texas, on July 11, 1941. He was one of the top six men of a class of 307. Lieut. Knobloch was considered an expert boxer and horseman in school.

He has, besides his parents, a brother, William Jr., now at the University of Wisconsin, and a sister, Mrs. Wilma Bohn, wife of Clarence Bohn, a federal bureau of investigation agent.

NEWS THRILLS PARENTS

Lieut. Richard E. [Bud] Miller, 3408 North Washington road, Fort Wayne, Ind., called his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Miller, in the middle of March to tell them goodby. They had heard nothing from him since until they were given the news yesterday of his decoration.

Miller was graduated from Central High school in Fort Wayne and went two years to Indiana university. He took cadet training at Randolph field, but when he was washed out of the pilot's course, he went into the insurance business on the coast. Then, a year ago, he went back for bombardier training and was commissioned early last winter.

"It's wonderful to know he's safe," his mother said.

It's Grand News

Any story of the feat of Lieut. Charles Ozuk, 4257 North Albany avenue, in helping Jimmy Doolittle bomb Japan, must be in part the story of Charles and Anna Ozuk, his parents. For that's where he got what it took.

Charles Sr., a machinist, was an immigrant from Poland in 1912. He met and married Anna, an immigrant from Czecho-Slovakia. They had four sons, of whom Charles Jr. was first. He now is 25 years old.

Hit by Depression.

While the boy was in Schurz High school the depression hit the Ozuk family hard. Charles Sr. lost his little machine shop, and by the time Charles Jr. was graduated from high school and had started to Wright Junior college, even carfare was a luxury. So Charles walked the eight miles every day to get an education. He had holes in his shoes, but he kept on going.

Lieut. Charles Ozuk.

When he had got all that Wright could give him, he joined the army in November, 1939, enlisting in the air corps and going to Chanute field. His education was completed last summer, when he won his wings and his second lieutenant's gold bar.

It's Best News Possible.

Charles Sr. and Anna haven't seen their hero boy for more than a year. They last heard from him in February when he sent them $100. He told them then it might be several months before they would hear from him again. It was, but the news yesterday that he had won the distinguished service cross was the best they could possibly have heard. Mr. Ozuk now has a new machine shop at 4073 Elston avenue, with five employés. It's engaged in war work. Of the couple's other three sons, Boleslaw, 23 years old, is in the navy; Milo, 21, in the marines, and Walter is trying to enlist as an aviation mechanic.

Lieut. Thomas C. Griffin, whose address was furnished by the war department as 7439 Paxton avenue, Chicago, also was decorated for the bombing flight. No one could be found in the area who knew Lieut. Griffin.

VETERAN IN THE ARMY

Sergt. Theodore Laban of Kenosha, Wis., one of the men who bombed Japan and won the Distinguished Service cross as a reward, is an old army man. He enlisted in the infantry eight years ago and later became a mechanic in the air force.

He is 26 years old and is the son of Henry Laban of Kenosha, a tank inspector at the Case factory in Racine. His parents last heard from Sergt. Laban last December, when he wrote from Oregon.

Lieut. Jack A. Sims, 902 West Lovell street, Kalamazoo, Mich., was another from the Chicago area who was decorated for taking part in the bombing of Japan.

TROOP SHIP LOST IN JAP AIR RAID, CANADA REVEALS

MONTREAL, Que., May 19 (AP).—The Empress of Asia, 16,900 ton Canadian Pacific liner whose safety record as a troopship had given her the reputation of one of the luckiest transports afloat, was destroyed by Japanese dive bombers near Singapore on Feb. 5, an official announcement disclosed today.

Most of the 2,500 imperial troops on board were saved, along with about 100 seamen, but many of the 44 others in the crew were known to have been lost in the fierce explosions and fire which swept the ship off Sultan shoal near Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies.

Japanese Drop 80 Bombs.

Owen Gillett of Vancouver, B. C., one of 14 Canadian survivors landed at an east coast Canadian port on April 18, said the Japanese, dropped about 80 bombs. Five were direct hits.

At the time of the attack the Empress of Asia was in a convoy of four transports escorted by the famous British cruiser Exeter, one of the British ships which took part in the battle with the Graf Spee in the southern Atlantic in Dec., 1939. The Exeter was later lost in the battle of Java.

Two Other Vessels Hit.

Two ships ahead received direct hits. Then the Japanese concentrated on the Empress of Asia. Waves of bombers flew over at 600 feet.

With the ship ablaze and no water available for fighting the flames, the ship was abandoned. The lifeboats had gone, but the Australian sloop Yarra—later sunk in the allied withdrawal from the Dutch East Indies—came alongside and took off the men, while her crew fired their anti-aircraft batteries at the attackers.

Attempts were made in vain later to save valuable equipment on board, but after four days the ship which had run aground was abandoned.

44 COMMUNITY DELEGATES O. K. TRACTION PLAN

Unanimous approval of the traction unification ordinance, up for referendum on June 1, was given last night by representatives of 44 Chicago community areas, members of the city planning advisory board of the Chicago plan commission. They met in the Civic Opera building. About 75 members were present.

Local transportation adequate to move the persons and commodities of Chicago is an essential to the progress of the city, the resolution said.

Attorney William J. Friedman, representing the second largest committee of Chicago Surface Lines' first mortgage bondholders, informed Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday that the proposed surface-elevated lines merger has been overwhelmingly approved by the 75,000 investors in the two systems. A detailed report on the securities owners' vote will be made to Judge Igoe May 25.

Found Dead in His Auto; Hose Leads from Exhaust

Olin Mann, 29 years old, a machinist, was found dead yesterday in his automobile in the garage behind his home at 3213 West 97th street, Evergreen Park. A hose connected with the exhaust pipe of the car had been led to the interior and death was apparently caused by carbon monoxide gas. The police said they found a note in which Mann told of his intention to kill himself.

GETS A DIVORCE FROM DOCTOR; BLAMES BRIDGE

Dr. Zachary A. Blier, a physician at 1525 East 53d street, was divorced by Mrs. Evelyn N. Blier of 5559 Kimbark avenue last night in the Chicago Heights city court. Mrs. Blier blamed bridge.

She told Judge Robert A. Meier Jr. that her husband threw a glass of fruit juice at her during a bridge game last Feb. 28. On April 1, she testified, Dr. Blier slapped her during another bridge game, causing her nose to bleed. He left her, she said, on April 4.

Mrs. Blier was awarded $3,500 alimony. She and Dr. Blier were married July 7, 1938.

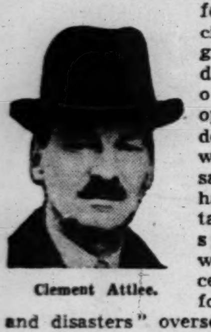
BLAME FOR WAR ERRORS HEAPED UPON CHURCHILL

Irate Commons Members Hit 'One Man' Rule.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Clement Attlee.

LONDON, May 19.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill personally came in for more criticism than his government today as the house of commons opened a two day debate on the war. Members said that since he had insisted on taking the responsibility he would have to accept the blame for "tragedies and disasters" overseas and failures on the home front.

The outbursts against Churchill followed the appearance before commons of Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee, who opened the debate. He alluded vaguely to prospects of a second front—saying the allies will "pass from the defensive to the offensive in due course"—but admitted that a shortage in ships conditioned every move. Attlee denied that Churchill is surrounded by "yes" men in the war cabinet, defended the present war machinery, and explained away disasters as due to "unpredictable developments." On the whole, he concluded, things are "looking up."

Demand Reply from Churchill.

This didn't satisfy many members, particularly those who are leading the movement for establishment of a second front in Europe. Attlee's speech was called a "school boy essay" and demand was made that Churchill himself appear to answer criticisms.

Echoing pleas for the appointment of a service man as chief of the combined general staffs of the three fighting services in order to eliminate political interference with considered military opinion, Conservative Earl Winterton hurled a charge at Churchill, a member of his own party.

"The chiefs of staff committee," Winterton said, "hasn't the freedom to advise the prime minister that it should have. Churchill has completely altered the conception that prompted the committee's creation."

Arthur Greenwood, former war cabinet member and labor party spokesman, said: "What the people wish to know is that the government is determined to deliver a great attack in the west."

Asserts "Lack of Confidence."

Clement Davies, Liberal, charged that Churchill had failed to pick the best men for war jobs and added, "I say here and now that I have no confidence in the prime minister or his government."

Sir John Ward-Milne, Conservative, denounced Churchill's "one-man government" and asserted that "in a debate of this kind on the conduct of the war the prime minister ought to be in this house to answer."

Laborite Richard Stokes said that "unless we get a change in strategic control we will lose the war."

Comm. R. T. Bower, Conservative, hit upon an issue that was being raised simultaneously in the upper house of parliament by Lords Davies, Addison, and Hankey when he demanded to know why there had been no inquiry into the loss of Singapore and other British "tragedies" at arms.

"It might show," Bower continued, "that Singapore was lost on the playing fields of Harrow."

Harrow is Churchill's old school.

Robins' Home

Mother robin feeding young bird in nest atop cuckoo clock at 6018 South Whipple street.

Robins would feel somewhat cuckoo living in a cuckoo clock. That's John Cibock's conclusion from several years of vain effort to induce robins to move into the cuckoo clock that he remodeled into a birdhouse and hung on the door of the garage behind his home at 6018 South Whipple street. Two robins unbent a trifle this year and built a nest on the roof of the cuckoo clock. They have baby robins now, and the mother robin feeds them proudly. But she never even nods to the cuckoo, which has been standing at its doorway beaming for ever so long.

Three English Women Win Exemptions from Draft

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—Two women teachers and a telephone girl won appeals for exemption from conscription for auxiliary fighting services before a conscientious objectors' court in London today. The telephonist, Miss Eileen Ager, 24 years old, told the court she thought Britain should yield to aggression rather than fight. Her brother is serving a six month jail sentence as a conscientious objector. Natalia Jan Atkinson, music teacher, and Margaret Ellis, 21, school teacher, were exempted on the condition that they continue teaching.

BIGGEST JOKE OF ALL TO ITALIANS IS—MUSSOLINI!

Here Are Few You Haven't Heard on Radio.

BY HERBERT L. MATTHEWS.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LISBON, Portugal, May 19.—The Italians have been losing the war at a great rate, but they have not been losing their sense of humor. I have had much proof of that in my work in Rome, from where I have just arrived in Lisbon.

There is so much levity about the war that one often gets the impression that it is silly to take it seriously. Mussolini is the butt of innumerable jokes.

The war is one of the most common subjects for quips. "In the first World war" Italians are saying, "we prepared, fought the war, and made the armistice. This time we made the armistice [with France], fought the war, and are now preparing."

The Italians comment that fairy tales years ago began "Once upon a time." Now they begin "The general headquarters of the armed forces communicates."

Fifty Went to Heaven.

It was said that 50 Italians came to the gates of heaven, where St. Peter asked them who they were.

"We are the Italian soldiers who died gloriously for the new order in Europe," they answered.

St. Peter told them to file in, and after 20 had entered he firmly shut the gates.

"Why are we left out?" the other 30 asked.

"You were not in the war bulletins," St. Peter answered.

Perhaps the best jokes of all are about food restrictions. One of them went the rounds of polite society in Rome at the time bread began to be rationed. This is the way it went: United States Ambassador William Phillips was about to be received by the Duce, and the latter called Foreign Minister Count Ciano to his office to discuss how they would impress the American diplomat. Mussolini got an idea.

Scheme Backfires.

"After the ambassador is here a little," he said to his son-in-law, "I will press this secret call button and you run in to tell me some great piece of news."

The plan started working all right. Ciano rushed in and shouted in great excitement: "Duce! Duce! Twenty-eight ships loaded with wheat have just arrived at Naples. Where can we put all this wheat?"

Mussolini scratched his head, frowned, thought heavily.

Just then Phillips interrupted. "Duce," he said quietly, "why don't you put it in your bread?"

Then there was this one. Mussolini called together a group of peasants and said to one of them: "On what do you feed your chickens?"

"I feed them with corn which I grow," the farmer replied.

"What," said the Duce, "you waste on your chickens good corn which we need for our bread? Five years in jail!"

Buy Their Own Feed.

The Duce asked the same question of another peasant.

"I give them cauliflower tops," this one answered.

"Cauliflower tops!" cried the horrified Duce. "But we need them for making alcohol—five years in jail."

So he called a third farmer and repeated the question.

"Your excellency," the man said, all atremble, "I wait until the noon whistle blows and I call in all my chickens. I give each one of them a lira and tell them to go out and buy their own feed."

AIR TRAINING CHIEFS OF 14 ALLIED NATIONS CONVENE IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., May 19 (AP).—Three high ranking delegates to the united nations' air training conference reported an "auspicious start" and "favorable progress" today after representatives of 14 nations had met in their first formal sessions aimed at achieving greater standardization and coördination in the production of allied airmen.

Charles G. Power, Canada's air minister and conference chairman; Robert A. Lovett, United States assistant secretary of war for air, and Maj. Gen. Barton K. Yount, in charge of the United States army air forces' training program, expressed satisfaction with the way the work is going.

"An exchange of views alone would accomplish a great deal," Yount said, "but we already have achieved far more than that."

Lovett read a message at the opening session in which President Roosevelt hailed Canada as "the airdrome of democracy" and said "the people of the united nations can look forward confidently along the hard road of victory."

British to Get Powdered Eggs for 35 Cents a Dozen

LONDON, May 19.—As a supplement to the normal egg ration 12,000,000 tins of new egg powder developed in the United States—the equivalent of 144,000,000 eggs—will be distributed to the British public shortly, Lord Woolton, food minister, announced today. The issue will be at the rate of about 35 cents for a five ounce tin, equal to a dozen eggs. Food ministry experts say it is impossible to tell a powdered from an ordinary egg.

TRIBUNE WRITER SEES VICHY FLEET AT MARTINIQUE

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PORT CASTRIES, St. Lucia, British West Indies, May 19.—Thirty miles north of here—in the fine harbor of Fort de France, Martinique—there lies at anchor the fleet which is the bone of contention in the present critical relations between the United States and the Vichy French government.

In the fleet is the 22,146 ton French aircraft carrier Bearn with six inch guns and a 40 plane capacity, the modern 5,886 ton cruiser Emile Bertin, powerful and fast, the auxiliary cruiser Barfleur, smaller war vessels and numerous tankers and cargo vessels representing thousands of tons of merchant shipping. The fleet is veiled in secrecy and no one from outside is allowed near. It is this fleet that the United States is watching to make sure that none of the vessels slips out and turns up in axis hands.

Studies Fleet at First Hand.

I have just returned from a trip off Fort de France harbor, during which I had an opportunity to study the fleet closely. I cannot reveal the type of ship on which I made the trip because I was sworn to secrecy. But I can say that the person in charge had a knowledge of the most carefully guarded details about the fleet from Martinique sources.

My first impression was the immensity of the harbor. In still waters, Fort de France could harbor all the ships of the united nations with room to spare. No wonder the united nations are interested in seeing that it does not fall into axis hands.

Far inside the harbor, and close under the protecting walls of ancient Fort St. Louis, was the Bearn. Apparently she was not ready for action as the flight deck had some sort of structure built on it, which looked like open air sleeping quarters. Beside her lay the modern 8,000 ton tanker Limousin. This seemed significant as I was told that the Limousin was one of the few tankers in the harbor that still had oil aboard that could be used by a ship like the Bearn.

Cruiser Called Real Menace.

I could not see them, but I was told that the Bertin and the Barfleur were anchored out of sight in a little inlet off the main harbor for better secrecy.

The Bertin is a real threat if it joins the axis. The 36 knot cruiser has nine six inch guns, plenty of antiaircraft guns and torpedo tubes. An informant told me that the Bertin is carefully harboring 1,400 tons of fuel oil—just enough to take her to Dakar—and is ready to go in four hours. She is so fast that if she slipped out at dusk she would be 500 miles away by dawn. During a recent critical stage in the negotiations it was reported that she had steam up.

Strung out in the harbor between us and the Bearn were six big tankers and a big cargo and passenger ship. The last mentioned ship, the Sagittaire, was nearest us.

The site beyond the harbor, upon which 98 unused American warplanes rest was pointed out to me. The planes were given to France shortly before its fall. They are now stored under sheds and are reputedly in poor condition from exposure.

Watching the harbor thru glasses it didn't seem to be potentially hostile territory. But it reminded me of the truculent and oft repeated remark attributed to Adm. Batet, until recently commander of the Bertin, "Anytime Marshal Petain wants the Bertin I will take her to him."

TELLS OF HITTING JAP CRUISER AS PLANE IS SHOT UP

Hero of U. S. Air Epic in Hospital—for Fever!

Vallejo, Cal., May 19 (AP).—One of five survivors of a naval bombing crew told from his hospital bed today how his bomber sank or crippled a Japanese cruiser in an attack at dusk somewhere in mid-Pacific.

Six of the bomber's crew of 11, including the pilot, were killed. The five survivors were wounded by Japanese machine gun bullets, shrapnel, and fragments of their own plane which was literally torn to pieces.

The story, as told by Jack Roger Himes, 21, aviation machinists' mate of Piedmont, Cal., begins at an island base on March 16, shortly after the successful navy raids on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands.

The day was hot and overcast. Himes was with a bomber squadron on standby duty when a scouting plane radioed about noon that she had spotted some Japanese ships.

Fighter Planes Guard Cruiser.

The bombers took off and flew for more than five hours before they spotted a smudge of smoke. About 5:30 or 6 p. m. they came upon a Japanese cruiser and two destroyers. Two fighter planes roared up from the cruiser to meet the bombers.

"I guess they picked up our motors," Himes said. "We swung over the cruiser and let go a salvo of five bombs. They straddled the ship."

The cruiser wasn't hit and the bomber circled and let go another salvo of five bombs from stem to stern of the cruiser.

"I'm sure they hit," the flyer went on. "The cruiser's anti-aircraft had our range and one shell burst under the starboard wing and shattered it—not bad but there were holes in it."

Pilot Shot to Death.

A plane above Himes' bomber dropped a flare and in the glare of its light a Jap fighter swooped down and poured a burst of machine gun fire into the American plane.

"The ensign piloting the bomber slumped in his seat dead," Himes said, "and I took over. We hit for the clouds."

Himes, with his leg gashed by a piece of flying aluminum from his own bomber, was concerned chiefly with getting the big craft to safety in the night.

"Plane above us on the port side!" the navigator shouted into the phones, and immediately called again. "He's diving."

"I heard the machine guns," the young pilot recalled, "but it was too dark to see him. I saw his exhaust as he passed under us. He shot away our rudder and elevator assembly. When I got out of the spin I knew we were thru. I dropped a flare.

Heads Toward U. S. Destroyer.

"I saw the searchlights of an American destroyer below. It looked as tho it was a couple of hundred yards away, but it must have been two miles. I kicked the rudder and saw the wing tip pull off. That's the last I remember."

The destroyer, which had also answered the call of the scouting planes, picked up the five injured survivors from the ocean. Himes woke up in a hospital.

His wounds are healed, but he is now under treatment for rheumatic fever, contracted in the islands.

Himes quit his job as a mechanic with the United Air Lines the day after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7 and joined the navy. The attack on the cruiser was his first engagement.

"Was I scared?" he said. "You bet I was."

TELLS LONE DIVE BOMBER'S RAID ON MARBLEHEAD

Jap Craft Blown Into Sea, Says Officer.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Coronado, Cal., May 19. — Dive bombing was attempted by only one of the 38 Japanese bombing planes which attacked the United States light cruiser Marblehead in Macassar strait on the morning of Feb. 4, Comm. William Goggins, executive officer of the vessel, said in an interview here today.

The lone dive bomber swooping down on the Marblehead was blown to pieces by machine gun fire before it could release its bombs, Goggins said. He described the attacking plane as disintegrating before the eyes of the ship's crew. He said parts hit the water only 100 yards away.

Down 3 High Flying Planes.

All other planes in the Japanese squadron kept to a 10,000 foot altitude, dropping their bombs as they circled above the Marblehead and six other ships—three Dutch and three American—which were accompanying her when the assault began. Three of these high flying bombers were brought down by anti-aircraft fire from the ships, Goggins said.

Goggins is recuperating here from burns received from bomb flashes during the attack. He was among 20 wounded men from the Marblehead who were landed in Java on Feb. 6 and later transported across the island in a truck and placed aboard a Dutch freighter for Australia under the noses of incoming Japanese.

Praises Ship's Doctor.

Goggins had high praise for Lieut. Comm. Corydon M. Wassell, the ship's doctor, who took charge of the party of wounded and brought them thru to safety, an action recently cited by President Roosevelt as one of the war's most heroic feats.

"No matter what new or unforeseen difficulties would arise, Comm. Wassell always seemed to have something in reserve," Goggins said.

The wounded from the Marblehead remained in Australia two weeks and then were placed aboard ships for the United States. By then the Marblehead had set out on its 13,000 mile westward journey to a home base.

Fleet Without Air Support.

Goggins said that the small fleet of allied vessels was without air support, except for "six or eight reconnaissance planes." The day was clear and the sea calm when the Jap bombers appeared about 10:30 a. m., flying in V formation, he said. He estimated that the attack lasted three hours.

"It is a very helpless feeling," Goggins declared, "to be on a surface ship with the sky full of enemy aircraft on a clear day when there are no helping airplanes to be seen."

Greatest damage to the Marblehead came from a bomb that just missed the deck and exploded when it hit the water close beside her, according to Goggins. This explosion started two fires aboard the vessel and put the steering gear out of commission.

CHINA WARNS OF JAP OFFENSIVE; ASKS MORE AID

Signs Point to Big Drive by Nipponese.

CHUNGKING, China, May 19 (AP).—Suddenly announcing to the world that the "future is very grave" and that help is urgently needed, a Chinese spokesman said today that many signs point to an early all-out attempt by Japan to knock China out of the war.

This indication of Chinese alarm was given as the military spotlight alternated from China's back door in Burma and Yunnan province to her eastern seaboard, where the Japanese were developing a new offensive in Chekiang province, despite bitter Chinese resistance.

With the British hanging on to only a small strip of Burmese territory along the Indian frontier, the Chinese battled forces which seemed to be increasing their pressure from Burma along the southwestern China frontier. The spokesman declared that area "will witness during the next few weeks fighting on an even larger scale than we have seen so far."

Battle on Thai Border.

A battle of several days near the Thailand border, between the Salween and Mekong rivers, continued, with heavy casualties on both sides as the Japanese tried to batter past Monghai and Monglin to Kengtung, and attempted to advance across the Salween to Kongkum and Taikao.

To the north of the Burma road, 250 miles from these battlefields, the Chinese made further progress in clearing out the Japanese on the west side of the Salween, putting to rout a force at Lungkiangchiao, near Tengyueh, 35 miles west of the river and 35 miles north of Lungling on the Burma road.

In Chekiang, the reënforced Japanese drive was developing southward along a portion of the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway still in Chinese hands and also along a highway paralleling the coast.

Admit Town Captured.

The Chinese communique admitted the Japanese had captured Chuki, about 40 miles south of Hangchow and 55 miles northeast of Kinhwa, the Chekiang capital, after a battle in the streets. However, the Chinese declared they were counterattacking southeast of Chuki and that they had driven the Japanese back some distance.

The Chinese were forced to withdraw from Shengshien to a new line southwest of there, but the Japanese sustained heavy losses in taking the town, it was said. Another Japanese column based at Shaohsing, famous wine making center, took Gengchiao, 15 miles southwest of Shengshien. Southeast of Shengshien the Japanese occupied Sintang. A battle was reported in progress 12 miles southwest of Sintang.

Many Chinese positions in Chekiang were bombed, as many as 40 planes conducting successive attacks, and Kinhwa was one of the principal objectives. Bombs were dropped in the heart of the town. Twenty-one Japanese planes also bombed points in Kwangsi province, South China, including Kweilin, the capital.

The Chekiang drive possibly was motivated by a Japanese desire to insure the security of the Shanghai-Hangchow-Nanking triangle to the north, but it also could be regarded as the prelude of a coördinated attack from the north, east, and southwest in a supreme effort to dispose of the "China incident," now nearing the end of its fifth year.

Chiang's Army Menaced.

The drive would tighten the blockade of so-called "Free China," make more difficult the entry of Chinese into "Free China" from occupied China, and might also lead to the trapping and crushing of a sizeable portion of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's army.

The Chinese government has come into possession of an official Japanese map showing she has projected her so-called prosperity sphere all the way to the Persian gulf, Caspian sea, and Ural mountains in Russia, and includes in it the Philippines, Netherlands East Indies, New Guinea, northern tip of Australia, Guam, and the whole of Sakhalin, the part Russian, part Japanese island off the Siberian coast.

RAF Bombs Akyab.

NEW DELHI, India, May 19 (AP).—The RAF bombed the Burmese port of Akyab again yesterday and attacked river craft and other targets along the Chindwin river north of Kalewa, a British communique, said.

The remnants of Gen. Harold Alexander's British army have been withdrawing slowly along the Chindwin 150 miles northwest of Mandalay, and the bulk of the force is believed to have crossed the frontier into India.

Jap Threatens Russia with War Over Chinese Aid

ROME, May 19 [from Italian broadcasts] — (AP). — Should Russia supply China with arms, this would be a cause for war, Toshio Shiratori, former Japanese ambassador to Rome, said in an interview today.

[Russia has been reported supplying China with arms for almost five years over a long road extending into central China from the Siberian province of Turkestan. Whether the supplies still are flowing now that Russia is heavily engaged is uncertain.]

SENATE INQUIRY OF SUB ATTACKS IN EAST IS URGED

Brewster Says Navy Data Was Refused.

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—An investigation of measures being taken to combat the east coast submarine menace was proposed by Sen. Ralph Brewster [R., Me.] today following disclosure that plans were being revived for the construction of oil pipe lines to supplement the Atlantic seaboard's gasoline supply.

Brewster told reporters he hoped the senate naval affairs committee could obtain a report from the navy department on the progress of antisubmarine measures, particularly as to the number of small craft put into operation to hunt down the submersibles which have sunk so many oil tankers and other cargo vessels in recent months.

Altho some confidential information was forthcoming, an unofficial committee request for a report of this nature was understood to have been denied already on the grounds that it necessarily would contain vitally secret information on future plans.

Compares Britain's Progress.

Asserting that submarine sinkings in the waters around Great Britain had been halted almost entirely, Brewster said he felt that similar defense measures could be made to yield as good results along the Atlantic coast.

The senate was told recently that all oil tankers had been ordered off the eastern coastal routes and Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky disclosed that construction of pipe lines was discussed at a White House conference yesterday as a possible means to alleviating the resulting gasoline shortage in 17 rationed states.

These lines might be built from Oklahoma and Texas to the north Atlantic states, he said, or terminals might be established either on the Ohio river or in Florida.

Ickes Announces Program.

In this connection, Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] said he had no doubt that a large amount of oil could be moved by barges on inland waterways.

Petroleum Coördinator Harold L. Ickes announced today that work had begun on the first of six pipe line relocation projects intended to help relieve the eastern oil shortage.

The program, intended to increase by approximately 200,000 barrels daily the eastward oil flow, is in addition to the proposal for a huge 1,500 mile line from Texas to New York, which President Roosevelt discussed yesterday.

Addition of 200,000 barrels by the pipe relocations would make available in the east over 1,000,000 barrels daily against a present essential demand of around 1,265,000 barrels daily, under the rationing program. Normal eastern consumption is approximately 1,700,000 barrels.

Moves Thru Chicago.

The announcement listed five other projects on which Ickes has requested that action be expedited as follows:

1. Incrase in capacity of Plantation pipe line from Baton Rouge, La., to Greensboro, N. C., to enable delivery of 30,000 barrels additional daily to Greensboro. This amount then would be moved northward by an extension of the Plantation line from Greensboro to a point in Virginia northwest of Norfolk.

2. Construction of a 15,000 barrels per day products line from Fostoria, O., connecting the Shell and Sohio gasoline pipe lines with the Sun-Susquehanna system at Akron, O., for the movement of petroleum products eastward.

Barges to Be Used.

3. Reversal of the Keystone-Atlantic gasoline pipe line across Pennsylvania and an increase in the movement thru the Socony-Vacuum pipe line from Buffalo, N. Y., by 10,000 barrels daily so as to step up the flow thru the Sun pipe line system extending southward from Syracuse.

4. Delivery of 50,000 barrels of products daily to Helena, Ark., for movement by barge up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers to Pittsburgh, where it will be moved on eastward by tank car.

5. Delivery of 60,000 barrels daily of refined petroleum products to a point near Paducah, Ky., for barging up the Ohio river to Pittsburgh.

Dimout Fails; Weigh Total Blackout of New York Area

New York, May 19 [Special].—A permanent blackout of the metropolitan area today appeared to be a possible solution of the problem of silhouetting ships and endangering them to submarine attacks. The possibility was based on the apparent failure of last night's dimout.

The glow extended from Westchester to New York, with much of the light coming from shipyards and defense plants. The main problem, however, was said to be the control of light which rises from thousands of homes, stores, streets and industrial buildings and is reflected above the city.

Experts said this light is visible to submarine commanders as many as 40 miles offshore. It clearly outlines shipping and makes accurate torpedoing possible.

Compliance in last night's dimout order was said to have been far from satisfactory.

On the other hand, it had been impossible for newspapers and the public to obtain precise instructions from authorities on what was expected of individuals.

Requests for Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine to provide specific instructions for complying with the regulation produced little information.

Instead of amplifying the order, Valentine today announced that "display windows in commercial establishments with reduced lighting still will have to be effectively screened to prevent contributing to the sky glow." Then he added in capital letters in his typewritten answer to reporters' questions:

"Or they will be extinguished for the duration."

A practice air raid alarm was sounded in the New York area at 10:06 a. m. Chicago time and an all clear signal was sounded 19 minutes later. The alarm summoned to duty all air raid wardens, fire fighters, medical officers, and others assigned to air raid posts.

☆ Most well-informed housewives and mothers know that merely serving plenty of food is not enough to assure correct nutrition for their families. They know that the kind of food is just as important as the quantity. Confirming this fact, the U. S. Government has recently charted "The Rules of Good Nutrition" as shown here. The chart shows the foods which should be served regularly to build sturdy health : : : to give extra energy.

To further spread knowledge of the scientific diet and to help Chicago women solve nutrition problems at low cost, Peoples Gas Nutrition Centers have recently been established. At these Centers you are invited to learn more about "The Rules of Good Nutrition" : : : to see how easily you can make family meals measure up to these health-promoting standards.

For instance, at the Nutrition Centers, skilled home economics experts will show you why the balanced diet must include not only the usual hot meals, but also a serving of oranges, tomatoes or grapefruit : : : raw cabbage or salad greens—at least once every day.

At Peoples Gas Nutrition Centers, you may also obtain advice concerning wartime Meal Planning, as well as the Buying, Storing, Preparing, Cooking and Serving of wartime foods.

Peoples Gas Nutrition Centers are located on the Main Floor of the Peoples Gas Building, Michigan Avenue at Adams Street, at 4839 Irving Park Road, and at 846 West Sixty-Third Street. SAVE VITAMINS AND FLAVOR WITH MODERN GAS COOKERY AND REFRIGERATION . . .

Treat your family to a Tomato Jelly Salad—it's delicious and so inexpensive to prepare. All you need for this colorful dish is 1 tablespoon of plain gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1¾ cups hot tomato juice or strained tomato, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon sugar, 1 cup shredded cabbage, and 2 sweet pickles, chopped. Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Then heat tomato juice on speedy top-stove burner of your Modern Gas Range. To the gelatin add hot tomato juice, salt and sugar. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Chill in Servel Gas Refrigerator until it begins to thicken, then add cabbage and pickles. Pour into oiled mold and place in refrigerator until firm. Unmold on lettuce for serving.

Here's another healthful dish that's tasty and economical: Cabbage and Pepper Salad. Necessary ingredients include 2 cups grated cabbage, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped red pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 4 tablespoons French dressing, and 1 head of lettuce. Toss all vegetables together with seasoning and French dressing, and serve on lettuce. To give added appetite-appeal, cabbage and lettuce should be kept crisply fresh and firm by placing in refrigerator immediately after marketing. If you have a gas refrigerator, you can be sure its constant cold will protect the freshness of these vegetables and all other foods.

Shipbuilding Program Is Also Under Fire.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—As a result of the crisis in the shipping situation President Roosevelt found himself today the target of a barrage of criticism of his conduct of the war, much of it emanating from proadministration sources.

The shipping crisis resolves itself into these two elements:

1. Failure of the administration to curb appreciably the operations of German and Italian submarines which are sinking merchantmen off our Atlantic coast faster than new cargo ships are being built.

2. Inefficiency in the shipbuilding undertaking, as a result of which far fewer vessels are being turned out than yards are already equipped to construct.

Speculation on Navy Shakeup.

Whether the mounting criticism will lead to a shakeup in the navy department for failure to cope with the submarine menace and in the Maritime commission which has jurisdiction of shipbuilding is the subject of much speculation. It is recalled that it was criticism of the armament production administration for several months that eventually impelled the President to abolish the Office of Production Management and establish the War Production board headed by Donald M. Nelson, with unlimited power.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox is in an increasingly difficult position. A month ago he asserted in a public address that the submarine menace was under control. Since that time, however, the sinkings have increased. The tally since the beginning of the war is now 178, with fatalities numbering more than 1,000.

Land Also Under Fire.

Also under fire is Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime commission. Demands for his replacement by an executive experienced in mass shipbuilding are multiplying. Among those suggested for the place are former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, who was once chairman of the Maritime commission, and Henry Kaiser, whose west coast yards are handling a large proportion of our shipbuilding.

Some critics aver that the responsibilities of building ships and operating them are too great for any one man, therefore suggesting their division and the retention of Adm. Land for operation solely. Adm. Land contends that shipbuilding is up to schedule, despite lack of sufficient supply of steel plates and the loafing on the job by union labor, of which he particularly complains.

Proadministration Criticism.

The shortage of steel plates is something the WPB must answer for. According to one authority, the priorities system and particularly its administration are to blame. Some favored industrialists have been allowed to pile up supplies of steel and other materials under priority permits that cannot be used for a year or two, while the shipyards go begging for the metal. As a result of this scandal the substitution of a system of allocation for the priorities system is being considered.

The sharpest criticism of the President's administration of this branch of the war effort emanates from proadministration sources that were militantly interventionist before Pearl Harbor. Some of it appeared today in an interventionist organ the administration was instrumental in founding for the sole purpose of strafing noninterventionists. The press, recently lectured by Archibald McLeish, chief administration propagandist, for defeatist criticism of the administration now appears to be completely out of hand.

Inefficiency Is Charged.

Disregarding MacLeish's injunction of criticism that would comfort Hitler, the Washington Post, a leading interventionist organ, took the administration severely to task in an editorial today for inefficiency threatening the success of the war effort. Dismissing the administration's rosy claims of the number of ships we will be turning out "after 1943" the Post exclaims that "what we need is the mobilization and protection of all available shipping now."

Conceding, as the President says, that we are building ships faster than they ever have been built before, the Post goes on:

"The fact remains that munitions which should be on the way to the Russian battlefield and to Britain are piling up on our wharves. The fact remains that sinkings are playing nip and tuck with replacements. In this situation there is no room for complacency, no time for satisfaction over our speed in building new ships. We must cast around for ways and means of enlisting for war work the tonnage which is already roaming the seas on nonwar work. We must also explore better methods of protecting our seaborne traffic from U-boats.

"No Justification" for Sinkings.

"Protection of our war commerce is as laggard as the conservation of bottoms. The U-boats are becoming more and more daring. Along the whole length of our Atlantic seaboard they are waiting to pick off our merchantmen as they leave our ports with their precious cargoes. They have been bold enough to knife our coastwise traffic. The American people ought to share the indignation of the crews of the tankers against the lack of protection on the journey from the gulf. There is no justification for it."

The Post admonished the administration for failing to take advantage of the services of volunteer civilian flyers for convoy duty off our coasts. When such civilian air patrol was proposed by Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], the administration said it already had such an institution in operation. The Post could find none worthy the name.

Private Flyers Grounded.

"As it is," said the Post, "our private flyers for the most part are not being called upon to do a job which they are anxious and qualified to do. Originally the civilian pilots were limited to flights within a 50 mile radius of the home airport. Gradually the restrictions have been intensified till the radius is now only three miles. In other words, the civilian pilot and his machine are practically grounded. Yet there are over a hundred thousand overage but excellent private pilots in this country who could be entrusted with the protection of these shores from Maine to the gulf of Mexico."

Walter Lippman, a leading pre-war interventionist, in an article today delivered himself of a criticism of the President of the sort that McLeish abhorred as defeatist and comforting to Hitler. Lippman pronounced as gravely misleading the President's statement last Saturday that the shipping situation is being eased.

Sinkings Exceed Building.

"As things are going now," said Lippmann, "the equivalent of more than the whole year's output of the American shipyards will be at the bottom of the sea even if the program is fully realized. With the ships that are being sunk faster than they can be built, there go down the precious cargoes. And even more precious lives of the crews. We have, therefore, no ground whatever for any such complacent feeling as the White House statement could lead the people to have, and it is our imperative duty to cast aside all complacency over the shipping problem.

"We are not solving it and we are not even "easing" it. The problem is getting the better of us, and no matter how favorable the news from Europe seems for the moment to be, if we do not master the shipping problem we cannot play our part in the war, we cannot hasten or even participate effectively in the decision."

Suggests Younger Command.

Lippman thought that the President and Knox might very well entrust the anti-submarine patrol to "younger officers who have been in action in this war" who might enlist the help of fishermen, yatchsmen, merchant seamen, and airmen.

Also contributing to the barrage of criticism of the administration was the New York Times, another outstanding pre-war interventionist organ, which in an editorial entitled "Conduct of the War" complained of the continued suppression of the facts of the Pearl Harbor disaster. Conceding that there might still be a valid reason for concealing warship losses, it conceived none for withholding longer the number of airplanes we had in Hawaii and the number destroyed on the ground.

"Facts such as these," said the Times, "must become a matter of public knowledge if a democracy is to fight a war efficiently."

Die in Ice Box

Harry Sternberg and his sister, Barbara Ann.

Two small children, a brother and sister, were found last night suffocated in an old ice box in the garage and toolshed behind their home at 108th street and Central avenue, Chicago Ridge. They had been missing since the middle of the afternoon.

The two were Harry Sternberg, 4 years old, and his sister, Barbara Ann, 3, the children of Glenn and Hattie Sternberg, who live in an unnumbered house near that intersection.

Mrs. Sternberg said she had given each of the youngsters a sandwich about 2:30 p. m. and at 3:30 she missed them and started a search. When her husband reached home from his work as a car inspector for the Chicago Belt Line railroad, he called his father, Harry, of 9830 55th avenue, Oak Lawn, and the two started to search the neighborhood more intensively.

In the garage the grandfather observed the big ice box, stored there, and, as a last resort, opened it. Both bodies were inside. The door had slammed shut and locked.

NAZI BOMBS SINK BRITISH SHIP OFF PORTUGAL COAST

LISBON, Portugal, May 19 (AP).—A German bomber sank a British merchant ship today after a fierce battle within sight of the Portuguese coast, just northwest of Lisbon. A Portuguese plane flew over the spot a short time later, but saw no signs of survivors. [Berlin reported German planes had attacked a British convoy.]

Eagle Flyers Down 3 Planes.

LONDON, May 19 (AP). — Flight Sergt. C. W. Harp of Columbus, Ga., a member of the American Eagle squadron, shot down two German Focke-Wulf 190 fighters today in a short battle over northern France, the air ministry announced. Eagle Pilot Officer Moran Morris of Durant, Okla., bagged one Messerschmitt 109.

In a second sweep over northern France British fighter-bombers attacked railway communications near St. Omer.

Houses in a block of flats were flattened and some of the residents were killed in a sharp German raid on an English northeast coast town.

Japs Order All in Dutch Indies to Pledge Loyalty

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 19.—The Netherlands Indies information bureau said today that Japanese authorities in the Netherlands Indies had ordered all Netherlanders and other Europeans, Chinese, and Arabs, who have reached the age of 17 years, to vow loyalty to Japan. Those not taking the vow will lose their rights and citizenship.

U-BOATS SINK 4 MORE SHIPS; 38 DIE; 85 SURVIVE

Two Go Down in Gulf, Two in Western Atlantic.

Four more ships were reported sunk by axis submarines yesterday, 178 two in the Gulf of Mexico and two reported from a Canadian port as sunk in the western Atlantic. Thirty-eight were reported dead, while 85 survived.

These sinkings brought to 178 the number of vessels sunk in American waters since Pearl Harbor, with 1,113 known dead, 1,274 missing and believed dead, and 5,681 rescued.

Sink Two in Gulf; 33 Die.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Submarines have sunk two more medium size American merchant ships in the Gulf of Mexico, the navy announced, with a loss of 33 lives.

Both ships were sunk by torpedoes May 13, and 20 men were killed on one vessel and 13 on the other. Twenty-five survivors were rescued from one ship, and it was not announced how many were saved from the other or whether any were missing in the two attacks.

Ship Attacked in Afternoon.

The first of the two attacks occurred at 2:50 p. m. One torpedo from the unseen submarine struck the engine room, killing 12 men in the explosion. The 8th naval district's inshore patrol picked up the survivors and brought them here. One man died in a lifeboat.

One torpedo struck the other vessel about 10:45 p. m., with the victims meeting death either from the explosion or from burns which prevented them from leaving the ship. Five members of a gun crew were on watch at the time of the attack, but could take no countermeasures because of the darkness.

The torpedo struck the latter ship just below the water line, tearing a large hole in the hull and setting the vessel afire.

2 Take Refuge in Water Tank.

Petro T. Waldermarsen of Lebanon, N. J., the ship's chief engineer, and Pumpman Helmar Martin of New York, both 55 years old, told at Key West, Fla., of saving their lives by taking refuge in the vessel's fresh water tank while the ship burned about them.

After 12 hours in the tank, which had four feet of water in it, they made their way over hot decks to the gun platform, where they were sighted by navy airmen who directed a ship to their aid.

"I saw the raft which we had thrown overboard catch on fire," Waldermarsen said. "I knew that way was too risky. I told the boys still on deck not to jump, that we could go below to the water tank, but Martin was the only one who remained with me."

Sixty Survive Two Sinkings.

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT.—Sixty survivors of two ships torpedoed and sunk in the western Atlantic by axis submarines arrived here from another port where they first were landed.

Thirty-eight survivors were aboard from one ship which went down with a loss of five men.

Jackie Ingledew, an Englishman from the other ship, said only the skipper of his vessel was aboard when a U-boat captain "saluted us with the real imperial navy salute—not the Nazi one," and rammed a third torpedo into the ship.

The skipper was blown off the bridge and picked up by the other crewmen uninjured, he said.

Rescue of 23 Reported.

MEXICO CITY.—Dispatches from Chetumal, Yucatan port, quoting the local press there, said 23 survivors of the torpedoed Canadian ship Galgarolite, a 11,941 ton tanker, had arrived in lifeboats, with 21 other crew members and the captain missing. The dispatches said the ship was hit by three submarine torpedoes May 9.

SCHOOL HONORS FORMER PUPILS SERVING IN WAR

Four thousand pupils of Proviso Township High school yesterday attended special assemblies in the school auditorium at Maywood in tribute to former pupils and faculty members now in the nation's armed forces and in memory of those killed in the war. Fifty-two of the men honored are members of Company B, 192d tank battalion, believed to have been taken prisoners of the Japanese in Bataan.

The program included presentation of the colors by the school color guard, singing of the national anthem, invocation by the Rev. Roy W. Merrifield, pastor of Plymouth Congregational church and a talk by E. A. Sifert, school superintendent. There were also two tableaux, the first portraying "The Way of Life for Which We Fight" and the second revealing a figure of Victory against a background of the American flag.

10,000 CHICAGO WORKERS ON GAS REFINERY ROLLS

Send Products to Six Midwest States.

The Chicago area, which with other sections may come into some form of gasoline rationing on July 1, is one of the major oil refining centers of the United States.

Its huge refineries receive the bulk of their supplies of crude oil by pipe line. Here they process the oil and supply finished gasoline and fuel oil to all or parts of six states—Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, and Minnesota.

Experts in the oil business are giving deep thought to the problems that will affect them if and when gasoline consumption is severely cut from present levels. One of these problems, and the layman might never think of it, is a storage space for the gasoline that isn't sold.

The experts said yesterday that the emphasis is on the production of heavier fuel oil, much used by industrial plants and transportation systems; and they are now laying plans to increase the percentage of this product and decrease the percentage of gasoline per barrel of crude.

Employ 10,000 Workers.

It is feasible, the oil companies have reported, to derive anywhere from 35 to 60 per cent in gasoline from crude oil. The older and less efficient plants produce the lower proportion of gasoline.

In recent weeks gasoline piled up in storage has been decreasing, due to shipments by lake to other states, where the normal seasonal demand increases. Company officials said that, with a lowered output of gasoline this summer, there would probably be no storage problem until October.

The Chicago area refineries employ about 10,000 workers. One refinery alone, the Whiting plant of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, produces enough gasoline to supply the normal prewar needs of 1,200,000 automobiles. It covers 780 acres and produces 2,000 petroleum products, with its scientists searching for others.

Three other companies, Cities Service, Sinclair Refining, and Socony Vacuum, also have huge refineries. To this big four of the industry flows some 60,000,000 barrels of oil annually. Steel pipes bring it to the Chicago refineries from the oil fields of Illinois and other states down to Texas.

No Early Unemployment.

This oil is forced thru the conduits at four miles an hour, as fast as a man could walk. Each day 200,000 barrels arrive, and from this supply about 24,000,000 barrels of gasoline are produced each year. [This estimate is based on a 40 per cent extraction of gasoline.]

With the large demand for aviation gasoline of high octane rating and the adjustment of the extraction percentage being planned, the oil men said it was unlikely there would be much loss in refinery employment this summer.

The proposed rationing, designed to conserve rubber first and fuel second, was crticized by Carl A. Barrett, president of the Illinois Automobile club, as "unnecessary and harmful." The federal government and the states, he said, need the gasoline and auto taxes.

"So many conflicting statements on rubber conservation have come out of Washington that the public is hopelessly confused," Barrett declared. "Why doesn't the government buy the unsalable used cars in dealers' hands, if the situation is so serious, instead of taking needed transportation from the people?"

GOES TO RESCUE OF LADY AND SHE CALLS HIM NOSY

Don't try to be a knight any more, Judge George L. Quilici advised Jack Van, 59 years old, 4716 Sheridan road, in the Town Hall court yesterday, after Van told what happened when he went to the rescue of a woman he thought was being beaten by her husband.

The husband and wife, Dykes and Mrs. Georgia Pickett, 4530 Magnolia avenue, also were in court. "I saw him beating her," testified Van, "and went to help her. Pickett knocked me to the ground, and Mrs. Pickett said he wasn't beating her."

Both Pickett and his wife denied he had beaten her. "We were just arguing, and this man—Van—nosed into our business," said Mrs. Pickett. "I didn't need any one to rescue me." Then Judge Quilici gave his advice to Van and fined Pickett $1 for hitting him. Mrs. Pickett paid the fine.

GOVERNMENT PAPERS STOLEN.

A valise containing government papers and clothes valued at $108 was stolen from Charles B Chapman, a civilian worker for the army air field at Dayton, O., while he was registering at the La Salle hotel Sunday, he reported Monday night.

[ADVERTISMENT]

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Marjorie House, 1516 Greenleaf avenue.]

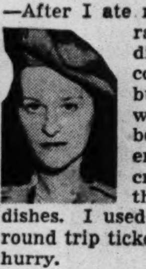
THE QUESTION.

Were you ever stranded in a place without money?

WHERE ASKED.

Union bus depot, Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue.

THE ANSWERS.

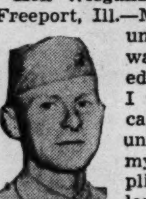


Jane Werner, waitress, Galena, Ill.—After I ate my lunch in a restaurant in a small town I discovered my handbag contained everything but the coin purse. It was at home. I hadn't been in the place long enough to establish credit so I had to go to the kitchen and wash dishes. I used the remainder of my round trip ticket to return home in a hurry.

Evan Miller, salesman, Akron, O.—I was at the age where boys enjoy amusement parks the most. I was completely exhausted before the day was over. I saved one nickel for car fare home. While I was waiting for the conductor to take the nickel, I fell asleep and lost it. I had to get off and walk the 2½ miles home.

Pete Cummins, second mate, merchant marine, Los Angeles, Cal.—It was my first trip from Greece to this country. I got off a freighter in Buenos Aires without a cent in my pocket. There didn't seem to be any way for me to make some money. Finally I became lucky or skilful in a game of cards.

Edward Jacobs, timekeeper, Louisville, Ky.—An incident like that might be amusing when it is in the past, but right now it's not much fun. I had been in the hospital for weeks and left it Saturday without a cent. I never felt so stranded in my life. If it hadn't been for the generosity of a casual acquaintance, I don't know how I would have managed.



Ken Wiegand, private, first class, Freeport, Ill.—My furlough came up unexpectedly and as I wanted to use it I started out on a trip home. I was stranded in Chicago without money until I informed some of my relatives of my plight. It has been a lesson to me to have plenty of funds when traveling.

Harry Solomon, salesman, 3000 Fremont street—The first time I went to Washington I found it impossible to cash a certified check. It was all I had. My clothes were checked in a 10 cent locker. I went to a welfare home, where I was treated royally. The next day the Veterans' administration approved the check for me.

ROOSEVELT HINTS MORE YANKS ARE TO GO TO EUROPE

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—President Roosevelt today aroused new conjecture as to the purpose of concentrating American troops in Northern Ireland with a statement strongly implying that more are to be added to the thousands already there. Speculation centered upon the possibility that ultimately the forces are to be used for opening a second continental front against the Nazis.

American troops started arriving in Northern Ireland in January. Yesterday it was announced that a force larger than the previous ones had arrived safely.

At his press conference today, Mr. Roosevelt was asked for comment and replied that the operation was carried out successfully. He hoped, he said, there would be more in the future.

"Does that mean more troops?" a reporter asked.

Mr. Roosevelt laughed and conceded that his words did contain such an implication.

Since the arrival of the first contingent, the assumption has been that an invasion of the German held continent ultimately would be attempted. Agitation for a second front has been widespread in England.

TRUCKERS TOLD: SAVE TIRES OR GET OFF ROADS

ODT Officials Say Parts Also Scarce.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Several thousand truck and bus operators—leaders in their industry—were warned last night they must keep their vehicles in repair and conserve their tires or get off the highways and streets. They were warned that their future operations depend on rubber and spare parts and henceforth there will be little rubber and few spare parts.

Government officials delivered the gloomy message at a mass meeting of the operators from the middle west in Hotel Sherman. The meeting was called to let the officials explain to the group the reasons for the imposition of harsh restrictions on operation of trucks — restrictions designed to maintain a supply of vehicles held essential to the war effort.

Eastman Speaks to Group.

Speakers included John L. Rogers, director, division of motor transport, Office of Defense Transportation; Willis Behoteguy, tire rationing official; Davis C. Fenner, automotive adviser to the ODT, and others. Earlier, Joseph B. Eastman, director of the ODT and in charge of the nation's entire transporation system, addressed the American Trucking Associations, Inc., in the Drake hotel.

All the talks reëmphasized America's dependence on rubber and the critical position of highway transportation because of insufficient stocks of the material essential to the manufacture of tires.

Important points brought out in the discussions were:

1. It will be at least two years—possibly not until late 1943—before satisfactory amounts of synthetic rubber will become available.

2. Use of trucks and buses for pleasure purposes soon will be banned. This means an end to merry truckloads of picnickers and to buses loaded with race track fans. Buses used for vacation travel likewise will be taboo.

Must Use Tires Carefully.

3. Trucks must be loaded on return trips as well as on "out" hauls.

4. Truck loadings will have to be planned with greater care.

5. No new tires will be issued to truck operators who have lost the use of tires because of careless methods.

6. There will have to be more effective use of mass transportation such as street cars, buses, and taxicabs.

7. Truck operators must try to get from 125,000 to 175,000 miles on tires from which they formerly got from 25,000 to 40,000 miles.

Miles Wear Out Vehicles.

Rogers reminded the group that the nation has 5 million trucks and 150,000 buses in operation. The first thing that must be done, he said, is to eliminate every unnecessary mile of operation because "it's miles that wear out motor vehicles."

A third of all our trucks are operated by farmers, he continued, with a warning that should the farmers' trucks break down the time might come when crops would rot in the fields because of lack of transportation. The regulations issued by the ODT were not brought out to keep trucks off the roads, but to keep them running, he added.

Behoteguy said the supply of truck tires on hand is sufficient only for 60 days, and 8 million automobile tires is only a 90 days' supply under normal circumstances. The army is doing everything it can to conserve rubber, he said, even to eliminating rubber from tank treads.

UNION RENEWS EFFORTS TO BAR ST. LOUIS KELLY

The Retail Clerks' International Protective association began a new drive yesterday to prevent J. Livert [St. Louis] Kelly from regaining control of local 901-B, a union of colored retail clerks.

A petition filed with the clerk of the United States District court asked leave to file another request for an injunction which would bar Kelly and his aids from control of the union. The original request was granted by Judge William H. Holly last year, but was thrown out by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals because the order did not specify the grounds upon which the injunction was issued.

Kelly is described in the petition as "a person of ill repute who has a criminal record," and "a racketeer."

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and personally, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries. Persons are asked to keep their letters short because of the volume of mail.]

N. L. writes: "I have my ordinary seaman papers in the United States merchant marine. If I get a job on a boat again, will I have to let the draft board know about it? Also, where in Chicago should I apply for an ordinary seaman's job on the Great Lakes?"

ANSWER: If in filling in your draft questionnaire you did not give your occupation as a seaman, you should notify your draft board if and when you get a job aboard a ship on the Great Lakes. For information as to whether jobs are available on Great Lakes ships, apply to the Lake Carriers association, 9251 South Chicago avenue.

B. B. writes: "I was placed in class 1-A and my appeal from this classification was turned down. After being examined by the army doctors I was placed in class 1-B. Can I appeal again if I am reclassified to 1-A?"

ANSWER: You would be permitted to file another appeal, but it would be unwise unless you believed you were entitled to a deferment on grounds other than those on which you based your first appeal. If you made the appeal on the same grounds it follows that you again would be turned down.

W. M. writes: "I would like to know where a friend of mine, who enlisted in the army a few months ago, is now stationed. I have heard the adjutant general's department in Washington might be able to help me. Do you think they can?"

ANSWER: If it is imperative that you locate your friend, it is advisable that you resort to all other possibilities for learning his military address before writing to the adjutant general's office. First, make inquiry of his other friends and of his family. As a last resort you can write the adjutant general's office. You may not receive an answer for some time as the office is overburdened with queries of an essential nature.

R. S. M. asks: "Is it possible to enlist in the army air corps as a private, or is it necessary to enlist in the regular army? Where is the recruiting office for this type of enlistment?"

ANSWER: If you are between 18 and 20 years of age you can enlsit directly into the army air corps by applying to the army recruiting office at 515 South Franklin street. If you are more than 20 years old you would have to enlist in the army unassigned, also at the same recruiting station, and you later would be given the opportunity to state your preference for assignment to the air corps as an enlisted man.

To W. B.: Write to the Civil Aeronautics Authority, 608 South Dearborn street.

A. C.: It is suggested that you apply to the aviation cadet examining board in the United States courthouse, as they would have to know the full particulars of your case.

LEWIS ASSAILED AS 'UNWORTHY TRUST OF LABOR'

Denunciation of John L. Lewis, former president of the CIO, marked yesterday's sessions of the 5th annual convention of the United Retail, Wholesale, and Department Store Employés of America in the Morrison hotel.

James B. Carey, national secretary of the CIO, charged that Lewis is unworthy of the trust of leadership of labor.

"I heard John Lewis when he pledged his full support to the new president of the CIO, Philip Murray," said Carey. "How is that support being carried out? By attempting to destroy the instrument he helped to create. When we throw ourselves into this battle and we build an organization, it does not give us the right to destroy it. This movement belongs to the workers."

Richard Frankensteen, a vice president of the CIO, speaking for R. J. Thomas, head of the United Auto workers, pledged the support of his organization to the clerks in their fight against Lewis.

CHAPTER 25

THE German hordes were battling the British and French armies in France in World War I, when Douglas MacArthur was called to Washington and assigned to duty in the War Department as Press Officer. Soon he was Chief of the Army Censorship Department. He showed a keen appreciation of the duties of the press in war time.

His broad knowledge of army operations and his exceptional brilliance attracted Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, who requested him to organize a new combat division. MacArthur conceived the idea of developing the 42nd Division by assembling troops from every state in the Union and because it included men from every part of the country, he dramatically named it the

PLAN NEW BOARD TO HANDLE FOOD OUTPUT AND SALE

Will Control Processing and Allocation.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Plans are being formulated for a new food control agency, with Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard as its head, according to information obtained from reliable quarters today.

Secretary Wickard.

It is planned to establish the agency within the War Production board, in the form of a committee similar to the material requirements committee. However, there have been reports that the agriculture department may handle the whole food control program.

The WPB plan is the arrangement generally expected. It could be established either by a directive from Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, or by an executive order from President Roosevelt. The food control agency is expected to be given powers to regulate production, processing, distribution and exports, both in normal trade and under lend-lease operations.

Will Fit Supply to Needs.

It will be the duty of the new board to anticipate the needs for foodstuffs among the united nations and regulate the American supply accordingly. Emphasis will be placed on production and processing of foodstuffs, with the food agency dealing directly with the WPB priorities division on problems which have caused delay in getting foods processed, such as dehydrating and quick freezing as substitutes for canning.

Representatives of other federal agencies such as the war and navy departments, the Office of Price administration, the lend-lease administration, and possibly the state department and Board of Economic Warfare will be placed in the food agency under Wickard.

Policies are to be formulated by the food control committee and carried out by various agencies, with the agriculture department carrying the burden of attaining production goals.

Armed Services Come First.

Allocation of available supplies will be determined by the food group, with American armed forces getting first consideration and the remainder being distributed for domestic and foreign consumption.

The OPA will continue to handle price fixing and rationing of foodstuffs, but will work with the new food control agency in rationing scarce products, officials said. Similarly, the problem of supplying farm labor will be left in the War Man Power commission, with the food agency advising the labor agency of its potential needs.

In the World war there were "wheatless days" and "meatless days," but the Federal Food administration, headed by Herbert Hoover, did not impose a rationing system such as in effect now.

CHARGES JONES AND RFC IGNORE LITTLE BUSINESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Further warning that American small businesses must receive immediate government aid thru loans or contracts to overcome the wave of priority shutdowns and survive the war emergency was sounded in the house today by Rep. Herman P. Kopplemann [D., Conn.].

The New Englander charged that the Reconstruction Finance corporation and its head, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, has been responsible for the failure of many of these enterprises in the depression years and since the start of the war program. They were unable to obtain the use of federal funds from the RFC necessary to continue civilian manufacture or convert to war production, he asserted.

At a recent session of the house banking committee, Jones charged Kopplemann with having tried to get a $60,000 RFC loan for a friend on property which had cost $8,000.

This charge Kopplemann flatly denied today, telling his colleagues that the facts as Jones presented them did not properly describe the transaction. Records show, he declared, that a $10,000 loan was actually granted and an additional loan of $25,000 was authorized.

NAVY NEEDS MEN! OPEN BIG DRIVE TO GET THEM TODAY

Civic Leaders to Meet at Call of Mayor.

The biggest navy recruiting drive in Chicago's history will be launched this afternoon when civic leaders will gather in the council chambers in the city hall in response to Mayor Kelly's call. Lieut. David N. Goldenson, navy recruiting officer for the Chicago area, will be a principal speaker and will stress the service's need for men in the war crisis.

"We must get the whole city behind the drive," Lieut. Goldenson said yesterday. "Chicago must be made navy conscious. We have the greatest naval training station in the world in this area.

Boom After Pearl Harbor.

"Immediately after Pearl Harbor, navy recruiting boomed. But recently there has been a letup and recruiting is not keeping pace with the ships being put into service.

"Chicago has responded in the past to the call of the armed forces. I am certain its response will again be magnificent in this time of emergency."

Lieut. Goldenson outlined the many advantages the navy offers to young men. He pointed out that the navy puts men into the type of work for which they are most adapted. It offers them travel and education and in these perilous times the opportunity to serve their country.

"We want young men to make a career of the navy," he said.

Among Those Invited.

Among the 90 civic and business leaders invited to the meeting by Mayor Kelly are Edward T. Ryerson, John Cuneo, Harold H. Swift, Elmer T. Stevens, Victor Drieske, Philip Wrigley, Britton I. Budd, and Charles Walgreen Jr. Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes will be one of the city officials attending. The mayor will preside.

An increase in Chicago building trades workers applying for service in naval construction battalions outside the continental limits of the United States was noted yesterday. This followed Lieut. Goldenson's call on Monday for carpenters and excavation and concrete workers for this service. The age limits are from 17 to 50 years.

ASKS FOR ARMY COMPARABLE TO NATION'S WEALTH

Col. Fredrick Rogers, commandant at Fort Sheridan, speaking last night at the annual dinner of the University of Michigan Chicago club, asserted that if the United States maintained a military force comparable to its wealth "no nation would ever dare to attack us." About 200 attended the dinner held in the Palmer House.

Lieut. Col. Chester Fordney, Michigan alumnus and marine recruiting officer in Chicago, was toastmaster. Speakers included Capt. E. A. Wolleson of the naval training school at Navy pier; Lieut. Col. Carleton Hill of the marine aviation school, and Prof. Harloe Heneman, executive director of the University of Michigan war board.

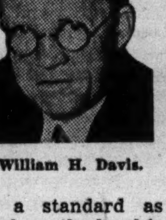
$25 Weekly Suggested as Minimum Affected.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The government's anti-inflation counsellors are considering tighter wage controls, possibly by forbidding wage increases to persons now getting more than some specified minimum, William H. Davis, chairman of the National War Labor board, said today.



William H. Davis.

Davis said he is thinking of the possibility of such a standard as adopted by Canada, where the level is fixed at $25 a week. He said he is not prepared to say what the American standard should be, but did not believe it should be below $25.

Wage Freezing Opposed.

Davis in the past has opposed a general wage freezing order, as advocated by many as a necessary anti-inflation measure. He said such an order would be "very tragic," because it would work undue hardships on low paid workers by preventing elimination of wage inequalities.

He suggested instead that the wage standard policy would enable the government to tell employers that they cannot raise wages of employés now receiving $25 a week or whatever standard is chosen, without government review, but no restriction would be placed on raises for employés receiving less than the standard.

Asserts Control Is Needed.

Davis said the government needs increased control over wage increases, asserting that if an inflationary wage spiral is to be prevented some control, either voluntary or governmental, must be maintained over the 95 per cent of the wage demands that now are settled by direct negotiations and do not reach the WLB.

He said that because of this an interdepartmental committee studying the problem is considering whether an order should be requested of the President to expand government control of wages. This committee consists of Davis, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war man power commission, and Leon Henderson, price administrator.

RULES OF ARMY BAR CASH AND BONDS FOR BOMBERS OF JAPAN

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—The awards of cash or defense bonds which have been proposed in various communities for the person who first bombed Tokio may have to be devoted to some other purpose unless the army changes a rule that has stood for more than 30 years.

Asked today if Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle, who led the squadron of bombers which raided the Japanese mainland on April 18, and the 79 other flyers who participated might collect the prize funds, army officials said war department policy prevented such awards.

Since 1909, they said, regulations have forbidden officers and enlisted men to accept money or other gifts for actions performed in the line of duty. These regulations probably would apply to the raid on Japan, officials said, despite the fact that Doolittle and his men were decorated for actions "above and beyond the call of duty."

VOTE ALLOTMENT BILL FOR SERVICE MEN'S FAMILIES

House Group O. K.'s Aid to Dependents.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Making only minor changes, the house military affairs committee today approved the allowances and allotment bill to provide financial aid for dependents of members of the armed forces. The measure will be brought to the floor late this week or early next with early action to speed it on to the senate regarded as a certainty.

Passage of the legislation will open the way for military conscription from vast stores of the nation's manpower between the ages of 20 to 45 now deferred in the 3-A classification because of family obligations.

Would Reach New Stratas.

This would include, within the age limits, businessmen in the walks of life not connected with the war effort, workers in unessential industries, professional men who can be spared and widely known athletes from the ranks of sport whose summons to fight has been delayed because of wives and children depending upon them for support.

Thus the bill is expected to have widespread effects upon the economic and everyday life of the nation. Essential occupation in a war industry would remain the sole reason for draft deferment, besides physical incapacity. And plans are already being prepared by Man Power Commissioner Paul McNutt to replace many younger men in essential jobs with women or with men too old to fight.

Under the measure, an enlisted man would contribute a maximum of $20 per month from his pay for the support of a wife to be matched by $20 from the government plus $10 government funds for each child. If he has further dependents such as parents or brothers and sisters, he would be required to pay an additional $5 to which the government would add varying sums ranging from $15 to $50 depending upon the number to be supported.

Extra Allowance Rejected.

The committee eliminated grandchildren from among lists of dependents whom the government would be required to support. Also knocked out of the bill was a section which would have conferred broad discretionary authority on the federal security agency to parcel out added federal funds at its pleasure in meeting so-called hardship cases.

The bill is based on the pending proposal to increase the base pay of enlisted men in the armed forces from the present $21 figure to $42 or $50 per month. The senate version of the pay bill calls for an increase to $42 while the house voted overwhelmingly for a boost to $50.

RATIONED SUGAR FOUND ADEQUATE FOR DAILY NEEDS

Inquiries among Chicago housewives showed yesterday that sugar rationing is not causing much inconvenience in everyday cooking and baking. Numerous requests for extra supplies for canning, however, have been received by the sugar rationing board of the metropolitan area.

"From the city we have received more than 100 requests for additional quotas of sugar for canning," an official said. "In the suburbs the demand is even greater. From Park Ridge alone we received a request for 3,000 application blanks and several of the boards have had more than 200 requests."

Housewives may obtain five pounds of sugar for every member of the family for the purpose of canning, he explained. Under the present law, the amount is for a year's time but this may be changed.

PUBLISHERS ASK LIKE TREATMENT FOR ALL BY FCC

Deplore Discrimination in Granting of Licenses.

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—Newspaper publishers operating radio broadcasting stations told a congressional committee today they wanted no "special privileges" but resented being regarded by the Federal Communications commission in the same category as "aliens and felons."

Harold V. Hough of Fort Worth, Tex., radio and newspaper executive and chairman of the newspaper-radio committee, composed of 150 publishers interested in radio, testified before the house interstate and foreign commerce committee that the commission had displayed a discriminatory attitude toward publishers seeking broadcasting permits.

Its order of March, 1941, for an investigation of newspapers associated with broadcasting "pretty much jarred" the publishers, Hough declared.

Discrimination Un-American.

"Discrimination because of occupation just doesn't fit in with American democracy," Hough added.

Pointing out that only aliens and felons are barred by law from obtaining broadcasting permits, Hough told the committee, "the classing of newspaper people in the category of aliens and felons doesn't make any of us very happy." Grouping newspaper publishers into a class for purposes of the communications act, he said, would be as unfair as grouping insurance companies, churches, schools, or department stores operating stations.

Of 801 commercial broadcasting stations in the nation, Hough said, only 169 could be classified as strictly newspaper-radio stations. This disclosure, he added, has been about the only thing developed to date in the FCC investigation.

Asks Specific Assurances.

Hough suggested to the committee, which is studying a proposal for a new FCC setup, that any change in the act should include a provision that "there shall be no discrimination on account of occupation or class."

Thomas D. Thatcher of New York, chief counsel for the newspaper-radio committee, testified that the FCC's own counsel, Hampson Gary, issued an opinion in January, 1937, that the commission lacked power to bar newspapers from radio station ownership.

Sidney M. Kayne, associate counsel, complained that about 65 applications for licenses, transfers, or improvements have been held up because the applicants were affiliated with newspapers.

Chairman Clarence F. Lea [D., Cal.] said the committee would hear testimony of radio station operators not affiliated with newspapers after concluding the newspaper-radio testimony tomorrow. Following that, the FCC is expected to be called for its views on the pending legislation.

ANNUAL AWARDS SET UP FOR RADIO NEWS HANDLING

Establishment of annual awards of $1,000 each to radio commentator and a radio station were announced yesterday by Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont of Jacksonville, Fla. One award will go to the commentator who in the opinion of a panel of judges has rendered the best public service during the preceding calendar year thru reporting by radio.

The second award will go to the station in the continental United States that has contributed conspicuous service toward the encouragement and development of American ideals. Both awards are being established as memorials to Alfred I. du Pont. The first awards will be announced next March.

The days are designated in the following order: "Unity day," "Home Heroes day," "Women's Dedication day," "Youth Dedication day," "Farm and Industry day," "Labor and the Home Front day," "MacArthur and Civilian Defense day," and "United Nations and Flag day."

PLAN TO GROUP CITY'S 1943 FUND DRIVES INTO ONE

Leaders Assert Single Campaign Is Best.

Recommendation that Chicago consolidate as many fund collecting campaigns as possible in 1943 will be made shortly to a committee of 300 persons representing charities, suburbs, religious, racial, and labor groups. Eighty-one major cities in the United States already have consolidated their fund collecting activities.

Decision to make the consolidation recommendation was reached yesterday at a meeting of a committee chosen two months ago by leaders of a dozen or more groups which annually collect funds or participate in the community fund.

12 to 18 Million Needed in '43.

Robert A. Gardner, president of the Community Fund, was chairman of the meeting, attended by Thomas J. Condon, representing the Catholic charities; Sam A. Goldsmith for the Jewish charities; Judge Roger J. Kiley, representing Mayor Kelly; A. H. Mellinger, president of the Association of Commerce, and Thomas L. Slater, for the American Federation of Labor.

Pierce Atwater, executive director of the Community Fund, estimated the 1943 war needs of Chicago at from 12 to 18 million dollars in addition to the community fund, which may total 4 million dollars.

The size of the ultimate goal would be determined by the number of organizations willing to participate in the consolidated fund collecting effort. It was the belief of the committee yesterday that all organizations willing to join should be allowed to participate.

Use Same Workers in Drives.

The need for consolidation of the war fund collections was stressed by Gardner, who recalled the same key workers are called upon to take part in all major drives.

"Something must be done," he said, "to conserve the workers and the givers. With one drive following closely upon another, generous Chicagoans are at a loss to know what next to expect and none wants to slight any organization.

"With a consolidation of collections the donor would have some idea of what he could expect for the year and adjust his donation to his income accordingly," Gardner said.

At the time the committee was in session yesterday, word came from Rochester, N. Y., that a consolidated fund drive there had been completed and produced $2,400,000 in a city of 300,000—equivalent to a per capita donation of $8.

BARRETT INVOKES HIGH COURT IN DISPUTE OVER IPAC ATTORNEYS JOBS

Attorney General George F. Barrett yesterday said he was following decisions of the Illinois Supreme court in his order to stop payment of salaries to two attorneys employed by the Illinois Public Aid commission, a state agency. Edward L. Ryerson, IPAC chairman, had termed Barrett's action "outrageous."

"It is ridiculous to think that this and other branches of the state government are spending thousands of dollars on 'private' counsel when the state already has made appropriations for that purpose. If these various agency heads have something to hide I want to find out about it."

Barrett said he will launch a thoro inquiry into every state department which has been hiring its own lawyers. In the IPAC, one attorney, Raymond E. Hilliard, is assistant executive secretary, while Joseph E. Springer is employed as chief investigator. They have started mandamus proceedings in the Circuit court at Springfield.

JUDGE AT POLICE TRIAL SEES NEED OF SOME TRUTH

Gambling Reports Show Somebody's Wrong.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Wendell Green, civil service commissioner who is presiding at a hearing of charges against Policeman Fred L. Trauth, demanded the truth yesterday afternoon concerning anti-gambling activities. It is charged that Trauth, as a member of the morals division assigned to the prevention of gambling, was inefficient, neglectful of duty, and that he made false reports.

"Either policemen are making reports that are not worth the paper they are written on or this gentleman is," said Commissioner Green, pointing to Neal Aardema, a former investigator for State's Attorney Courtney.

"You have presented a dangerous situation to this commission," Green said to the opposing lawyers, Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin on the one side and Attorneys Thomas D. Nash and Dan Lamont on the other.

Integrity Not in Question.

"I'm not questioning the integrity of this witness," he said, referring to Aardema. "But none of these policemen ever thought they'd have occasion to come here and testify when they made out these reports.

"This whole case is predicated on reports.

"Let's keep right after this until we get the facts."

A few minutes later Green refused to permit Austin to introduce a record intended to support Aardema's testimony. "You can see the reason for it, can't you?"

"I can see the reason, all right, but not a legal reason," Austin replied.

Green called on Ed Daley, inspector of personnel for the police department, to produce certain records asked by Trauth's counsel.

Civil Service Appointee.

"It is vitally necessary to furnish any records needed for the defense of this policeman, who is a civil service appointee," Green said to Daley. "The other policemen are civil service appointees. Investigator Aardema is not."

Aardema, the day's principal witness, testified that he visited various gambling resorts in 1940 and made bets on horse races in them. In September, 1940, he resigned from the state's attorney's staff and obtained employment with a business concern, he said.

Aardema testified to having made bets in a handbook at 145 South Wells street on June 6, 16, and 26, July 6 and 16, and Aug. 6 and 16, in 1940. He told of the number of patrons he found in the place on each visit and the number of employés.

Charge He Knew of Gambling.

Policeman Trauth is charged with knowing that gambling was in operation on those premises and with failing to go there after April 22, 1940.

Attorneys Nash and Lamont, in response to question by Commissioner Green, said they would prove by policemen other than Trauth that the premises at 145 North Wells street were closed on the dates given by Aardema.

They first called Policeman Lawrence Podesta of the 1st district. He identified a report made by him and his partner, William Lamich, on June 6, 1940. This report included No. 145 North Wells street in a list of places the policemen said they had visited and found "closed." Lamich gave similar testimony.

Let Contracts to Patch Roads in Four Counties

Contracts amounting to $218,467 for patching concrete highways in Du Page, Kane, Lake, and McHenry counties were awarded yesterday by the state highway division in Springfield. One job, costing $78,604, is for the repairing of alternate U. S. highway 30 from York road, east of Elmhurst, and west to Geneva. The contract was given to the Standard Paving company.

VICTIM ACCUSES TWO OFFICERS IN EXTORTION TRIAL

Describes Shakedown at Roadside.

A jury of 10 women and two men is to decide today on the guilt or innocence of two policemen attached to the state's attorney's office who are being tried in the Safety court of Municipal Judge John T. Zuris on charges of extorting $5 from a young motorist.

The policemen are Frank Cunningham, 32 years old, and Michael Marren, 30. Both took the stand yesterday afternoon and made a total denial of the charges. The state has asked that they be given jail sentences.

Ted Johnsen, 16, 11215 Parnell avenue, the young driver, and Phyllis Mueller, 15, 10907 Wabash avenue, were the state witnesses. Both are students in Fenger High school.

Stopped on Way Home.

Johnsen said that on April 29 he attended a choir practice with Phyllis and then drove with her to Blue Island for a soft drink. They were on their way home when, at 127th and Halsted streets, they were curbed by Cunningham's car after one of the policemen fired his pistol in the air.

"Marren came over, pistol in hand, and told me he was a policeman," Ted said. "When I protested I hadn't done anything wrong Cunningham slapped me.

"They said I had been driving recklessly and raced by a stop sign. Cunningham walked away for a short distance and Marren told me it could be fixed with the sergeant, meaning Cunningham, for a little money. When I said I was willing to go to the station and be booked, he said I would be locked up all night and maybe fined $50. He said I could have a pass for $5 and I gave it to him."

The girl's testimony was virtually the same except that she did not see the payment made.

Officers Deny Guilt.

The policemen insisted the young driver had gone thru a stoplight and questioned him about it; that they intended to take him to a police station to be booked, but let him go because they were investigating another matter and didn't have time. Both were vehement in denying they accepted or asked for money.

Harry Busch, attorney for Cunningham, asked a directed verdict of not guilty for his client, insisting there was no evidence he had seen or taken any part of a bribe. Judge Zuris refused to pass on the matter "at this time," altho he said the evidence against Cunningham was thin.

The taking of testimony was ended with a rebuttal by the Johnsen boy and the girl and the presentation of several witnesses who told of Cunningham's good reputation. Assistant State's Attorney Ralph Clare and the defense lawyers will make their closing statements today and the case will then be given to the jury.

N. Y. GRAND JURY UPHOLDS ACTION CLEARING FLYNN

New York, May 19 [Special].—The Bronx grand jury that investigated the use of city paving blocks in the Lake Mahopac estate of Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic national committee, returned today a second presentment, upholding its previous failure to bring indictments and defending the conduct of the inquiry by District Attorney Samuel J. Foley.

The presentment was handed up to County Judge James M. Barrett after the grand jurors had been in session more than 10 hours—their longest sitting since the case was brought before them last month.

The session was held, the presentment explained, because one of their number had given to the citizens committee to reopen the Flynn case an affidavit criticizing the conduct of the inquiry by Foley—an affidavit that was made the basis of a petition by the committee to Gov. Herbert Lehman to renew the investigation.

The criticisms voiced in this document, the grand jury explained in its second presentment, were made under a misapprehension by the member of the panel who wrote the affidavit.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY CAR PURCHASED APRIL 4, 1937. STILL IN DAILY SERVICE STANDARD OIL COMPANY
675 483

This car is still traveling after 103,555* miles

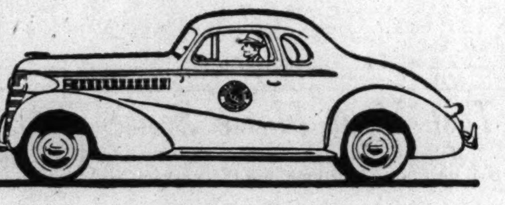
Its life story—and the history of its tires—may help you keep your car rolling for the duration



THIS car is known on our books as No. 35930. It's driven every day by one of our sales organization, come rain, come snow, come storm or fair weather. Yes! We're prescribing for you the same procedure that has enabled us to drive our cars usually about 100,000 miles—and then have them in such good condition they bring better than book value on the trade-in!

No. 35930 has not been a "gay young blade." It never led a "fast life." The top speed has been 50 miles an hour. Moderate speed is one reason why its tires have averaged 37,656 miles—and could have continued in service far longer. (They were replaced long before going "bald.")

We've been mighty fussy about No. 35930's diet. It's lived exclusively on Standard Red Crown Gasoline and Standard's Iso-Vis Motor Oil. That's important to remember. These days, especially, nothing's too good for your car. To make it run well, last long, you can't do better than to team up with those two great standbys!

And to give it the best possible "break," get well acquainted with the Car Conservation Schedule, now featured by your Standard Oil dealer. The procedure it prescribes has been the "mainspring" of No. 35930's existence. This schedule is a program of regular service and inspection which wards off most car troubles, prolongs life, and keeps repair expenses low.

Make up your mind to enjoy the full mileage built into your car and tires! See your Standard Oil dealer today. Have him enroll your car on his Car Conservation Schedule. It'll help keep you rolling! Remember, a nation on wheels is a stronger nation. Keep America on wheels—help win the war. ★ ★ ★ Buy United States War Savings Bonds and Stamps to help guarantee victory.

★ ★ Tested tire gauges used here to insure accurate pressure, give longer tire life . . . ★ ★

IMPORTANT: Inaccurate air pressure can rob you of many miles. You can't get accurate pressure from inaccurate tire gauges—of which there are many. Look for the sign at Standard Oil dealers' which reads: "Tested tire gauges used here—to insure accurate pressure, give longer tire life."

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

SAILORS FROM THE PLAINS.

In 1910 a very large man appeared as a very small point beyond acres of heads. Small boys were lifted to get their first glimpse of a President of the United States. He was addressing the throngs who had gathered to witness the opening of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. A few years later the dawn over Lake Michigan was greeted by bugles from a dozen circling camps as the modest prewar establishment grew overnight into a city of barracks and tents. On Wednesday afternoons John Philip Sousa marshaled the greatest band ever assembled. A hundred thousand sailors passed thru Great Lakes during the war.

Great Lakes Naval Training Station was a unique experiment in naval policy. European navies had always drawn their recruits from the seacoast. The French manned their ships with the fishermen of Brittany and the British and Germans found the majority of their recruits in their great seaport cities. Our nation went to the center of a continent and there established a training station which over the years has sent hundreds of thousands of sailors to the fleet, the majority of whom donned navy blue before they had ever smelled salt water.

It was a fortunate experiment, for it made the navy a national rather than a sectional institution. Its guns are manned and its fires stoked by boys from the Texas cow country, the Colorado mines, and the farms of the great central west, as well as from the seaports of New England, the gulf, and the Pacific coast. Nearly two-fifths of our naval personnel today is from the 13 midwestern states of the 9th naval district.

The navy is starting a recruiting drive in the Chicago area. It will have soon a two ocean fleet and it already has a two ocean job. Its fighters sustained the first blow of the war, and in the succeeding months had eagerly and with courageous skill returned that blow wherever they could find the enemy.

In its present stages this is primarily a war at sea. Before troops can fight they must be carried and guarded across the oceans. In the Pacific the stings of Pearl Harbor, Bataan, and Corregidor can only be wiped out by the fighting ships and fighting planes bridging vast distances that must be traveled before we can come to grips with the Japanese.

If a man is looking for a fight the navy can guarantee it to him. Its fighting spirit is the same which imbued the men of Jones, Perry, and Farragut, and Dewey and Sims, but technically it is a far different organization, a vast collection of machinery manned by specialists of a hundred sorts. The training which it offers in all these specialties is of types which will be most useful later in civilian life.

The navy has only to issue its call to receive an overwhelming response from the sons of the middle west, so many of whom are already in its ranks. The fighting youth from the cities and farms of Chicagoland are not looking for berths behind the desks in Washington. They prefer the posts of honor on the decks of the carriers and destroyers, in the cockpits of the PT boats, at the torpedo tubes of the submarines, and in the canopy of planes overhead.

ANOTHER JOE.

An injustice has been done in these columns to Mr. Joe Burman, a respected citizen of our town. In a recent discussion of a fight between Billy Conn, the heavyweight boxer, and his father-in-law, some remarks were made about the inadvisability of professional pugilists indulging in private fights. It was recalled that Jack Dempsey never rose to the bait of a smaller boxer who promised to meet him informally and lick him. A treacherous memory suggested that the challenger was Mr. Burman, but this is not so. It was another Joe.

Mr. Burman, who has retired from the ring after a long and honorable career, informs us that he and Mr. Dempsey have always been on the best of terms. Mr. Burman says that we must have been thinking of Joe Benjamin, and now that he mentions it, we were in fact thinking of that gentleman.

We take this means of correcting the error. The entire episode shows what will happen when the nonprofessional relies on his recollections of old, unhappy, far-off things, and battles long ago.

FOR POSTWAR DELIVERY.

A story from New York in Monday's TRIBUNE told of a plan to build up a backlog of orders for consumers' durable goods. The plan is being advocated by the marketing research group of the Advertising Club of New York, and provides for orders to be placed at once for automobiles, refrigerators, and other articles, the production of which has been or is soon to be stopped. The buyers would be assured of getting first choice of what was produced after the war. They would start making monthly payments at once. The funds as paid in would be invested in war savings bonds and held in trust until after the war.

The good point in the scheme is that it would siphon off some of the extra purchasing power during the war and thus play a part in keeping commodity prices from rising. If this is the main idea it is a dead ringer for Hitler's Volkswagen plan. This was the little $250 automobile Hitler told his working people about, as he cut down on their rations. He persuaded large numbers of them to make advance instalment payments on their cars, which were to be delivered as soon as production of them could be arranged. The people made the payments and the receipts were no doubt invested in German government bonds, but the automobiles were never forthcoming. Many Germans paid in full for cars which Hitler will never be able to deliver to them.

The New York Advertising club plan differs from the Volkswagen arrangement in being completely on the square. It is, however, of doubtful usefulness. It is hard to believe that any considerable number of people would feel inclined to make regular payments on an automobile of uncertain appearance and specifications, to be delivered at an indefinite time in the future. And where are the manufacturers who will undertake to supply cars a year or several years hence at prices to be determined now? Manufacturers of many articles now are obliged to warn that price lists are on a day to day basis. Any one who would be so reckless as to make a contract for a manufactured article at a fixed price for delivery at an uncertain period in the future should have his head examined.

It is no doubt assumed by the proponents of the plan that something ought to be done now to be sure that automobile makers and the others will have orders when the time comes for factories to change back to peace work. There needn't be any concern on that score. The accumulated demands will be enormous.

WAR FRENZY AND WAR WEARINESS.

Reporters from Germany and Italy who have come out with the exchanged diplomatic and consular staffs warn Americans against too much expectation of popular or military revolts against the Nazis in Germany or the Fascists in Italy. The Germans, however, are taking a punishment which wasn't in their Furor's crystal ball as he read the future to them, and if it were not for the Nazis in Mussolini's corner he would be hanging head down on the ropes.

The Italians, as a sensible people, have had all of the new order they can stomach—and more. Gone are the days when Benito wore the purple and a chaplet, rode in a chariot and answered to the name of Cæsar. He is one of the lesser Hitler yes men. Laval of France could brush him aside in the anteroom, and Haile Selassie, the Lion of Judah, back on his throne in Ethiopia, could, and probably does, give him the African variation of the Bronx cheer.

The warning against hope thinking or wish thinking is desirable and even imperative. If there is defeat in the thoughts of the German and Italian peoples, its corrosion will sink deeper as the war comes closer and closer to them. Nevertheless, there is this bit of optimism in the air. Frenzy distills its own antidote. The greater the frenzy the shorter its duration. Unless all human experience is valueless that axiom is true.

The French revolutionary terror under Robespierre began in 1793 and it ended July 27, 1794, when the weary French, the very moderates who had been overrun, caught him at the Hotel de Ville and executed him with, eventually, eighty of his party members. That set a speed record in the liquidation of miscalculators, such as Mr. Churchill finds Mussolini to be.

Hitler is another Robespierre, with most of the Frenchman's vices and few of his virtues. Hitler recently asked for summary powers over the lives of all Germans. That power was given Robespierre less than two months before his enemies broke in on him. Some extraordinary and appalling human movements can run around their clock from the stroke of 12 to the stroke of 12.

It may be recalled that Germany to get Hitler had somehow or other to defeat the aspirations of a majority of its people. The Germans have known how to concentrate their military forces but never how to organize free political elements. In the first Republican German election there were 10 parties electing representatives to the Weimar constitutional convention. The moderate Ebert Socialist party led off with 11,500,000 votes and with other moderate parties, including the Catholic center, represented a majority against everything Hitler afterward achieved.

That was long ago, in 1919, but only 10 years ago, in Hindenburg's second election, 22,065,000 Germans voted against Hitler's 13,418,000, in spite of his armies, his hypnotism, and his promise of relief from frustration and imposition. Where have all these people gone? They are not all dead. They have not all been murdered or put in concentration camps. They may have had their moments, some of them, when they thought Adolf was right. How many can have that idea now?

War is not for a majority of people a desirable condition of human life, particularly this sort of a war which crushes everybody in its path, and Germans don't like it any more than others. People like their family life, their well supplied tables, their amusements, and the peaceable round of existence. Even Germany, which to date has had the upper hand in Europe and has frightfully abused its power, has had a long stretch of deprivations and sufferings which make men weary in body and soul.

The Germans have inflicted defeat on others and they are afraid of it themselves. But conditions at home are becoming more and more intolerable and the danger to Germany visibly grows. We need not wholly deprive ourselves of the thought that as the pressure increases the German desire to get rid of the cause of the present miseries will itself increase. As we have said, great frenzies often produce their own antidotes.

THE "TOO-LITTLE-TOO-LATE" AXIS.

[Christian Science Monitor.]

It was Britain's war effort that Mr. Lloyd George branded "too little, too late," and the phrase can be used as a helpful spur to all the united nations. Yet when history casts the ultimate reckoning those words will perchance be found to have a more fundamental application to the axis.

Der Fuehrer was a man of boundless ambition, but the new order he conceived was predestined to fail because Hitler and his Nazis were too little in both mind and spirit to comprehend the dignity of man. The pattern of a super-race was too scrimped in its human dimensions to be tolerated in a world where ideals of universal brotherhood had been spreading for 2,000 years. Nazi avarice, mendacity, cruelty, and race hatred were too small a pedestal for a global ambition. So, too, was Japan's fanatic exclusionism too narrow a base for its fanatic imperialism.

The axis will also be marked "too late." The revival of castoff medieval systems might have been accomplished, at least temporarily, had these aggressive tyrannies arisen two centuries earlier. But when Hitler and Hirohito arrived, bells of freedom had been ringing in men's ears for many decades. Self-determination for each nation had become recognized as reasonable and just, and, however haltingly, was on the way. Mighty forces were working in the world against which the Nazis and Japanese could not prevail, be the cost of resistance what it might. The axis was too late.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

THE FIRST HUNDRED YEARS.

Let us consider the Second Presbyterian church, now celebrating its centennial, in terms of architecture. Here is a story that runs from prairie carpentry to massive forms of Victorian Gothic, and carries glimpses of John Van Osdel, who deserves the title of Chicago's Master Builder.

* * *

The first home of the Second Presbyterian was described by William Bross, an early editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in these words:

"It was a one-story, shantylike structure that had been patched out at one end to meet the wants of the increasing congregation. It stood on Randolph street, south side, a little east of Clark. It certainly gave no promise of the antique but splendid church that before the fire stood on the corner of Washington street and Wabash avenue, or that still more elaborate and costly building at the corner of Michigan avenue and 20th street."

* * *

The second home, "antique but splendid," was regarded as one of the finest churches in the west. It had a 164-foot spire, rising from a tower whose great bell and clock made it Chicago's Big Ben. See Henry Ericsson's "Sixty Years a Builder":

"The deep E-flat tones of the great bell in the tower of Dr. Patterson's church thru the years, many have said, bore in upon the consciousness of people of all creeds and walks of life."

* * *

The church was built of a bituminous limestone which, after a few years, exuded dark stains. The gray walls became curiously mottled, and the Second Presbyterian was nicknamed the Spotted Church. In Andreas' history of Chicago, it is recorded that the profane spoke of it in jest as "the Church of the Holy Zebra."

* * *

Hence Editor Bross' adjective, "antique." Some of this mottled limestone, salvaged after the fire of 1871, was used in the walls of the present church and some went into the Presbyterian church of Lake Forest. For an excellent picture of the Spotted Church, see "Architecture in Old Chicago," by Thomas E. Tallmadge.

IN MEMORY OF SOLDIER POETS.

Sleep, Rupert Brooke, of England born,
By war from your sweet gardens torn;
Tho far from Britain lies your mold,
The love you won shall not grow cold;
The lonely island where you rest
By every freeman shall be blest.
Sleep, Seeger. As your rendezvous
You did not fail but proved death-true,
So shall we not betray your trust.
Your weapons now are black with rust,
But countless millions strive today
That Liberty may have her way.

Joyce Kilmer, sleep. God's lovely trees
Are vibrant with your memories.
A laughing youth, you went away
To sunny France and Rouge Bouquet.
You fought, you sang. Your martial strain
Bids hosts to follow in your train.

Sleep, John McCrae. We hear your call;
The torch you lighted shall not fall.
Inspired by your despairing breath,
Our lads shall vanquish hell and death
And drive again that brutal foe
From once fair lands, "where poppies blow."

Confession of a Sacrilegious Hoodlum.

Some one brought Billy Sunday into the conversation; that reminded me of the time the South Bend Tribune called me a "sacrilegious hoodlum."

It was about 30 years ago and a friend and I rode our motorcycles down to Billy Sunday's immense tent beside the St. Joe river, parked our 'cycles, and entered.

We were, despite our youth, there to learn and not to scoff. We were intensely interested in the gyrations of Preacher Sunday as well as his words, which were good. At last he called out several times for the Lord to "walk down these very aisles." I looked around and saw an old man with white beard walking slowly down the aisle, poked my friend in the ribs, and said, "Here he comes."

We burst into uncontrolable laughter, beat the ushers to the door by inches, and rode for miles before we could stop laughing. Next day the South Bend Trib said, "Sacrilegious hoodlums created a disturbance."

I'm still sorry, but it is still funny to me.

SPIREA FOUNTAINS.

The fountains of spirea break and play
In bubbling beauty, pouring out their spray
In lavish loveliness along the street,
Or flinging little pearls about our feet.

No thought of war or bitterness is there,
No poison gas of hate along the air,
No treachery, no cruelty, or greed—
They are mankind's, and blossoms pay no heed.

No waterfall more wonderful is made,
No jeweled faceting in a cascade;
Spirea whiteness breaks in froth and foam
About the vast estate or poor man's home.

A Man Who Didn't Vote for Lincoln.

One of the most curious Lincoln memorials was discovered some years ago by Vincent Robbins Jr., near Uniontown, Pa. Out in the woods he observed some strange markings on a beech tree. It was not difficult to make out the original inscription, altho it had been made over 75 years previous to its discovery. The tree had increased in growth four times its size in 1860, but the expanding letters and figures could be easily read. This is the unique announcement:

"1860 Nov. 9—Lincoln is elected—Great God."

"Lincoln Lore."

A neighbor's youngster displayed three fingers as I passed him on the street, and when I inquired as to the meaning of the gesture he replied seriously, "Wubblya for wictory." Shanty Al.

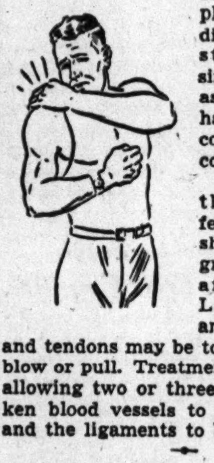
SHOULDER PAIN FROM AN INFLAMED BURSA.

MOST physicians encounter numerous cases of pain in the shoulder. Despite careful X-ray studies, no sign of fracture, dislocation, or organic disease is disclosed. Nevertheless, the sufferer will complain that, in addition to loss of strength, such simple maneuvers as combing the hair cannot be accomplished with comfort.



We all realize that many defects that will not show on a photographic film can afflict a joint. Like a sprained ankle, ligaments and tendons may be torn by a sudden blow or pull. Treatment calls for rest, allowing two or three weeks for broken blood vessels to undergo repair and the ligaments to become firm.

Another condition, however, must be kept in mind—namely, a swollen or irritated bursa [bursitis]. These structures are not present at birth, but develop as the need arises. They constitute pads or sacs of rather soft and resilient material over which tendons glide smoothly when the parts are moved.

But they are not free from attacks of inflammation. In fact, trouble may first appear in the pulley [tendon], later spreading to the cushion itself. Because of irritation, if adhesions form, we can well understand that the tug and pull when one attempts to raise the arm will be followed by discomfort. Rotation—obliging the arm to swing in a circle—may likewise be impossible.

The basic fault must lie in some weakness which has arisen because of illness. In addition, certain incidental upsets, such as chronic indigestion, infection within the air passages, or the absorption of toxins from a remote region of the body, may constitute the "starter."

Unless something is done, and that with reasonable promptness, the disturbance becomes chronic. It is no uncommon experience to find one of these protecting devices filled with firm, hard granules — deposits of lime.

As a rule, these episodes will become more severe until the patient is obliged to resort to a hypnotic for relief. But, in most instances, after the malady has reached its peak, a gradual recession will be observed until finally there will be but one remaining tender spot.

Now and then the disorder is self-curing. Rest and heat [diathermy] may hasten recovery. With other victims, however, it may be necessary to immobilize the joint so that movement is impossible.

As soon as the acute symptoms subside, gentle manipulation may be employed. Sometimes the injection of a local anesthetic repeated two or three times will accomplish wonders. As long as the effects of the drug last, the patient is comfortable. As the influence of the chemical wears away, the sensitiveness will disappear.

Occasionally, surgery seems to offer the greatest promise. One can endure two or three sleepless nights but, after weeks of intense suffering, the patient will welcome almost any procedure designed to bring alleviation. In such circumstances, the sac may be exposed, the contents evacuated, or the bursa removed completely. There is practically no danger in such an operation and, in skilled hands, recovery is speedy. But most of us will prefer to try the simple methods first.

WARTLESS.

Mrs. G. writes: My mother lives with me and both she and my son have warts. If they are contagious why haven't I "caught" them as I do all the housework and laundry?

REPLY.

Apparently you have a natural immunity.

COOK CAN'T SUPPLY.

J. W. writes: Are there any foods which produce hormones?

REPLY.

No. These chemicals are manufactured by specialized cells within the body. They then act upon some other gland or organ, stimulating it to function.

SKINLIKE.

REPLY.

Sacs which contain skin elements such as hair follicles, sweat and sebaceous glands, etc.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

PLACING RESPONSIBILITY.

Harvey, Ill., May 13.—Your editorial concerning Michelson's attack on the Republican party was well done, timely, and the type of courageous job that some one must do if democracy is to be preserved. However, it seems to me that there was one important point overlooked. I pass it on in the hopes that you will find some time and means of getting this story over to the public, too.

You will remember about the time Hitler came into power large blank checks were voted the President—this money to be spent at his discretion. He could have used it to mechanize the army, modernize the navy and air force. Instead, he spent the money on "raking leaves," the "model community" at Arthurdale, W. Va., the Passamaquoddy dam in Maine, and similar wild ventures. The objective of the "pump priming" was never reached. Had the money been spent on the army, navy, and air force, it would both have stimulated heavy industry and made us prepared today.

A BLOOD DONOR OVERPARKS.

Chicago, May 16.—I donated a pint of blood to the Red Cross Friday and made arrangements for a second donation. I parked my car across from the Red Cross building, which was permissible till 4 p. m., but on my return found Policeman A. O'Connor placing a ticket on my car because I'd overparked 10 minutes.

I explained where I'd been and showed him my Red Cross card. He said it was too late to do anything about the ticket, but if I took it to the administration building they'd quickly see that justice was done. I drove there and was referred to a Sergt. Sheehan. He also informed me that absolutely nothing could be done about the ticket and also told me that Officer O'Connor had misinformed me when he sent me to see them. He told me to go to the city hall and obtain a court hearing.

I drove to city hall, but was told I couldn't get a court hearing for two weeks. Not knowing whether or not I'd be in Chicago the date of the hearing, I paid my $1 fine. I only hope this reaches the eyes of the judge who hears cases against people violating the parking laws in the 600 block of South Michigan boulevard while donating their blood to their country.

APPRECIATED THE LILACS.

Chicago, May 15.—I have been reading the various letters of thanks for the lilacs, which you so kindly distributed to the various hospitals and institutions on May 5, Lilac day. I should like to add my word of thanks. I am a shut-in, who is all alone, and to say that the lilacs were appreciated is putting it mildly. I should also like to thank Mrs. Grace and her co-worker, who brought them, for their kindness.

TAG DAY FOR SERVICE RELIEF.

Chicago, May 12.—Would it be in line at this time to suggest a tag day for army, navy, and marine relief? This venture could be handled and supervised by the capable Girl and Boy Scout organizations of this country.

EDWARD F. RADOLL.

THE WOMEN'S ARMY.

Rochester, Ind., May 14.—With all due respect and patriotism for my country, I violently object to this women's army. As a comparison, the third officer of the women's army corps will get a $1,500 a year salary, while $1,000 a year is a little above average in most states for school teachers. The common belief is that teachers are well paid. Out of this salary they pay their own traveling expenses, plus their board and room, which I presume is furnished by the government to the women's army.

We are all destined to pay even higher taxes than we are now paying, so why add more with unnecessary salaries? Probably most women officers have a husband or other means of support. I know any teacher will willingly do her part—even to driving a tank, and not need a uniform or expect an exorbitant salary.

MARY JANE HOOD.

GIVING THE YELLOW KID A RIDE.

Chicago, May 16.—The account of "The Yellow Kid's" return to Chicago by auto has me greatly perturbed. Deputies Keenan and Feeney drove 717 miles in 17½ hours "with time out only for an occasional sandwich and a bit of gasoline."

Assuming that they made two 15 minute stops for food and gasoline, the officers managed an average speed of more than 42 miles an hour. My driving experience has shown me that one must travel 65 or 70 miles an hour on the open highway in order to maintain such an average. This is certainly not in accord with the 40 mile edict.

Would it not be in keeping to suggest that our public officials be more practical and use the railroads for such journeys during these times of tire and gasoline rationing?

JOHN V. ELLISON.

ICE CREAM VENDORS.

Chicago, May 13.—Conserve gas and rubber! Cut out unnecessary driving! These are the statements one hears today.

Well, how come nothing is done to curb the unnecessary gas and rubber used by ice cream vendors. Surely, if there is any driving that is unnecessary, it is that done by the many ice cream trucks that roam the streets day and night, burning up gasoline and using up tires that some other industry could use to good advantage.

CHEATING ON JOB INSURANCE.

Chicago, May 7.—In my office, as well as others, married women are securing unemployment compensation who are not worthy of it. One woman that I know of has drawn her compensation for 16 weeks. She wanted to be discharged. A job should be offered these individuals immediately and if they refuse to accept it the compensation should be stopped. Of course it's cheaper for them to stay at home and collect than go out to work.

IRISH EYES.

Chicago, May 17.—My friends and I hurried quickly thru our Sunday dinner in order to be on time for the much heralded "I Am An American Day" program at Grant park. We reached the Balbo bridge and were all set to hear some inspiring patriotic songs, speeches, and music but, lo and behold, we were treated with "Rose O'Day" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." When one observed that the majority of children in the parade and public attending the program were of Slavonic descent, it makes one wonder why sing about Irish eyes. Of course no one could object to the singing of these lovely songs if it were "I am Irish day" we were celebrating. Do you not think it is high time the Irish stop monopolizing every occasion?

REFUTING MICHELSON.

Washington, D. C., May 14.—Don't forget when you write another editorial similar to "Charley the Smear," which appeared in your May 12 issue, that, on March 18 John McCormack, Democratic leader, inserted a statement by Rep. Sam Rayburn in the Congressional Record, page A1175, which contained the following words: "Congress is being criticized, but congress has given the President every law and every dollar he has asked for defense purposes."

WOMEN MAIL CARRIERS.

Chicago, May 9.—With all this hue and cry about putting women on men's jobs what, about the mailmen, why not split their routes and put women on those jobs?

Why take a man off a screw machine who may be making vital war parts and give a mail carrier deferment when women could do his work?

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

GUARDIANSHIP.

Chicago, May 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Could you tell me how I could go about obtaining papers to become a guardian for my younger sister? She is 20 years of age. My mother passed away a few weeks ago and left an insurance policy in her name.

2. She will be unable to collect the money unless she has a guardian. I am five years her senior and [3] have taken care of every other legal matter except this one. W. A.

1. Since girls are of legal age at 18 you are not entitled to obtain such guardianship papers.

2. You do not explain your basis for this statement. Is there express wording in the will or are you merely making an assumption?

MOVIE SLAYER CALLED INSANE BY 2 ALIENISTS

Describe Him as Victim of Schizophrenia.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

Clarence McDonald sat poker-faced yesterday in Criminal court as two psychiatrists testified that in their opinion he was insane the afternoon of Feb. 24 when he shot and killed Dorothy Broz, his high school sweetheart, in the balcony of the Palace theater. They added that they consider him still insane.

Dr. Jefferson Klepfer [top] and Dr. Samuel Kraines.

The first witness, Dr. Samuel Kraines, an assistant state alienist and an instructor at the University of Illinois, told of examining McDonald April 25 and 8 or 10 times since. He said Clarence had mentioned hearing voices whisper to him at night in his cell.

"Clarence told me that he heard them only at night and that while they didn't seem to make much sense they told him everything would be all right," the alienist said. "At first, he told me, he couldn't identify the voices. Then, he said, he knew that one was that of his dead father."

Story of the Shooting.

The questioning by Defense Attorney Ben Aronin then turned to the shooting itself.

"He told how he took the girl to the theater," Dr. Kraines said, "and of not being just aware of what was going on, and finally of getting up and running. Later he looked at the gun and saw it had been fired, he said, and began to feel he had done something, but he wasn't quite sure what. When I asked why he did it he said he was in the dark for a reason; that he loved Dorothy and they were going to be married."

Dr. Kraines then testified that, in his opinion, Clarence is suffering from schizophrenia, a condition of insanity "rather common in the United States."

Asked to explain, he said such insanity resulted in what is termed a "split mind," and that in the latter stages its victims must be confined, suffer from all sorts of delusions—including those of grandeur and persecution—hear voices, and, at last, can be pricked with pins without feeling them. Such persons, he said, have a tendency to day dream, to build mental images to give them the satisfaction they don't get in real life.

Prosecutors Object to Lecture.

"If a person like this went out with a girl and she were nice to him," Dr. Kraines declared, "he might see himself as giving her castles and anything else she wishes. He . . ."

Assistant State's Attorneys Leslie Curtis and Francis McCurrie objected at this point to what they termed his "lecture," and were upheld.

Dr. Kraines was excused until tomorrow and was replaced on the witness stand by Dr. Jefferson Klepfer, head of the Wisconsin state hospital at Waupun.

Klepfer said he had examined McDonald twice and gave his opinion that, judging by McDonald's mental condition early last month, the defendant was suffering from schizophrenia at the time of the killing: Defense Attorney Frank Ferlic then read a four page hypothetical question, ending:

"Have you an opinion as to whether that person [McDonald] at the time of the shooting of the girl was sane or insane?"

Klepfer said he had. Insane.

Asked About Headaches.

On cross-examination by Curtis Dr. Klepfer was asked whether the fact that McDonald had been in jail two months could have unbalanced him; whether he had examined his eyes to see whether they might account for the headaches, and whether there was any way to tell whether the answers which McDonald gave to the psychiatrists were true.

Dr. Klepfer said he thought the confinement would have no effect on the mentality of a normal person; that he did not examine McDonald's vision—altho he did examine his eyes—and that he knew of no way to tell whether McDonald might be giving faked answers.

Dr. Klepfer admitted that many of McDonald's actions were not those of an insane person.

"But he had lucid intervals at times," he said, "and still does. His conscious mind gains control at times, but can't keep control."

Resume Trial Today.

Judge Dunne then adjourned court until this morning, when Kraines will be cross-examined and another defense alienist heard.

There was no hearing in the morning since the court adjourned to the Criminal court records vault where Judge Dunne sat thru a showing of "Hellzapoppin," the picture which was just over when Miss Broz was killed. Judge Dunne ruled that it could not be shown the jury, as the defense wished.

MEXICO CITY, May 19 (AP).—The Inter-American Press congress approved a model press law today for presentation to all American republics.

The terms set forth that the liberty of the press is inviolable; that all persons are free to express their thoughts in writing with the authors being held responsible for signed articles and editors for unsigned articles; that the press should consider personal life inviolable; that articles attacking government officials should not be considered injurious if they do not deal with their personal lives; that the press may not be confiscated under any conditions.

WEEKLY EDITOR FIGHTS CHARGES HE'S SEDITIOUS

Testifies Before Postal Board Hearing.

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—Court Asher of Muncie, Ind., defended his weekly newspaper, the X-Ray, against allegations of seditious content today with an assertion that he got his information from some metropolitan newspapers and the Congressional Record.

Asher appeared at a hearing to determine whether his mail privilege should be suspended or revoked because of statements described as seditious by Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Maintains Faith in America.

Thruout his defense, which he said was solely to refute the inference that he was un-American, Asher maintained his faith in America and his hate for isms and declared that he was "humbly sorry" if he wrote anything which jeopardized the war effort.

At the start of the hearing, the Hoosier editor said he had depended upon publishers of newspapers for guidance in preparing material for the little newspapers which he got out almost single handed.

Much of the government case was given to reading items from the X-Ray.

[Calvin W. Hassell, assistant solicitor of the postoffice department, said that an excerpt from a Tribune editorial on the death of Richard Graff, a Tribune employé, who was killed in the Philippines, was among quotations from metropolitan newspapers reprinted by X-ray and which the government introduced in evidence before the board.]

Asher explained that he had lost confidence in the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, one of the publishers he quoted, when the Royal Oak, Mich., pastor yielded the mailing rights for the magazine Social Justice without a defense. Asher added, under questioning, that he intended to repudiate Coughlin in the X-Ray—"when I get time."

Appears as Own Counsel.

Closing the hearing, Hassell declared that Asher was "not the sort of American who is entitled to the second class mailing privilege."

The postoffice department presented witnesses who testified that material broadcast by the axis governments resembled that which appeared in the X-Ray.

Asher appeared alone and acted as his own counsel. Placing himself on the witness stand, he offered to answer any question about anything and to waive immunity.

"I want it perfectly understood," he declared, "that I'm not connected with any damn foreign outfit."

SCIENCE MUSEUM GETS COLLECTION OF TIME DEVICES

A collection of watches, clocks, and other devices showing the evolution of time keeping in the last four centuries yesterday was formally presented to the Museum of Science and Industry by the Elgin National Watch company.

The presentation was made by T. Albert Potter, president of the company, and accepted for the museum by Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago. More than 800 persons attended the presentation.

Many of the exhibits are originals and old; others are reconstructed from ancient originals. Still others are modern. Included is a reproduction of the time pendulum invented by Galileo in 1581; sun dials, hour sand glasses, an Egyptian water clock which marked time by the seepage of water from a large bowl into a smaller bowl, candles which told time by changing shadows as they burned down a calibrated oil lamp, and an early pocket watch nearly as large as a fist. The modern timepieces include a tiny wrist watch and its counterpart enlarged 1,000 times.

TELLS JURY OF FLING WITH WIFE AFTER HE PLANNED HER DEATH

Allen Stuver, 23 years old, who confessed having strangled his wife Sunday evening because of her affairs with other men, yesterday related the details of the slaying to a coroner's jury which returned a verdict of murder and recommended that he be held to the grand jury.

Stuver told the jury he had suspected his wife, who was 23, of having flirted with other men but that he had not known she was unfaithful until Saturday when his sister told him of the affairs. "I planned then to kill my wife and myself," Stuver said.

"I met her Sunday afternoon at her request and took her to several of her favorite taverns and then to a ballroom," he said after the inquest. "I wanted to let her do what she liked, to spend the day enjoying herself, because I had decided to kill her."

Stuver's mother, Mrs. Ellen Stuver, 8046 Bishop street, and his sister, Mrs. Lorraine Kemmerer, of Oak Lawn, were at the inquest. They discovered the murder and Stuver, who was unconscious, Monday night. He had slashed his left wrist and turned on a gas burner in the room after strangling his wife.

ASSAIL REFUSAL TO DIVERT GRAINS TO WAR PROGRAM

Senators Blame Forces Inside WPB and RFC.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Members of the senate agriculture committee, in debate on the 680 million dollar agriculture department appropriation bill, today charged that monopolistic interests in the War Production Board and the Reconstruction Finance corporation have blocked the use of surplus grain to produce alcohol for explosives and synthetic rubber.

The senators contended that the sugar rationing program would be unnecessary if surplus wheat and corn, instead of sugar cane, were used to produce industrial alcohol.

Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], chairman of an agriculture subcommittee investigating possibilities for the utilization of surplus farm products, and Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], a member of that committee, made the principal charges against the WPB and the RFC.

Brooks Charges Dereliction.

They were joined by Sen. Richard B. Russell [D., Ga.], manager of the appropriation bill, and Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], a member of the appropriations subcommittee which conducted hearings on the bill. Both Russell and Brooks charged dereliction of duty on the part of the two government agencies.

The senate was considering a house provision forbidding the sale of surplus farm commodities, owned or controled by the government, at prices below parity except for relief and seed purposes and for the production of alcohol. A senate committee amendment would permit the sale of not more than 125 million bushels of wheat at prices not lower than 85 per cent of the parity price for corn. Corn state senators argued that such a program would depress the price of corn.

Brooks Demands Reasons.

Sen. Brooks insisted that if such a provision should be adopted, the senate should undertake to find out "why we have not developed the machinery with which to make alcohol out of the grain of America." Utilization of all the new uses of agricultural products, he said, would make this nation self-sustaining.

"I think some persons have been derelict in their duty," replied Sen. Russell. "Certainly there has been a weak point somewhere, inasmuch as we have not already utilized all our surplus grain in the production of alcohol. Apparently we are faced with a sugar shortage in this country and a sugar rationing program which could have been averted if some one had diverted grain rather than sugar to the production of alcohol."

Day by Day on the Farm

By GAIL COMPTON

New Steers Have Troubles

May 19, 1942.

THE young feeder cattle at the farm have been having uncomfortable days and nights since they arrived a week ago. They are being pastured on bluegrass near the tool shed and lack of barn space makes it necessary for them to remain outdoors day and night.

The first day they arrived at the farm, the weather was warm and pleasant. Since then, however, they have been drenched by days of rain. When the weather turned cold and temperatures ranged down in the low 30's, the farm manager herded the cattle together and drove them down to the sheep barn. Here they were crowded together and given shelter.

To replace the plentiful supply of grass they had been getting, the steers were given hay and a little silage. They consumed the hay but refused the silage. The manager was hoping to palm off the silage on them as the silo is nearly empty and he wanted to get it cleaned up before the first hay crop is made.

Satisfied with Bluegrass.

When the little steers moved back to their pasture they were offered silage in the open feed bunks. They refused it again. Oats and cottonseed meal were sprinkled over the fodder but the cattle couldn't be fooled. They were completely satisfied with the bluegrass and didn't seem to want to try a new kind of forage.

While the steers were getting soaked by the cold rains, the pigs were sheltered and warm in their farrowing house, and one sow had 12 pigs on the coldest day. Of the 12, only 9 are left as she rolled on two of them and one was born dead. If the sow can raise the nine it still will make a nice sized litter. Two other sows that farrowed a month ago had bad luck and have only four pigs to show for the expense and feed lavished on them.

Evening chores were interrupted recently when a swarm of bees was discovered and every one took part in the chase. Despite all sorts of professional and amateur advice, it took two days before the swarm was placed in a hive.

Found on Tree Branch.

The swarm was discovered hanging from a low branch on a tree near one of the farm homes. It was a large swarm and the men estimated that there were six pounds of bees in the bunch.

Hoping the bees would remember they are not supposed to sting when swarming, the manager cut the branch from the tree and carried the swarm to a hive. He shook the bees off onto some white sacks placed near the hive opening. The bees looked as if they would go in so they were left alone.

The next morning the swarm was discovered clustered at the base of a small tree. The only way they could be moved was to brush enough of them aside so the tree could be sawed. This was done and again the bees were placed near the hive and the entrance was smeared with honey. This failed to entice them in so the manager lifted the swarm, opened the top of the hive, and shook them in. One lone bee took offense at this treatment and circled the manager's head a few times and then lit on his shoulder. Before it could sting him, it was sent to its heaven with a smack of a glove. The bees have stayed in the hive so far and probably will remain.

War's Ill Wind Blows Good in Realm of Books

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Two important conferences in New York City recently attended by your literary editor have convinced her that the tragically ill wind of war is blowing good to at least that percentage of the American people who are lovers of books. The annual convention of the American Booksellers' association and the Council on Books in Wartime, sponsored by the leading organizations of educators, publishers, and writers, were both primarily concerned with the status of books in wartime. Both came to the same conclusion—that books may well become a more and more vital part in the lives of all Americans.

The rationing of gasoline, blackouts, and mounting taxes—all urging, if not compelling, civilians to stay at home of an evening—ought to introduce a great many to the joys of reading.

In England since the war began books have been recognized by the government as such excellent morale builders that not only is there no purchase tax on books but the government itself has practically gone into the book business by printing and distributing, either free or for very small sums, informative books which they feel their countrymen should have, said Eric Knight, English author of "This Above All," at one of the meetings.

The American government evidently has no intention of entering the field of book publishing, but representatives of the government were present at each of the sessions of the Booksellers' convention and of the Council on Books in Wartime and gave every one the definite feeling that the publication and distribution of books would officially be looked upon as vital. One phrase in a long letter sent to the final banquet of the Booksellers' convention by President Roosevelt gave this unqualified assurance: "It is more important that your work should go on now than it has ever been at any other time in our history." The President's letter also emphasized: "In this war we know books are weapons."

In the first World war there was a marked increase in reading of books. I talked to the leading publishers both in New York and in Boston, and with only one or two exceptions they expressed the belief that the book business will be better this fall than it has been for some time.

The head of the largest group of affiliated bookshops in the country told me that its business already is up 40 per cent outside New York [altho only 20 per cent in New York]. He cited one surprise sale in the Detroit shop. A defense worker came in to buy a technical book which had been recommended to him as a help in getting a better job. He looked around, said, "I've always wanted to buy some books," and left with 70 volumes of the Modern Library series.

They tell in New York of the famous practice blackout in Times Square that a hundred thousand people from the Bronx came down to watch. The motion picture marquees and shop windows on Broadway cast blasts of light on the crowds which fill the sidewalks at midnight, but there is appreciably less motion in the New York streets and, one may optimistically conclude, appreciably more persons who already are finding and will find that books give incandescence in private as well as in public blackouts.

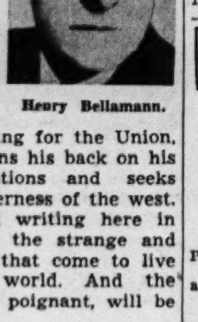
Another Powerful Novel Written by 'King's Row' Author

"Floods of Spring," by Henry Bellamann. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.] Published Monday. June choice of the Literary Guild.

"Rivers to the Sea," by Lucien Hubbard. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]



Henry Bellamann.

Henry Bellamann, the author of "King's Row," has written another powerful novel in "Floods of Spring." It is a dark and beautiful mosaic, dominated by a man who shapes a small world to his own unbending, anti-social patterns and by a somber, demoniacal river—the Missouri.

After four years of front line fighting for the Union, Peter Kettring turns his back on his Philadelphia traditions and seeks reality in the wilderness of the west. There is powerful writing here in the delineation of the strange and beautiful children that come to live in the Kettring world. And the climax, subtle and poignant, will be long remembered.

The roaring flatboat and keelboat days of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers in 1811 live again in "Rivers to the Sea." Cavein Rock with its murderous pirates, and the dens of Natchez-Under-the-Hill, and the other river towns are the settings for swift action and drama. And thruout a love theme winds its way, complicated somewhat by the two ladies who are two angles of the triangle. This is a colorful chapter from American history as it was. C. L.

Writes Sketches

Emily Hahn, author of "Mr. Pan," a collection of amusing Chinese sketches, reviewed below.

"Mr. Pan," by Emily Hahn. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

Emily Hahn has created a delightfully amusing, whimsical character in Pan Heh-ven, and she tells about him and his charming little wife, Peiyu, his children, his relatives, and his numerous retainers in a series of light, entertaining, humorous stories which are gathered together in this new book.

The locale is Shanghai just before and during the present Japanese war. The author tells the tales in the first person, thus adding to the realism of the incidents and of Mr. Pan himself. She writes with great sympathy and understanding of the oriental mind and with a keen sense of the incongruous and the ludicrous.

Among the most diverting of the narratives are Miss Hahn's description of a night at the theater, and "Shanghai Refugee," in which Mr. Pan, in his delightfully inconsequential way, gets himself highly involved with the author and several rental agents in his labyrinthine attempts to lease a house in a bomb-free section of the city. Skilful First Novel Unfolds Colorful Story of Mormons

"A Little Lower Than the Angels," by Virginia Sorensen. [Knopf, $2.75.]

In a first novel of unusual appeal, Virginia Sorensen tells the story of a woman who embraced the Mormon faith, more out of love for Simon Baker, Mormon, than out of love for Mormonism, and thru her heroine's at first dauntlessly gay and then sad eyes, the author sees the tragic experiment of Nauvoo, Ill., the temple city on the Mississippi.

"A Little Lower Than the Angels" is primarily the story of Mercy Baker, who was the first of the Mormon women to have to take a second wife into her home, and as such it is poignantly moving. But it is also a full and rich record of the bitter Nauvoo experiment, of Joseph Smith's dictatorial mixing of politics and business with prophecy, and of the flaming anger of the "Gentiles" against the Mormons, which sent them as exiles from Illinois to a "remote place."

"A Little Lower Than the Angels" is a good historical novel. It is a good novel of the oldest of all emotional conflicts—the triangle. And it is a first novel which gives vivid promise of the future of 30 year old Virginia Sorensen. F. B.

APPROVAL GIVEN TRIBUNE STAND ON RAIL TRAVEL

Tourist Official Deplores Threat of U. S. Curbs.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19 [Special].—An editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on May 7, setting forth the fact that the American railroads are still able to handle about all the passenger traffic in sight, was quoted with approval today by Don Thomas, president of the National Association of Travel Officials.

Mr. Thomas has become the unofficial spokesman of the tourist industry in this country in its efforts to keep going despite the edicts and threats of edicts issued by federal officials in Washington.

THE TRIBUNE editorial followed a statement by Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, that sweeping changes affecting railroad passenger service are imminent.

Possible Steps Cited.

"Among the steps he thinks may be necessary," said the editorial, "are the routing of fewer trains to some districts, perhaps the complete elimination of service to others, and the conversion of so-called luxury equipment such as club, lounge, parlor, and sleeping cars into standard coaches. If Mr. Eastman's order is carried to indicated lengths no one would ride or sleep in a Pullman on any run in the country.

"Mr. Eastman has been one of the ablest and most sensible administrators in Washington, but this time he seems to have gone off the deep end. Chicago railroad executives assert that there is no need at present for the steps he contemplates taking.... As the railroad men say, they are able in most instances to handle all the passenger traffic they are getting and some of them could handle from one-third to a half more passenger business."

Travel Hit, He Says.

"The barrage of statements and opinions out of Mr. Eastman's office has raised the devil with travel," said Mr. Thomas in seconding THE TRIBUNE'S position. "Everybody agrees that, at least insofar as the western railroads are concerned, there is no present need to ration travel. But there has been a threat from Mr. Eastman's office that equipment might be taken from the western roads to give to the eastern.

"We are putting up a battle to keep travel moving. We are trying to figure out the best way to get concerted action to have a more sane attitude taken toward this transportation problem. To us it seems unfair for Mr. Eastman to make these blanket scares nation-wide if they apply only to the east. Why penalize the western lines before it's necessary?"

Seeks to Aid Resort Industry.

Besides heading the travel officials' association, Mr. Thomas is managing director of the All-Year Club of Southern California. In his dual capacity he is trying to save something out of the threatened wreckage of the tourist and resort business thruout the United States. But he admits that pronouncements coming periodically out of Washington have provided tough sledding.

"The people are bewildered enough about this whole war picture," he says, "without deliberately undermining their morale by giving the average family the definite impression that it will be unpatriotic to bolster up their nerves and morale by getting away for a summer rest."

The chain includes 26 spring fed lakes three miles from Waupaca and about 220 miles from Chicago. While not exceptionally large, some of the lakes are 100 feet deep. They are set in a wooded countryside, and their shores, for the most part sloping, sandy beaches, are lined with pine, oak, maple, and birch. All of them are well stocked with bass, northern pike, bluegill, crappie, perch, and brown trout. Muskies are caught occasionally. Nearby are a number of streams stocked with rainbow, brown, and brook trout. Waupaca is in the heart of Wisconsin's Indian country. The Menominee tribe made its home there for centuries. About a dozen of the mounds built by the Indians are still to be seen.

2 Scheduled Lake Cruises to Tulip Festival Canceled

Two cruises scheduled by the Georgian Bay Line from Chicago to the Tulip Time festival at Holland, Mich., this week have been canceled. The fact that the tulip blossoming has passed its zenith was given as the reason for the cancellation. One cruise, with a near-capacity load of passengers, arrived in Holland for the opening of the festival last Saturday.

What about travel to California and the Southwest this year?

● There has been much uncertainty on the subject of vacation travel while our country is at war. We are constantly asked these questions:

1

Has enjoyment of travel objectives in Santa Fe territory been restricted?

With rare exceptions, as this is written, one may enjoy all the infinitely varied attractions of California, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

2

Is normal Santa Fe service to these objectives still available?

Nothing has been or will be permitted to interfere with the utilization of any Santa Fe facility required to win the war. Subject always to this prime responsibility, however, we will make every effort to maintain regular and efficient service to, from, or in California and the Southwest.

Among the Santa Fe streamliners, and our many other fine trains, we believe you will find just that type of service that will best fit your inclination and purse.

A Friendly Suggestion

All-out war has imposed a great traffic load upon American railroads. Movements of troops and war material must have first call. But you can help us maintain regular civilian rail transportation by doing any one or all of these things: ● Make reservations as early as you can. Buy your ticket at the same time, if possible. Round-trip tickets save time, worry and money. ● If you must cancel reservations, do so promptly, thus releasing space for others. ● Travel is heaviest during July and August, on week-ends and holidays—pick other months, and other days, whenever convenient. ● Please turn freely to us for help on any western travel problems.

URGE TRAVELERS TO TAKE NOTE OF WARTIME RULES

Washington, D. C., May 19 [Special].—Coöperation of the traveling public has been asked by the treasury department in connection with the enforcement of the law forbidding trading with the enemy. A section of the law prohibits the carrying of any form of tangible communication into or out of the United States, except under license.

To avoid possible embarrassment and delays, treasury officials give this advice to travelers:

"Refrain from carrying with you on foreign trips any documents that are not absolutely essential.

"When you find it necessary to carry maps, plans, blueprints, specifications, or similar documents, present them, as long as possible in advance of departure time, to the office of the collector of customs. There it will be determined whether the communications may be licensed."

Regulations specify that time is required for translating statements in foreign languages, and that exposed film, developed, or undeveloped, must be examined by customs officers.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN TRUMPETER SWANS SHOWN

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., May 19 [Special].—Trumpeter swans are near the vanishing point in North America, but they showed a gain of 18 in the last year. This is indicated in a census taken by the national park service and the fish and wild life service.

The total for 1941 was 208, as compared with 190 in 1940. Fifty-nine—44 adults and the remainder cygnets—were observed in Yellowstone; 143 were counted in and near the Red Rock lakes refuge in southwestern Montana, and six were found in two other refuges.

"A few losses, due to natural causes, occur each year," says Supt. Edmund B. Rogers of this park, "but our studies show that the most serious threat to the perpetuation of these magnificent waterfowl is carelessness of hunters in areas, beyond the boundaries of refuges, where some of the birds winter."

Summer Suits of Gingham Are New and Smart

BY REA SEEGER.

Summer suits with definite glamor are the best buys of the week in one of Chicago's smartest boulevard shops. There are sleek streamlined suits of tissue-gingham fresh from the fingers of one of America's top flight designers. They are in well behaved plaids and stunning white striped chambray, both models with incredibly low price marks. The chalk striped finds are knockout . . . refreshing as a long, cool ice cream soda. The stripes are used for trim accent.

Color range is typically summery . . . green, tobacco brown, strawberry red, light blue and grey, with narrow chalk white lines. These are the perfect street, office, town and travel suits for hot weather. They'll tub repeatedly without losing the original color and sheen.

Other clever finds in the same shop especially made for summer shopping appeal, are some seersucker dresses and suits with enough "oomph" to rate along with linen or chambray. Shirtwaist dresses, tailored as meticulously as silk, suits also detailed with the same precision, and with dressmaker accents the equal of any fine silk costume, are made of ordinary crinkled seersucker in checks, plaids, and stripes . . . and these too, boast modest price marks.

For more money, see the "tootal" linen suits and dresses, specially treated linen that is wrinkle resistant and that really means resistant. Unusual details, such as a smooth fitted, bias cut belt and front panels cut in one piece, unusual colors, stunning two-piece suits in the new lime yellow and grass green, are features of a most outstanding showing of summer outfits that rival luxury fabrics in fashion and distinction.

'Real People' Are Actors in Stirring Film

"THE FORGOTTEN VILLAGE."
Produced and directed by Herbert Kline.
Story and script by John Steinbeck.
Narration by Burgess Meredith.
Presented at the World Playhouse.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Burgess Meredith narrating!
Not an actor in this piece!
High praise, dear Readers!

By "not an actor" I mean that real peasants, doctors, nurses, and the like impersonate the characters of the story—which is not fiction—but an open window which permits you to gaze upon actual conditions in the lives of very simple Mexican people who inhabit "the little pueblo of Santiago on the skirts of the mountains of Mexico"—remote from cities and hygiene. . . .

The folks presented by John Steinbeck's vividly realistic pen are Juan Diego, his family and his neighbors and the subject matter treats of their daily life, their superstitions, the deaths due to these superstitions which cause them to turn to "wise women" in emergency and reject the "new" methods of travail aid and disease control—and the efforts of a native and enlightened school teacher and Juan to bring light into their darkness. . . .

Portrayals are unselfconscious and convincing and too much cannot be said in favor of Mr. Kline's direction. . . . "A very elastic story was written," says an item, "then the producing crew moved into the village, made friends, talked, and listened. . . ." And photographed. . . . "Our curandera was a real 'wise woman.' . . ." But I told you, all characters are played by "real" people.

Mr. Meredith's sympathetic, unobtrusive description blends into the action like cream into coffee—lending it color and richness. . . . He should make a life work of it, then all movies could be silent, so far as I'm concerned. IF, of course . . . ?

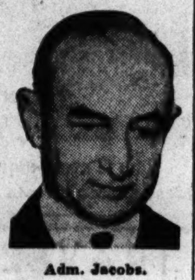
This is a thoughtful picture. Its motto—the fate of the world lies in the hands of youth.

See you tomorrow.

Admiral Backs Measure to Put Women in Navy

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The need for an American women's naval reserve is acute, Rear Adm. Randall Jacobs, chief of navy personnel, told the senate naval affairs committee today.



Adm. Jacobs.

Adm. Jacobs said the Walsh bill to create a women's reserve of 12,000 to replace officers and men on shore duty has the backing of the navy department and that it would release 1,000 officers for fleet communications duty and 882 officers and 8,132 men for other duties at sea.

"And this is only a partial list," he said. "The shortage is acute. We may need 10,000 officers released before we are thru."

He said the women would do work now done by junior officers and enlisted men. This would include photographic interpretation, coding, decoding, radio, statistical, laboratory, and clerical work. They would serve only in time of war and would have the same pay, allowances, rank, and physical and educational qualifications as men.

Officers in the proposed reserve would be college women, but only one woman would hold the rank of lieutenant commander and only 35 the rank of lieutenant.

"Will they be sent outside the continental United States?" one senator asked.

"If the necessity arises," Adm. Jacobs said.

"Then how will their duties differ from those of men?" the senator continued.

"They won't be sent on ships or combat planes," said Jacobs. "They won't man the guns or run the engines."

"Can't men do the work you want women to do?"

"No, sir," Jacobs replied. "Those men have to be transferred."

Sen. Peter G. Gerry [D., R. I.] said the new women's army auxiliary corps will serve with the army, while the navy women would serve in the navy. He thought this was fundamentally wrong.

"We want absolute military control," Adm. Jacobs explained. "We can get it no other way. We know that thru World war experience."

"But it hardly seems necessary if you limit the number of women to 12,000, as you propose," Gerry said.

"It is," Jacobs said.

Sen. Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.] then switched the subject to naval commissions in general. He said he had a friend, a physician in Peoria, Ill., who had tried and tried to get a commission. He said he couldn't understand his friend's failure.

"Why," he said, "I just wonder how some men get commissions in the navy, anyway. I've seen men I know in uniform, and I just wonder how they were able to do it."

"Well, frankly," said Jacobs, "off the record. . . ."

Before the committee went into executive session, Sen. Lucas pressed the plight of his Peoria friend so assiduously that Adm. Jacobs finally asked Lucas whether he knew the friend's name.

"Yes indeed!" Lucas shouted, fishing into a pocket as the committee room rocked with laughter. "It's right here. But, of course, Admiral, I don't want to trouble you—"

"I'll have his application reviewed," the admiral said drily.

The name of Lucas' friend was not made public.

Women in War Work

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Many more women will be employed by defense industries in the Chicago area after the next draft, women employment leaders prophesied yesterday in a panel discussion on "Training and Employment Opportunities for Women" at the Woman's City club, 410 South Michigan avenue. The discussion was part of a three-day institute on "Civilian Mobilization and Women in War Time."

Miss Agnes Nestor.

Immediate registration at neighborhood United States employment offices was suggested for all women interested in defense jobs by the speakers, Miss Sara E. Southall, supervisor of employment service, International Harvester company; Miss Anne S. Davis, in-plant training consultant, apprenticeship section, federal security board, and Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the Women's Trade Union League of Chicago and member of the advisory council on employment security, social security board.

"There are almost no opportunities outside Chicago plants for training at the present time," Miss Davis said. "In July, however, vocational schools will open 8 to 12 weeks' free courses in machine shop work for women."

Miss Nestor emphasized the importance of maintaining the 48 hour, six day week for women. "Maintenance of these standards is essential to maximum production," she said. "More people should be added rather than more hours."

Miss Southall said that specialized training is needed for supervisory jobs. "Many college girls think they are all ready for such jobs, but they should realize the importance of preliminary 'ground' training right in the plant," she said.

Two ambulances have been pledged to the British-American-Australian corps by the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs. The federation will donate the proceeds of its annual white breakfast in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel at 12:30 o'clock today toward the purchase of the ambulances. Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Portland, Me., president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, and William V. C. Ruxton of New York, national president of the ambulance corps, will be the special guests.

Breaking away from tradition, red and blue will be used in the table decorations this year as well as white. Prizes will be awarded for the most attractive tables, taking into consideration the cost of the decorations.

A five week refresher course for volunteer teachers of elementary nutrition classes will open in room 1012 of the Red Cross offices, 616 South Michigan avenue, at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night. The course is sponsored by the Chicago nutrition committee under the direction of Dr. Margaret H. Brooks of the home economics department of the University of Chicago.

The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30 until 9 o'clock. The Chicago nutrition committee has just been set up by the federal office of health, defense, and welfare services to act as a coördinating agency for all nutrition programs carried on in the Chicago area under the national nutrition plan. Dr. Ruth C. Clouse, head of the home economics department at the Illinois Institute of Technology, is chairman of the committee.

The refresher course will be taught by members of the committee and of the teaching staffs of colleges and universities in the Chicago area. Its purpose is to acquaint qualified nutrition teachers with recent scientific developments in the field.

Those taking the course will be expected to volunteer to teach at least two elementary nutrition classes. Applications should be made to Mrs. Jana G. Krause, nutrition director of the Red Cross. No registration fee will be charged for the course.

Service men at the United Service Organizations center in Waukegan will be entertained at a dancing party tonight by the Kenilworth Girls' Service organization of the USO under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph Joyce. On Friday night the girls will entertain at the Highland Park center.

Proceeds from the sale of hand blocked textiles to be placed on exhibition in Blackstone hall of the Art institute today by the institute's design department will go to the Red Cross. The exhibit will continue until May 31. Besides luncheon sets, scarfs, prints, handkerchiefs, table runners, jackets, cushion covers, wall hangings, and caps, pottery, and hand painted articles such as jars, trays, bowls, and boxes will be on display. Miss Margaret Artingstall is professor of decorative arts in the school of the Art institute.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., May 19.—"Your piece on vaudeville and Mr. Wheeler," writes Charles Washburn, "leads me into what may make a few paragraphs. Bert Wheeler, along with Bert Lahr and Joe E. Lewis, will headline what is to be known as 'Headliners of '42,' restoring two a day vaude to Chicago at the Grand Opera house [formerly Cohan's Grand] on June 10.

Bert Wheeler. Bert Lahr. Joe E. Lewis.

"The Grand is next door across the alley from the old Palace [now the Erlanger] in North Clark street, and the stage door is directly opposite the door many of the troupers, including Wheeler, used to enter. Wouldn't it be wonderful if one of our troupe got into the wrong house one night and was found in his old dressing room dreaming of the past while the audience at the Grand patiently waited for the cops to find him!

"Remember, I was the last of the two a day press agents at the Palace in New York, and I always remember our selling out and losing $300 on the week. Vaude just couldn't take in enough to pay off—Paul Whiteman at $7,700, for instance.

"Alfred Bloomingdale of the department store and Nat Karson, who dolled up Bill Robinson as 'The Hot Mikado,' are the producers of the first midwest variety invasion."

Well, Charlie, Hollywood has been trying to do something about vaudeville, too. Metro is making a flicker called "For Me and My Gal," which is about the two a day in the old days. Judy Garland and Broadway's dancing wow, Gene Kelly, are the stars, and there are George Murphy and several others, too.

Stage five on the Metro lot is a place you, Charlie, would get a kick out of. It's a replica of the interior of the Palace as it was before there were movies in the joint and as it was when Lou Forman, who always wore the best tailored jackets I ever saw, conducted the pit orchestra. I haven't heard of Lou in a long time and wonder what ever happened. He was a great man.

Well, stage five at Metro is now the old Palace, and the stars are a couple of youngsters who never saw the real place. Never saw it, anyhow, when it was cooking. But in the movies you can pretend. You can pretend that Judy Garland and Gene Kelly were vaude stars in a past time, and you can pretend—as the plot for "For Me and My Gal" does—that other acts on the bill were Joe Jackson, Blanche Ring, Joe Frisco, and Sophie Tucker. . . . Movies are kind of wonderful that way. But Cohan's Grand in Chicago might be more fun.

Here's a fan letter for Hal Roach, daddy of the streamliners and darn near the daddy of Hollywood comedy, from Mrs. Margaret Turner of Lynbrook, N. Y.:

"Tell Mr. Roach we do like those 45 minute comedies much better than those full length ones. Recently I saw his 'Niagara Falls' on the same bill with 'Honky Tonk,' featuring Clark Gable and Lana Turner. THAT was the worst piece of trash I ever sat thru. If it wasn't for 'Niagara Falls' I think my husband would have lynched me when we got home. The theater just rocked with laughter from the time the name 'Niagara Falls' appeared on the screen. Tell Mr. Roach to make some of the old ones over again. They were real comedies."

Sally Asks Aid in Behalf of Needy Family

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.
[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

A case worker has appealed for assistance for the X family, living on the west side of the city.

The family comprises mother, father, and four young children, now living in two small, dark, furnished rooms. For several months the father was ill and under constant medical care. As soon as he was released by the clinic he made a determined effort to find work. Now employed as a factory laborer, he works nights and is unable to get sufficient rest because the home is so small and so crowded.

The four children are kept in one room, but it is impossible to keep them quiet during the day. The father's earnings are small, and an unfurnished flat would be less expensive and far more suitable to their needs since, for the same rental, light, clean quarters and room for all could be obtained. Their chief needs are a kitchen stove, table and chairs, and two beds. If any reader can supply these items it will mean better housing for this family.

Mrs. A. is anxious to locate a sewing machine for the mother of a family on the north side of the city. She is partially crippled but is able to use a machine and is very clever at making clothes for her children. Sewing is among the few activities her condition permits and because of the low income, making and remodeling clothes is necessary if the youngsters are to be presentable. Transportation of a machine will be arranged if any reader has one to offer.

Garden Club of Lake Forest Will Hold Its Annual Tour

BY JUDITH CASS.

GOOD news to all garden lovers and to all who enjoy visiting Lake Forest's beautiful homes is that the Lake Forest Garden club is going ahead with plans for a benefit garden tour this summer. "We didn't think it was a good year to go in for a fancy show," said Mrs. Duncan Hodges, chairman, at a luncheon meeting of the flower show committee yesterday, but the plans she outlined will give pleasure to a large number of persons.

Five homes, all fairly near to each other, will be opened to the public from noon to 6 o'clock on Saturday and Sunday, June 6 and 7. They are the residences of Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isham, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Edward De Witt Shumway, and Mr. and Mrs. William A. P. Pullman. The gardens of all are a treat, and perhaps a portion of some of the houses will be opened, too.

The experiences of the women who have opened their homes in the past have been pleasant, and all have agreed that the public is considerate and thoughtful in going thru private homes. "We had four thousand visitors in our house one day," said Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill yesterday. Her Lake Forest home was opened a year or two ago. She added that the only evidences of such a large crowd was in the gravel that clung to the sightseers' shoes.

Tickets Will Be Available at Gates of the Homes.

Tickets at a modest cost of $1 for the tour will be available at the gate to any of the homes. The committee hopes to arrange for transporation from the electric and railway stations in Lake Forest to the gardens. The care of these gardens is evolving more and more on the owners themselves, as gardeners are called into the army and into defense work.

"We are gardening for defense and for our souls," said Mrs. B. Botsford Young, a member of the committee, as she described the earnestness with which Lake Foresters are planting victory and community gardens to raise vegetables, while coping with peonies, tulips, pansies, and roses as well.

Mrs. Thomas A. Connors is in charge of the community gardens, in which 65 families are participating, and the victory gardens, all sponsored by the Garden club. The club also is supplying the equipment for community canning, to be directed by a member, Mrs. Clay Judson, this summer at the Lake Forest YWCA. The club also is in charge of a community garden maintained by pupils of the Lake Forest Country Day school, and supports a nature study teacher at the village public schools.

Others who met for luncheon at the Casino yesterday to discuss the show were Mrs. Charles F. Clarke, who is in charge of tickets; Mrs. William Burry Jr., Mrs. Albert Day Farwell, president of the club; Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson, Mrs. George W. Blossom Jr., Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Charles S. De Long, and Mrs. Smith Pirie.

St. Luke's Group Votes to Hold Fashion Show.

At a meeting of the St. Luke's fashion show committee, attended by 45 out of a membership of 62, it was voted to carry on the fashion show this year with whatever changes these wartimes necessitate. The needs of the hospital continue, the board realizes, no matter what the state of the world. The group has many interesting new ideas in mind for its coming production, to be held Oct. 20 at the Stevens hotel. The next meeting will be held on June 8 in the Glencoe home of the president, Mrs. John W. Gary.

Mrs. Bernard Peacock Smith, Mrs. George Lyle Fischer, Mrs. Otto G. Schmidt, Mrs. Samuel Rothermel, and Mrs. William F. Tuttle are among those entertaining at luncheon today before a 2 o'clock benefit program of the Glencoe Infant Welfare center in the Woman's Library Club building. The program, "Bustles and Bangs," will be presented by Miss Herma Clark of the Chicago Tribune staff Mrs. Herbert Wilson is president of the Glencoe center.

Students of the Boys' Latin school and their parents, equipped with picnic luncheons, will spend today at the Kersey Coates Reed field from 10 o'clock on. About 76 athletic events are on the crowded program. Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, the William M. Spencers, Mrs. Philip Wrigley, and Mrs. William J. Kelly are some of the parents who will be present for the fun.

Richard Vanderwarkers Are Parents of a Son.

The Richard Dean Vanderwarkers of the Ambassador West hotel in the future will have two birthday anniversaries to celebrate on May 15—Mr. Vanderwarker's and Richard Jr.'s. The first son of the former Josephine Prigmore and her husband was born last Friday in Passavant hospital. The baby has a little sister, Christine.

The Graham Huttons' first child was born on Monday at Passavant hospital. Her parents came here last summer from England when her father was appointed to head the British Press service's Chicago office. The baby has been named Lavinia for her paternal grandmother, great-grandmother, and great-great-grandmother.

Mrs. William E. Vogelback will head the Chicago Drama league for the coming year, succeeding Mrs. M. Lee Alberts. Elected with her at the league's annual meeting were Mrs. A. W. Jenkisson, Mrs. Merrill Meigs, Mrs. Carl W. Defebaugh, Mrs. Francis M. Gunn, and Mrs. Victor L. Schrager as officers, and Miss Alice Barler, Kenneth Horan, Edith Mason Ragland, and Mrs. George B. Wendt as directors. The league also announced that a check for $101.25, raised by the sale of a picture donated by Mrs. Nina K. Griffin, has been turned over to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr. Heads Emerson House

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr. recently was elected president of the board of directors of the Emerson Settlement house. The other officers are Mrs. Homer Hargrave, Mrs. Edward V. Platt, Mrs. Gardner Brown, Mrs. Chandler Kibbee, Mrs. Gerald H. Smith, Mrs. George W. Dixon Jr., and Mrs. William Hazlett.

Christianity Is Moral Bulwark in Time of War, Says Dr. Weng

St. Louis, Mo., May 19 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. Armin George Weng of Chicago, president of the Illinois synod of the United Lutheran church, said today in a sermon before a convention session of the synod that Christianity in a time of war is the moral bulwark of the country.

"It is the duty of the Christian church to make sure that the nation will not lose its ideals, that the nation will never have the notion that brute force is all sufficient," he said in opening the synod's twenty-third annual convention.

The synod, with about 75,000 members, has 144 congregations in Illinois, two in Wisconsin, and 12 in Missouri.

Thru the Looking Glass

Have you tried solid cologne yet? It's wonderfully refreshing when muggy weather is demoralizing your grooming and your spirits, and it's one of the nicest gifts we know for the invalid. It has all the refreshing advantages of liquid cologne; if anything it feels a trifle cooler to the skin. And, being nonbreakable and nonspillable, it has decided advantages for use around the office or in the sickroom.

◆

It's perfect for office use, we find. When the back of your neck feels like a dead weight and your wrists are weary from typing you can just whip the cake of solid cologne unobtrusively from your desk drawer and give yourself a lift. Rub some on your wrists and across your aching brow. You can do it with a surreptitiousness that would be impossible if you were pouring cologne from a bottle.

◆

It carries scent well, too. Several excellent fragrances, in a variety to suit all tastes, have been translated to this new medium. Just lately two more have been added to make a most attractive series. The scent clings to the skin in a most satisfactory way.

◆

The solid cologne looks like a plump menthol stick, but, of course, it isn't. It's sweet smelling, greaseless, and translucent. A quick touch of it over the skin is instantly refreshing and fragrant. Incidentally, in certain fragrances, men like it, too.

Young Women Rush to Enroll as War Nurses

The headquarters for recruiting nurses to serve with the armed forces has been one of the busiest divisions at the national biennial nursing convention since it opened Monday at the Stevens hotel.

Scores of young women, all interested in aiding the Red Cross fill a quota of 35,000 nurses by the end of 1943—a number which must be obtained if the army fulfills its plan of having 6,000,000 men in its ranks at that time—have called at the headquarters to enlist or to get information regarding service with the army or navy.

Since, by act of congress, the Red Cross is the first reserve from which nurses are drawn into the armed forces, the first requisite is that the applicant be a member of that organization. Only nurses between the ages of 21 and 40 will be accepted for service.

No married women may serve with the army or navy, and since many of the applicants are attractive young graduates of nursing schools, each one is warned that she, like her brothers in the armed forces, has a duty to perform and that marriage may keep her from performing that duty. All nurses who do marry after their enlistment are advised that they may alleviate the war caused nurse shortage by serving full time on the civilian front.

To serve with the army or navy, a nurse must be a graduate of a high school and of an accredited school of nursing. She must be a member of the American Nurses' association, as well as of the Red Cross, and pass a strict physical examination.

Regular and reserve nurses may be assigned to army and navy camps and posts wherever the United States fighting forces are stationed or operating. For that service she will receive $70 a month, in addition to maintenance, for the first three years. Promotions bring an accordingly higher wage.

◆

Tho in ordinary times army and navy nurses were not required to spend more than eight hours each day in service, the nurses on Wake Island and Bataan peninsula, like the fighters around them, frequently worked day and night.

The Red Cross Nursing service supplies the army and navy with lists of first reserve nurses. A call for service comes to a nurse from the commander of the corps area or naval district in which she resides. Upon entry into the army nurses corps, each nurse becomes a second lieutenant and may gain rank with promotions.

Members of the armed forces' nursing corps have been ordered to be in uniform at all times, either on service or on leave. Each army and navy nurse receives 30 days' leave each year.

◆

The nation needs nurses at the rate of 1,000 a month, Mary Beard, director of nursing service for the American Red Cross, told 10,000 delegates at a joint meeting of the convention last evening in the Coliseum.

"There are 300,000 nurses in this country," she explained. "About 100,000 of us are young enough and strong enough, and also unmarried, so that we are eligible for army and navy nursing. At the rate of 1,000 nurses a month our country needs us. Two out of every ten of us are listed as eligible for service. One out of every two of us must go if we are to make up the number of nurses which is the very lowest estimate of those needed to care for patients whom we cannot see but who are there and who are calling for us."

After the attack on Pearl Harbor the nurses' enrollment in the Red Cross reached a rate of 100 a day, 3,000 a month, Miss Beard said, but the rate has dropped while the number of wounded reported has increased.

"Our country needs us just as much as it needs soldiers and sailors and their officers," she continued. "The men are drafted for service. We are called to service. It is a proud heritage we have been given, a heritage coveted by other American women, to have a recognized part in this supreme struggle for all that makes life worth living."

Greeting.

When the name of his good friend, Roy Chapman Andrews, came up in a conversation the other evening, Herbert E. Bradley was reminded of an amusing tale told him by Mr. Andrews following his return from one of his many trips in the interest of the American Museum of Natural History.

Mr. Andrews had been the guest at Christmas of the late Marquess of Reading, then Viceroy of India. On Christmas morning a messenger arrived and with great ceremony presented Lord Reading with a card of greeting. On one side of the typical penny postcard was a tinseled turkey against a red and green background, and in one corner the words: "Hello, old bird." On the reverse side was written: "From His Holiness the Dalai Lama of Tibet to His Excellency the Viceroy of India."

Mr. Andrews, incidentally, has retired to private life on his farm near Colebrook, Conn. A great lover of animals, he has posted signs along the road that passes his place. They read: "Please drive slowly. Protect domestic and wild animals."

◆

Could Be.

The laugh of the week in the C. E. Rieck household was provided by their teen age daughter, Dorothy. At breakfast one morning Mrs. R. was commenting on the fact that a little boy they knew had German measles, the kind that last only a few days. When she said she wondered why the disease was called by that name, Dorothy quipped: "I think it's because they attack and run."

Hail, Bong of Wong.

["The British lost Burma, but they gained the Bong of Wong. Bong, in the language of Wong, means chief. Wong is a Naga tribe village in the mountains dividing India and Burma." From a recent communique.]

The Bong of Wong has joined our cause;
So sorry, Mr. Moto!
With dhows and spears his brave, strong men
Are girded for the low blow.
'Tis said they neither read nor write,
Head hunting is their sideline;
They stalk their prey with bamboo traps
And dry them in the sunshine.
Barbaric tactics these may be,
But since the world is SO wrong,
Best wishes to the warring tribe,
Good hunting to the Wong Bong. —Courtney.

Ingenious.

While out of town on a business trip Morris K. Levinson went into a drug store and asked for a tube of shaving cream. When the proprietor said he couldn't sell him one without an old tube in exchange, Mr. Levinson suggested the druggist simply empty the contents into a paper ice cream cup and keep the tube. "Swell idea," replied the druggist. "If I'd just thought of that before I wouldn't have missed out on a hundred sales."

◆

Snack.

A young fellow rejected in the draft got a job as a guard at the Municipal airport. He works eight hours at a stretch, with no time out for lunch, but, being resourceful, manages most days to get a tasty snack of leftovers when a big ship has completed its run. He had a bit of tough luck, however, one unseasonable day last week. As a flagship slid to a stop he rushed over, thinking how nice a cup of hot coffee would be. The stewardess said she was sorry but all that was left from the passengers' luncheons was strawberry ice cream.

INSTALMENT XXI.

PRISONER.

Ferrer ignored June's question.

"Our theft of the Timcat papers also put you in an awkward position?" he asked.

"It certainly did. The police asked me endless questions and seemed to think I was a party to it—especially as they found the spoiled copy which your brother had taken from my bag."

"Most distressing," sympathized Ferrer—and now she was certain that he was playing with her. "Really, you can have no reason to regard me as otherwise than an intolerable nuisance. Is that not so?"

"Frankly, that is true," answered June boldly. "Now will you please tell me——"

"Then why have you so willingly got out of your bed just to oblige me?"

For a second only June was at a loss.

"The lady you sent said that you wished to do some business with me. What is the business, Mr. Ferrer?"

At last Ferrer answered the question.

"I want you to procure the release of my brother from prison."

"But how perfectly ridiculous! How could I do such a thing?"

"By acting as an intermediary between myself and—the secret service, you could," answered Ferrer imperturbably. "The secret service is now in a very strong position. A request from them, and the charge against my brother would be dropped."

"But why pick on me?" demanded June desperately. "I know nothing about the secret service."

"Do you not?" smiled Ferrer. "We will see." He got up. "If I may trouble you!" She rose also.

He went to the folding doors and flung them aside.

A second later June stifled a scream. Sprawling on a couch, bound hand and foot, was Glenday himself. And so soon after he'd said over the phone that he was trying to find Ferrer!

His eyes were closed, but as she stared at him they opened.

At June's side, as she stared at the half conscious Glenday, came a cackle of laughter from Ferrer.

"I can see by your face that you know Mr. Glenday," he said. "And by the same token, I have not the smallest doubt that you would like to help him."

"Yes—O yes," faltered June, unable to carry the bluff any further. She went over to Glenday, touched his hand.

"I haven't quite got the hang of this." Glenday spoke with difficulty. "You—yes, I know who you are. But our—er—host? O, Jacob Ferrer, I imagine?"

"Correct, Mr. Glenday," said Ferrer, and to June: "This distinguished member of the British secret service was rash enough to come out after me single-handed. I was not single-handed. And one of my companions had fortunately possessed himself of a sandbag."

"Sandbag, was it!" ejaculated Glenday. "As a stunt for producing a headache, Ferrer, you can't whack it."

"I regret I can do nothing to ameliorate the headache, Mr. Glenday."

"What is the good of hitting him with a sandbag and tying him up like that?" demanded June. "That won't help your brother."

"On the contrary, I am confident that Mr. Glenday's presence here will insure my brother's release. Mr. Glenday will stay here until my brother is released and the charge against him is dropped."

"Then I'll be here until your brother has served his sentence," snorted Glenday. "Damnit, Ferrer, you know the game as well as I do. The service never helps a man who makes a mistake."

June's pent-up anxiety and indignation burst bounds.

"The service is going to, this time," she said.

"Be quiet, Miss Clayton," said Glenday. "You will take no steps in the matter at all. That is an order."

"An order!" taunted June. "Who are you to give orders?"

Jacob Ferrer cackled with delight.

"Miss Clayton and I are in full agreement," he said.

June's blood was up.

"We're not in agreement about everything, Mr. Ferrer. You were wrong about not being able to do anything for his headache. Let us have some aspirin and then we'll talk some more about your brother."

"But I have no such thing in the house."

"Too bad, because we're going to lose time until you get it," bullied June. "Why not send one of those louts I saw in the hall?"

Ferrer hesitated, then went back thru the folding doors and rang a bell.

"I suppose you don't know where this place is, do you?" asked Glenday.

"No."

"I thought not. He'll take good care that you never find out. His while plan will be based on that."

Ferrer, of course, was listening, but they ignored him.

"I quite understand you feelings," continued Glenday. "but you can do nothing to help. Better report the matter to Polly Flinders and then get on with your assignment."

"I'm giving orders now, not taking them."

June forced a smile and called "Mr. Ferrer." And, as he appeared: "While we're waiting for the aspirin loosen up all those ropes and things!"

"Impossible!"

"Not if you put your mind to it. If you leave him handcuffed, he can't fight his way thru those—those nice looking enemy agents I saw in the hall."

"I am afraid you take too much upon yourself," grumbled Ferrer.

"I'm going to take on myself the task of getting your brother out of prison. And I'm doing it in my own way, Mr. Ferrer, or I shall break down and cry and do nothing. You can't do anything with a woman who just cries at you. Come along, please."

With a grunt Ferrer produced a the necessary papers to protect him knife and cut the cords. Glenday stretched himself luxuriously. The school-mistressey woman was able to supply some aspirin. So far June had carried all before her.

"And now to business," said Ferrer.

"There's only one way of doing business, Ferrer," cut in Glenday. "It's just possible we can do a deal over your brother if you return the 'Timcat' papers and give us full information as to how your proposed to handle them."

Ferrer glared at Glenday.

"I have to request, Mr. Glenday, that you will not interrupt," he said and returned his attention to June.

"I think you go to Tarlinghouse's every day under the pretence of still being a secretary? Every afternoon Miss Grounell will call—that is the lady who brought you here tonight—to see if you have any information for her. You will give instructions that she is to be shown to your room. Naturally one does not expect immediate success."

"And while all the haggling is going on, do you mean to keep him handcuffed?" demanded June.

Ferrer shrugged his shoulders.

"For a week, let us say, Mr. Glenday will be treated as a guest with every comfort that is possible in his position. At the end of a week, it will be better for us all if my brother is able to walk into this house with from subsequent arrest."

That meant that at the end of a week they would murder Glenday. June feared that she was on the verge of hysteria.

"That's quite clear, Mr. Ferrer," she said as steadily as she could.

Ferrer signed to her to follow him thru the communicating door. In the corridor outside Miss Grounell was waiting.

Back into the van. When she was liberated, she was within two hundred yards of home. A dull red glow in the sky told her that the factory at Dornham was still burning.

Corned Beef with Potatoes and Carrots Broccoli Salad
Homemade Bran Bread

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Corned beef is cooked by simmering. Cover the piece of meat with water and simmer, don't boil, in a covered kettle until it's tender. If it's a fairly large piece of corned beef, three and a half or four hours may be required. Vegetables are added during the latter part of the cooking period.

Some cooks add whole black pepper, a stalk or two of celery, and an onion to the cooking water, which should cover the meat. This cooking water shouldn't be discarded, for it makes grand stock in which to cook vegetables for later meals. Makes good sauces, too.

To make broccoli salad, cook the cleaned broccoli in boiling, salted water until the stalks are tender, then chill quickly. Serve with mayonnaise. You needn't use lettuce as a base. It's unnecessary for this kind of salad. And you can put the broccoli directly on the dinner plate, if you are serving filled plates. There's no need for a separate salad plate unless the salad would crowd the dinner plate.

A strip of pimiento makes a pretty garnish for broccoli salad. Lemon juice may be added to the mayonnaise used to dress it.

Homemade Bran Bread.
[3 loaves]

- 2 cups scalded milk
- ½ cup molasses
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 2 cakes yeast
- 1 cup lukewarm water
- About 8 cups sifted flour
- 5 cups bran
- ¼ cup melted fat
- 1 cup raisins.

Add molasses and salt to scalded milk and cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water and add to milk. Add half the flour and beat to a smooth batter. Add bran, melted fat, and enough more flour to make a fairly stiff dough. Knead dough until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl, grease the surface of the dough, and cover the bowl. Set in a warm place for 2 hours, or until dough has doubled in bulk. Divide into three parts and shape into loaves. Place in well greased pans, cover, and let rise again until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes. Bake at 400 degrees for about 45 minutes.

This recipe is one which may be easily divided. Half the recipe will make two small loaves of bread. The raisins may be omitted. Or you may wish to make prune bread by the same recipe, in which case, use 2 cups of chopped prunes and replace the cup of water with prune juice.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

Miss Nettie Mae Huber, 724 North Mills street, Orlando, Fla., obtained this recipe for molded cabbage salad at a bridge luncheon and it has been a "prime favorite" in her house ever since. She receives $5 for the recipe because the judges found it especially appetizing. Perhaps you have a recipe that's a winner, too. Send it to Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, typewritten or written legibly, with necessary information that even the most inexperienced cook can understand.

Molded Cabbage Salad.
[Serves 6.]

- 1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 cup tomato juice
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups shredded cabbage
- 1 medium cucumber, shredded
- 2 green onions, sliced thin

Dissolve the gelatin in hot water. Add tomato juice and allow to cool. When mixture begins to thicken, stir in remaining ingredients and turn into mold. Chill until firm.

[Send in your favorite recipe.]

Monday Set as Deadline to Buy City Dog Licenses

Monday was announced yesterday as the deadline for 1942 dog licenses. City Controler Robert B. Upham said that since May 1, the day dog license taxes become due, only 101 licenses have been purchased. Last year, after a city campaign, 62,395 licenses were purchased by dog owners. The price of a dog license is $3. At Upham's request Police Commissioner James P. Allman issued orders to all districts to start a drive for licenses.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Mystery.

Our own missing persons bureau: A stenographer in a local office sent down the keys to the place by a taxi one day last week. Attached to the keys was a note saying she would be in at noon. Noontime came . . . she didn't appear. Nor did she appear the next day . . . nor the next altho her paycheck awaited her. A telephone call to her hotel revealed she had moved and left no address. None of her associates can unravel the mystery.

Words.

The words HORSESHOER, SOAK, and LAW are known to all English speaking adults. IMPEDE, PUNCTILIOUS, and OSTRACIZE are known to 75 per cent; QUIESCENT, AMELIORATE, and CANDOR to 50 per cent; ANIMADVERSION, CONTUMELY, and CONDIGN to 25 per cent af adults.

Johnson O'Connor, in "Unsolved Business Problems," draws some interesting conclusions from the word tests given at the Human Engineering laboratory. "The laboratory originally fancied that each individual picked up words at random, by a haphazard agglomeration, might fail to recognize some easy word never stumbled upon, and happen to know some far more difficult one. This rarely occurs. The normal, native-born individual pushes ahead the entire borderline of his vocabulary, from the easy toward the hard, with an almost unbroken line."

It can't be repeated too often that the one common attribute of successful business men or women is a high vocabulary level. There is a definite, workable way to increase your own. Don't, according to Mr. O'Connor, laboriously commit to memory some magnificent, seldom-encountered word, but learn the meanings of those words which, for you, lie between the known and the unknown, vaguely familiar words whose definitions are not clear enough to form a part of your speech.

Just for fun: Jot down, each day, one word about which you are hazy, look it up in the dictionary and make it your own. Try it out for six weeks; we'll compare notes. And, at the end of six weeks we'll each of us have 42 elegant new words—an accomplishment which can't be sneezed at even in this jolly season of springtime colds!

"Going Upwards."

Overheard in the elevator: "Upwards!" [Aside to a passenger] "I get sick of saying 'Up' all day long!"

New Business Note.

From E. R. A. relative to the stocking shortage: "I have been unable to get the extra length stocking I need at any price. . . mentioned it to my dentist [a timid little man] who said he had just had his car fenders repaired and had watched Joe at the garage use a spray gun to paint the repaired spots. He suggested I try spraying some stockings for myself, or let Joe do it.

"Now, we're thinking of turning the very nearly extinct garage business into a 'Spray on Your Stockings' business. Harry, the foreman, wants to paint on the seams. . . . I want to be advertising manager. But, what kind of paint should we use? And, won't some inventor work on an attractive device to stand in, sit on, or recline on during the operation?"

The Housewife

A splendid gift for the June bridegroom [yes, we know he isn't given gifts but here's one that's certainly intended for him] is a carving knife that is absolutely tops. Like all fine things it is simple in line and is minus ornamentation, its handle being of plain, ordinary wood, stained dark. But it has a blade that will be a joy forever to the man who carves. It is long, thin, ground concave like a razor blade, and as sharp as a razor, too. And it comes protected in its own wooden case. The knife is available in three sizes, the smallest being priced at $5.

Allowances Teach Child Use of Money

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Whether or not money and thrift interest you personally, I'm sure, if you will think about it, you will agree that an understanding of the value of money is a good thing for a person to have.

Some persons learn about money the hard way, thru trial and error. Others seem to have a native ability as far as handling their finances is concerned. They can make a little go a long way, or they can manage large amounts with ease. But not knowing just which kind our son or daughter will turn out to be, it is well for parents to do what they can to start their children to gain early some idea of the true value of money. Your own attitude, of course, influences them, but one of the most practical ways to help them is to let them experience the actual handling of money. How? By giving them an allowance.

In this whole matter of handling money we should, first of all, bear in mind the fact that an allowance is given the child for the purpose of teaching him how to handle money wisely. The older idea, that money was given him primarily to save, has given place to this newer one.

Money is a tool that a child should be taught to use wisely. Putting money into a small bank and then transferring it to a large one, with no visible use for it, is like hoarding.

In the second place, in my opinion and generally speaking, money should not be given for helping around the house.

Of course there are exceptions. One exception could be this: If money would otherwise be paid for outside help. If there is a legitimate reason for a child having a chance to earn this money then he should be paid for the work if he wants to do it.

Third, allowances should not cover necessities, unless that is deliberately allowed for and added to the amount for personal uses. A young girl I know is allowed 75 cents a week for pocket money, but 50 or 60 cents has to go for carfares to school and an occasional phone call.

Allowances should be, in essence, using money, or, as we say, "spending" money. That is where the true sense of its value comes in.

If the allowance is given and is sufficient to cover certain legitimate expenses, such as a movie once in a while for an older child, notebooks and pencils, an occasional treat, or money for his "hobby," and if he is not given extra amounts he will learn eventually how to apportion his money to cover his various desires.

Praise Given to Singers in Debut Recital

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A most encouraging debut recital took place in Curtiss hall last night. Louise Barnhart, mezzo-soprano, and Carol Wood, soprano, proved that they understand that the primary purpose of singing is to elucidate and vivify a text, and that the most profound knowledge of breath control and laryngitic procedure is worthless except as a means to that end.

Because of this understanding their approach was fundamentally different from that of most other inexperienced recitalists. They seemed to regard the audience not as stern judges to be bought off by a display of technical prowess but as human beings to be taken into their confidence and, if possible, enkindled by the music they proposed to do.

They sang with directness, enthusiasm, and full belief in the importance of what they were about. Certainly their knowledge of things laryngitic was considerable—as was their grasp of such musical devices as tonal variety and nuance—but in the midst of their songs one did not think of these matters. The end result was what counted. The texts were elucidated and vivified.

The program began with duets from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and Delibes' "Lakmé," moved on to solo groups in several languages drawn from the works of Handel, Haydn, Schumann, Trunk, Massenet, Taylor, Carpenter, and other composers, and closed with duets by Jensen and Caracciolo. Aloha Studier Lawver played good accompaniments.

Capable Cast Does Its Best in Yiddish Play

"A CHILD FOR SALE."

Yiddish play with music in nine scenes by Louis Freiman. Lyrics by Jacob Jacobs. Music by Yasha Kreitzberg. Directed by Nathan Goldberg. Presented by Edwin A. Relkin in the Studebaker theater, beginning Monday evening, May 18, 1942.

THE PLAYERS.

Nathan Goldberg, Rose Goldberg, Jacob Jacobs, Betty Jacobs, Rebecca Richman, Mildred Block, Ben Zeidman, Max Kletter, Anna Toback, Leon Seidenberg, Isabel Wasserman, Benjamin Landsman, and others.

BY CECIL SMITH.

The new exhibit at the Studebaker theater will not do much, I should think, to strengthen the fainting status of the local Yiddish theater. "A Child for Sale" is a tasteless pastiche of melodrama, easy emotionalism and low comedy. Its dramatic construction is loose and unconvincing, and its settings are shabby and poorly managed.

The acting, on the other hand, represents a capable level of assured professionalism. The players attain their effects of comedy and pathos without resorting to the outrageous overplaying we have sometimes seen in visiting Yiddish troupes. Indeed, the performance would be a very good one, from the histrionic standpoint, if only the play were worth dealing with in the first place.

The plot is almost too embarrassingly crude to relate. A blind girl, Goldele, has met her downfall on the evening of one Labor day holiday in the mountains—presumably the Catskills or the Poconos. When her child is born, the father does not choose to claim it, but instead marries a young woman, whom he subsequently treats so badly that she leaves him, thus permitting him to cure the blindness of the young mother [since he is a doctor] and ultimately to square things by marrying her. In the young man's defense, it should be recorded that his mother talks him into the unsavory marriage against his own better judgment.

A great many songs are interspersed thruout this curious sequence of events. At one point Benjamin Landsman, an excellent cantor who has sometimes sung small rôles at the Chicago opera, contributes some effective wedding music, with the aid of a group of choir boys. In addition to the stated stars, Nathan and Rose Goldberg and Jacob and Betty Jacobs, especially competent acting is done by Rebecca Richman as the blind girl and Mildred Block as her sympathetic mother.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is difficult enough to select a "killing" opening lead without having one's partner spoil the effect by inept coöperation. In today's hand, West found the one card that could defeat a vulnerable game contract, but his inspiration came to nothing because of his partner's shortsightedness.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ 10 8 4 3
♥ 8 3
♦ A K 8

WEST
♠ Q 2
♥ K 10 2
♦ J 7 5 3 2
♣ 7 4 2

EAST

♥ 7 4
♦ Q 10 4

SOUTH
♠ K 6 5
♥ A Q J 9 6 5
♦ 9 6
♣ A K

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, with a rather bleak holding, decided that a so-called normal lead was not attractive and made the inspired opening of the spade queen.

The lead inevitably would have resulted in defeat of the contract if East had coöperated logically. Unfortunately, however, East jumped to the conclusion that the spade queen must be a singleton since he himself had the jack. Acting on that unwarranted assumption, East went up with the spade ace [thereby killing two of his side's honors in one fell swoop] and hopefully returned a low spade. Declarer, not being able to read the opening lead, made the natural play of the spade king, then crossed to dummy with a diamond and took a heart finesse. West won with the king, but, of course, was unable to put East back on lead for the desired spade continuation which would have established the heart ten via the overruff route. Declarer ended up by losing only two spades and one heart.

East's play was outrageous, from every angle. Even if his hope concerning the spade queen, that it was singleton, were substantiated, what good would it do to give West one ruff? If the spade queen were really singleton, then declarer would have four spades, three of them losers. What would he be able to do with those three losers? Surely he could not get rid them on any suit in dummy. Even if declarer had a singleton diamond he would be able to dispose of only one spade.

East should not have considered it important whether the spade queen was singleton or doubleton. The crucial point of reasoning was that he should not give up his spade ace at the first trick and thereby concede the severing of communications between himself and partner. Of one thing East could be sure: Declarer was marked with either three or four spades and, in either case, a hold-up of the ace could do no harm.

ILLINOIS' M'CARTHY WINS BIG 10 GOLF TITLE WITH 301

SCORES BY TWO STROKES OVER SMITH, DALTAS

Michigan Posts 1,255 for Team Crown.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jim McCarthy.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 19.—James Patrick McCarthy, a broth of a 20 year old from the University of Illinois who won his letter as an end on the Orange and Blue eleven last fall, today earned his first letter in golf by taking the 23d annual individual championship of the Western conference with a 72 hole score of 301. While James was earning his fairway monogram, the University of Michigan, playing over its home course, was marking the 23d birthday of its captain, John Leidy, with the capture of the team crown, off a 72 hole foursome total of 1,255 strokes.

He Has Golf Background.

This McCarthy was no football player who had a golf quiver thrust upon him, and was ordered to swing same. Jim knows the Michigan course, back to the 1939 Western junior meet, when he carried Chase Fannon, then the Big Ten champion from Northwestern, to the 19th green of the quarter-finals. Chicago remembers him off the 73 he shot to win the medal in the 1940 Western at Mill road farm. Last year James Patrick aimed to win a letter at golf as well as football, but a broken hand incurred in spring football drill stymied him.

This year his coach, Winsor [Wins] Brown, whose Illini teams had won the last two team championships, and now have gone off with the last pair of individual crowns, hankered to use Master McCarthy very much. Came spring football again. Jim did his stint in that, and then came down with a bad tooth which stretched him out in a hospital bed for six days.

Takes Early Lead.

He started out yesterday by grabbing the first round lead with a 73, one over par. He slipped a shot back of Ben Smith, Michigan's brilliant junior, after yesterday's afternoon round. This morning, playing with Smith and Spero Daltas, the Minnesota left hander who tied him at the halfway with a 147, Red shot the best effort of the round, a four-over-par 76 that gave him a 54 hole total of 223, one better than Smith.

This afternoon, playing with his closest rivals again, McCarthy turned in a 78 for the 301 that was handsome enough to beat out both Smith and Daltas, who tied for second place with 303s. Red's winning score was the highest conference decision since Sid Richardson of Northwestern won with the same count in 1937.

Michigan's Sixth Title.

Aside from McCarthy, the hero of the day was little Daltas, a 22 year old Graeco-American from St. Paul. Spero went Sam Snead one better on the first hole of the morning round by taking a nine. Most young men would have departed the premises at this point, but the future Gopher architect hung on, took an 82 that left him six shots back of McCarthy, and five behind Smith. Then he dashed over the afternoon side in a pair of 37's for the best score of the day; the 74 that enabled him to tie Smith, whose putting was so sour that he blew a half dozen six footers in the morning for a 78, and missed his share of them in the matinée for a 79.

Michigan's winning foursome was composed of Smith, 303; Capt. Leidy, 307; Chandler Simons, the senior editor of the university's humor publication, the Gargoyle, who didn't come

LITTLETOWN TO BEAR WATCHING, RACE FANS FIND

Scores Easily in Sprint at Lincoln Fields.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Charles Nuckols, who owns a thorobred farm down in Woodford county, Kentucky, was disappointed when the weather disagreed with one of the colts he shipped to Saratoga for the sales last summer. But he doesn't feel bad about it now.

When the youngster was unloaded in poor condition, he decided to send him back home instead of putting him under the auctioneer's hammer. He named the bay colt Littletown, turned him over to Bob McGarvey for training, and sent him to the races.

Joliet Stakes Candidate?

Yesterday, at Lincoln Fields, Littletown gave the local juveniles something to shoot at. Running over a track that was technically described as no better than good, he dashed five furlongs in 1:00 1-5, to win by three lengths over J. D. Weil's Water Tower. The pace was so fast that these two were 10 lengths ahead of the nearest pursuer, Rex-Avis.

By this performance Littletown qualified for strong consideration in the $5,000 Joliet Stakes, which will decide the juvenile championship of the Lincoln Fields meeting. This will be run on June 6.

Littletown is a son of Jamestown, which has produced many horses with great speed, the most recent conspicuous example having been Johnstown.

Runs Like Veteran.

Littletown had made two previous starts in his career, both of them last week at Sportsman's park. In his debut on Wednesday he was sixth in an allowance event and came back two days later to finish third. Yesterday he ran like a veteran.

The bettors sized up the race as a contest between Littletown and Water Tower. They made Water Tower the even money favorite and held Littletown at 2 to 1.

Herb Litzenberger sent Littletown into full command immediately after the start. Quickly the colt drew clear and set a good pace around the turn with Water Tower about two lengths back. In the stretch Water Tower made one brief bid but Littletown responded with a brilliant effort that decided the duel. He was drawing away easily at the finish while Water Tower was tiring.

The winner's payoff was $6.80, $3, and $2.60.

Miss Militant Wins 6th Straight.

Miss Militant, a speedy little filly owned by Paul Kelley, scored her sixth consecutive victory as she came up under a hard drive to take the lead in the closing stages of the six furlong Outer Drive purse. She beat the 4 to 5 shot Putitthere, by three-quarters of a length while the latter was lasting long enough to stand off Harkim by the margin of a nose.

In accumulating her succession of victories, Miss Militant has been moving up from the $1,250 claiming class. Yesterday she was running in $3,500 company. She was at 4 to 1 in the betting, paying $10, $3.40, and $2.20.

The fans bet First Prize down to 2 to 5 odds in the six furlong Monee purse. After following close to the early pace on the turn, the favorite took the lead when ready at the head of the stretch and came on to win by four lengths. The surprise of the race was Epola. This 3 year old colt, owned by Thomas Piatt and trained by Price Sallee, took second place at odds of 128 to 1. With a 2 to 5 shot winning, however, Epola's place and show payoff was cut to $45.40 and $13.60.

Improve Rail Service.

Two trains with superior equipment were put on the Lincoln Fields run yesterday, thereby relieving the congestion which had occurred on opening day. This will be continued daily, with additional accommodations on Saturdays. The first train leaves the Dearborn station as soon as it's loaded and the second goes at 1 p. m.

Undiminished Hope.

I saw a robin's nest blown off the tree.
The eggs were broken. Was it all in vain?
No, the same robins in the same old tree
Would strive to build a better nest again.

When tempests come to spoil our cherished dreams,
And all our plans laid waste upon the ground,
We should be up again with stronger beams,
To build a better castle on the mound.

While there is life, there's hope for us again,
And we develop under pressure, too,
The nest blown off the tree is not in vain,
As long as we shall strive to build anew.

Tho disappointed, undismayed and free,
I set my face against the wind and rain,
And like the robins in the same old tree
I strive to build a better home again.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 19.—The gay Dodgers stepped all over the dejected Cubs again this afternoon. Not even the presence of Bill Lee with his imposing 5 and 1 victory record had any noticeable effect on the National league champions. They dipped into big Bill's pitching stock for three runs in the first inning and later piled on some more to achieve their eighth straight triumph, four of them over the seventh place Chicago entry. The score was 6 to 1 and the titleholders remained seven games ahead of their closest pursuer.

More or less desperate over the headlong plunge of his players toward the league cellar, Manager James Wilson came up with a battle front entirely different from the many others previously devised.

Bill Nicholson, whose bat has been swinging beautifully but with little effect, was given a day's vacation and Phil Cavarretta was assigned to the clean-up post. Phil managed to hit a homer—his season's first—but on the whole the Cub attack against Curt Davis was just as it has been against others recently. The Chicagoans made six hits for an aggregate of 22 in the four bouncings suffered in Ebbets field.

Novikoff Fails Again.

The benching of Nicholson brought the illustrious but baffling Lou Novikoff back into the front line trenches. The mad Russian made only additions to his grievous batting performances. Lou was up four times and got the ball out of the infield only once. But even tho blanked, the distressed guy made some headway. In his third effort, the only time his pain wasn't intensified by the presence of men on the bases, he sent a long fly to Joe Medwick. So Novikoff now is able to say that in 29 times at bat he has hit three balls out of the infield. The other two were singles. Medwick, with a triple and homer, was the Dodgers' power man today.

Arky Vaughan, who has been swinging a wicked bat during the champions' winning streak, laid the foundation for the three run assault on Lee in the first inning. The ex-Pirate singled to right after Billy Herman had been thrown out. Pete Reiser singled to deep short, and Dolph Camilli drew a pass. Lou Stringer threw out Dixie Walker, Vaughan scoring on the play. Then Medwick hit the right field concrete for three bases, sending Reiser and Camilli home.

Lee Rights Himself.

Lee did pretty well after his unfortunate start. He set 'em down in order in the second and third. He was unruffled by singles from the bats of Walker and Mickey Owen with one out in the fourth. In the next two innings only one Dodger

DIETRICH, RUSSO CLASH IN FIRST OF 2-DAY SERIES

It's Chicagoans' Big Test Against East.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Our seven-in-a-row White Sox will play those New York Yanks this afternoon in the first game of a two match series. It will be Bill Dietrich versus Marius Russo in the pitching department. If the Sox win this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon [it should be easy] they will have made a sweep of invaders from the east, the same clubs which somehow whipped them nine out of 10 when the Sox were east in late April and early May. Tomorrow will be a special ladies' day.

The Sox until this season long have been considered a better team on the road than at home, an unusual state of affairs. This year the orthodox love of hearth and home has been apparent.

Here's the Record.

Take these easterners, for instance:

Sox vs. Washington—In Washington, Sox won 0, lost 3; Washington here, Sox won 3, lost 0.

Sox vs. Philadelphia—In Philadelphia, Sox won 1, lost 1; Philadelphia here, Sox won 2, lost 0.

Sox vs. Boston—In Boston, Sox won 0, lost 1; Boston here, Sox won 1, lost 0.

Sox vs. New York—In New York, Sox won 0, lost 4; New York here ??.

If the Sox can just make themselves look upon the Yanks with the same scornful indifference as the Browns have displayed, everything will be all right. The Browns, you know, ended a nine game losing streak with two victories over the Yanks and whanged 'em again in St. Louis the other day. Looks like the Sox ought to beat the Yanks once if the Browns can do it thrice.

Prove Tonic to Yanks.

When the Sox lost to the Yanks in New York 4-6, 1-3, 1-6, and 4-5 in 10 innings no one except the pitchers was functioning properly. Even the fielding, which has led the league all season, collapsed. The boys did the silliest things. New York had lost four out of five but our boys took 'em right out of their swoon. The Yanks have been playing fair, tho something short of inspired, ball since the Sox gave them shots in the arms by playing dead in those four games on May 3, 4, and 5.

Manager Dykes will be obliged to employ Infielder Bob Kennedy in the outfield again this afternoon, but if the young man performs as well there as he did in the Washington final the Sox will not suffer thru their economy policy anent outfield protection.

All Have Their Miseries.

The Sox haven't an outfielder who hasn't one kind of an ailment or another, but Myril Hoag and Wally Moses are able to carry on despite their ills. If anything happens to Kennedy it is probable one of the pitchers will be assigned to the outfield, tho Ted Lyons and John Rigney whom Dykes had planned to send to the outfield the last time the Sox were in Detroit, are not now available.

After the Yanks go away, Chicago fans will enjoy their first night game of the season—with Detroit Friday night.

OWEN PLAYS IN 18 GAMES; DODGERS WIN ALL OF 'EM

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 19 (AP).—Mickey Owen's luck last year wasn't all of the best, especially in the world series where the Brooklyn catcher dropped a third strike that enabled the New York Yanks to win the game.

This year, however, it has been different. He has been in the lineup 18 times and the Dodgers have won every game in which he caught.

CHIEF'S BOY, on the inside thruout and kept in hand for a half mile, wore down ALL STEELE under energetic riding, came away gradually in the final eighth, but ridden out, had little left. ALL STEELE, taken in hand after opening up a good margin in the first quarter, drifted out slightly when entering the stretch, continued gamely when challenged, but gave way badly the last fifty yards. MISMARK, a forward factor from the start, lost some ground and was held safe in the drive. ALROSE closed well. MY CREST began slowly and was unable to reach the leaders. HOME BURNING, taken back at the start, was in a tangle in the first quarter and had little chance. ALCHEMY quit.

GO HOME, hustled along in the early stages, took command in the first seventy yards, set all the pace while saving ground, finished strongly under urging but could not hold the winner. FIVE FIFTY, a forward factor from the beginning, made a strong bid for the lead after reaching the final quarter mile, held on with determination to the final sixteenth, then weakened.

LITTLETOWN rushed to the front at once, set all his own pace under urging and, having plenty left was drawing away at the finish. WATER TOWER, always in closest pursuit of the winner, closed gamely in the final furlong, but was no match for the winner. CHRISTOFORIDIS, COLAN PROMISE ACTION TONIGHT

Motisi and Teaney Also on Stadium Card.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Anton Christoforidis of Cleveland, one time world light heavyweight champion, and 20 year old Johnny Colan of New York, who never has been whipped in a Chicago bout, headline tonight's card in the stadium. They will meet at 9:30 o'clock in deference to a national radio program. The show will start an hour earlier.

Chris and Colan are billed for 10 rounds and while they presumably top the popular priced card, two other 10 rounders may prove equally entertaining. Tony Motisi of the Chicago CYO and Harry Teaney of Cleveland will continue their feud that was called a drew in the same arena last month at the end of 10 furious rounds. Booker Beckwith of Gary, who returns to the 175 pound class after disastrous defeats by two heavyweights, is matched for 10 rounds with Andy [Kid] Miller of Sioux City, Ia., who replaces Billy Nichy. Nichy suffered a broken nose while training for the bout in Buffalo, N. Y.

Beckwith Beaten by Pastor.

Beckwith was soundly trounced last fall by Bob Pastor and he was beaten again by Melio Bettina last month. Now that he is not asked to fight under a weight handicap he may regain the confidence necessary to become a contender for the light heavyweight title.

Colan and Christoforidis went thru brief loosening-up exercises yesterday in Trafton's gymnasium. Each had finished boxing Monday. Tonight's battle promises action since each man has proved he is willing to carry the attack. Colan has an advantage in youth, but Christoforidis has had more experience and possibly may have greater stamina. In seven fights in Chicago, Colan has had to go 10 rounds once. He failed to knock out Altus Allen recently in the Coliseum, but the 10 round distance didn't bother him.

Colan first came to the fore a year ago as a middleweight when he won from Ernie Vigh and Steve Mamakos. After he advanced to the next weight class he whipped Jimmy Webb.

Chris Has Been Successful.

Christoforidis has been unusually successful since his contract with Lew Burston was purchased by the veteran manager, Eddie Mead, who directed Henry Armstrong to pugilistic heights. In fact, Mead's presence in the corner will contribute to Chris' confidence. There never has been any question of his willingness to fight. Moreover, in his fight with Paul Mahoney two weeks ago as well as by the thoro licking he gave Jimmy Reeves in Cleveland last month, the Greek has shown ability that may bring him a surprising conquest tonight.

Chicago's hopes ride with Tony Motisi of the CYO who fought a draw with Teaney in the last Stadium show. Tony's brilliant record since his return to the ring, so many believe, may bring him to the top in the welterweight division. He is scheduled with the former welterweight champion, Fritzie Zivic, next month in Pittsburgh.

Supporting the three 10 round matches are a five round featherweight bout between Jackie Nichols, Gary, Ind., and Chick Sanchez of Duluth and a four rounder between Chicago welterweight Dennis O'Keefe, and Teddy Lewis of Duluth.

Wilson Beats North Park, 10-8, for Third Victory

Wilson scored its third victory in Junior College conference play yesterday, defeating North Park, 10 to 8.

McCarthy and Michigan Win in Big 10 Golf

out for golf until this year, with a 320, and left handed Dave Osler, who finished with 325. It was the Wolverines' sixth title since the tournament was begun in 1920 and brought them an all time tie with Illinois, which had won the last two championships. McCarthy's solo triumph saved the crown which Alex Welsh, now graduated, won for the Illini with 297 at Mill road farm last year.

Coach Brown had planned on sending only the seasoned John Holmstrom, captain of Illinois, to the national intercollegiate tourney opening at Notre Dame on June 22, but he decided to make his delegation a twosome. Yes, McCarthy will be the other man.

BEST 3 YEAR OLDS ENTERED FOR BIG CHICAGO RACES

The final eligibility lists for the Arlington Classic and the American Derby include nearly all of the contenders for the three year old championship. The roster was announced yesterday by Arlington Park and Washington Park officials after all payments except starting fees had been accounted for. Fifty-six are eligible for the Classic and 54 for the American Derby.

The lists include Shut Out, winner of the Kentucky Derby; Alsab, winner of the Preakness; Sun Again, Requested, Devil Diver, Apache, Bless Me, Valdina Orphan, With Regards, and many other speedy performers.

Both events carry $50,000 in added money. With preliminary fees, the Classic now stands at $75,000 and the American Derby at $74,150. With starting fees at $750, it seems likely that it will total in excess of $80,000.

USGA APPROVES BONDS

"Amateur golfers who compete in our All-American amateur golf tournament at Tam o' Shanter July 20 to 26 need not have the slightest fear of imperiling their standing by accepting war bonds as prizes," George S. May, president of the club, said last night.

May's statement was made in answer to a report that a number of amateurs who had expected to compete would withdraw.

"A few of the boys may drop out," Mr. May continued, "but the great majority will compete and we are assured of the finest field ever seen in an amateur tournament in Chicago. I have the assurance of the United States Golf association that war bonds are legitimate prizes for amateurs. The amateurs in the All-American will be competing for a $500 bond as first prize, with other awards for runner-up, semi-finalists, and low scorers in the qualifying rounds."

The All-American amateur will be run off from Monday thru Saturday of the week of July 20. The Tam o' Shanter Open, with prizes totaling $15,000, richest in American golfing history, will start on Thursday, July 24, on the same course, with both amateurs and professionals competing.

Winning with Wood

Try a Brassie or Lofted Driver Off the Tee—Craig Did and Gained Accuracy

[This is the fourth of a series of articles on golf by Craig Wood of the Winged Foot club of Mamaroneck, N. Y., who last year, at the age of 40, won the Masters' and National Open championships.]

BY CRAIG WOOD.

The winter tour was still a golfing college in my mind, and I continued to make the circuit each year, but could not achieve any consistency when it came to getting into the money. I had been studying my own game meticulously in the hope of grooving it for tournament play, and in 1932 finally decided to use a brassie off of the tee, in an effort to gain position.

How well this change worked is evidenced by the fact that I won three straight tournaments in the 1932-'33 tour. In the San Francisco match play open, I defeated Leo Diegel in the semi-finals and then went on to win the championship from Al Espinosa. The Pasadena Open, in which I had scored my first winter triumph in 1929, followed, and I took that with a 279, the lowest winning score ever posted in the event. I took the Los Angeles Open at Wilshire with a 281, and was on my way to four in a row at Agua Caliente, where I was tied for the lead going into the last round. The task of keeping a winning pace thru four straight tournaments was too much, however, and I finished third back of Paul Runyan and Horton Smith.

That use of the brassie I can still recommend to average players who find trouble in placing their shots off of the tee. Position for second shots became my goal, and I even used long irons on my drives on tight holes. I suggest a brassie or a lofted driver, not the straight faced variety of the latter club, for the duffer who is having difficulty in controling his drives.

Loses First Big Playoff to Shute in British Open.

As a result of my showing that year, in which I ultimately led all money winners with more than $6,000, I was offered the job of pro at the Hollywood club in Deal, N. J., where I was to spend five years. I worked particularly hard on my preparations for the 1933 National Open in Chicago, and was in first of the leaders with a 290, a score that looked mighty good until Johnny Goodman, steadied by Mac Smith on the final 18, and Ralph Guldahl, then an unknown, beat it.

I was selected on the American Ryder cup team in 1933. We lost the cup by a margin of 6½ to 5½, the decisive match being a 1 up victory scored by Syd Easterbrook of the British team over a young American named Denny Shute in the series at Southport, England. Shute took a 6 on the last hole against a 5 for Easterbrook. It is significant that this disappointment was not enough to stop Denny from coming back and winning the British Open at St. Andrews a short time later in a playoff with one Craig Wood.

TEE TIPS.

Craig Wood, National Open titleholder and winner of the 1941 Masters' championship, points out that the wrist action among present day stars is not as exaggerated as it once was. There is less of the long overswing evident in their play. The club and the hands, Wood says, should start as one unit, with very little break at the top of the swing. At no time should the club dip below the horizontal. The hands in the normal swing should be about level with the eyes.

That was the first of the major playoffs I was to lose, but I can recall that I didn't mind losing that one to such a fine competitor as Shute. Furthermore, I considered myself good and lucky even to qualify. I didn't understand the conditions, such as the turf and the wind, and had to play the last 12 holes in two under fours in order to qualify by one stroke. That was in itself quite an achievement to me.

Wasn't Possible, but Denny Shot Fourth 73.

Walter Hagen led the first two rounds, played in gorgeous weather. The wind then changed with the result that it was traveling at an estimated 50 miles per hour. The competition afforded by this stout breeze caused me to bear down and I was around the morning 18 with a 34—34—68, only a shot out of the lead.

A 36 out on the final round included three putts on the ninth. I repeated that error on the 11th. I sank a 25 footer on the 14th, where I had been trapped. That was the same hole where Hell's Bunker cost Gene Sarazen an eight. I was guilty of a slice at the 15th, and wound up with a 6. I finally finished with 292, a shot in front of Leo Diegel, who three putted the last two greens.

Shute, who had 219 for 54 holes, was out in 35, but it didn't look possible for any one to get back in 38, considering that the 10th and 11th holes played smack into that terrific wind. Yet Denny did it, getting his fourth straight 73 to tie me. The wind died down almost completely for the next day's playoff, and Denny won easily, 149 to 154. I never felt badly about losing that one, for I was, as I said before, lucky to qualify, and Shute's consistency earned him the title.

Cubs Lose, 6-1; Dodgers' 8th Victory in Row

survived. This was Walker, who singled again.

But with two out in the seventh Lee gave a pass to his old buddy, Herman. Vaughan did the rest. He hit his seventh double in seven games off the right field barrier and Herman legged it for home with the champions' fourth run.

Soon thereafter, Cavarretta, who had fanned twice, lifted the Cubs out of the shutout class with his homer over the right field screen.

The first peep from a Cub bat was a double to right by Dom Dallessandro with two out in the third. Novikoff popped to Peewee Reese. Clyde McCullough opened the third with a single, but traveled only as far as second and that only because he stole the base. The mad Russian popped to Reese again to close the fourth after Cavarretta and Stringer had walked.

McCullough Again Hits.

McCullough's second single opened the fifth but his next three associates couldn't push the ball past the infield. McCullough got on again in the seventh by singling for the third time and he went as far as third because of a combined passed ball and wild throw by Mickey Owen.

Lee started the Dodgers' eighth by firing three strikes past Camilli. But trouble popped instantly. Walker doubled past Cavarretta for his third hit and sauntered home a moment later on Medwick's third homer of the year, which curved down into the left field seats.

RED SOX LOSE TO TIGERS ON HOMER BY RADCLIFF, 5-2

Detroit, Mich., May 19 (AP).—Behind the six hit pitching of Southpaw Hal Newhouser, who will be 21 years old tomorrow, the Detroit Tigers today defeated the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 2, for an edge in their three game series.

Newhouser held Boston hitless until Johnny Pesky beat out a bunt to open the seventh, but by that time the Tigers had blasted Rookie Yank Terry for five runs on six hits. The most important blow was Rip Radcliff's first 1942 hit, a three run homer in the first inning. Score:

INDIANS BEAT A's, 4 TO 1.

Cleveland, O., May 19 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians tossed a rookie battery, Pitcher Charles [Red] Embree and Catcher Jim Hegan, at the Philadelphia Athletics today, and won, 4 to 1.

As a result of their eighth victory in nine starts, the Indians moved a half game ahead of the idle New York Yankees, who still led, however, in the percentage column, .690 to .688.

Embree, the 22 year old right hander who compiled a record of 21 and 5 while hurling Wilkes-Barre [Pa.] to the Eastern league championship last season, yielded only four hits, walked five, and fanned six.

BABE DAHLGREN IS PROMOTED BY CUBS TO DODGERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 19. — Babe Dahlgren added mileage to his strange big league record today when in the space of a few hours he went from the St. Louis Browns, back to the Cubs, and thence to the first place Dodgers.

Larry MacPhail, the Dodger genius, after learning the Browns had canceled the deal made last Wednesday for the first baseman, phoned General Manager Jim Gallagher of the Cubs and the transfer was arranged. MacPhail declared he had been asked not to divulge the purchase price, but acknowledged that it was no different than stipulated in the player's sale to the Browns. The latter club agreed on $10,000, canceling the deal when the papers, as filed with Commissioner K. M. Landis, failed to cover the possibility of Dahlgren's enlistment in the armed forces.

MacPhail said that Dahlgren would be retained for pinch hitting duties and as an understudy for Dolph Camilli. Dahlgren is the ninth ex-Cub player on the Dodger roster.

The Cubs will set up shop tomorrow in the Polo Grounds for the first of a two game series with the Giants. Claude Passeau will start for the Cubs and Bob Carpenter for the New Yorkers.

Reviews CYO's Activity

The progress of the Catholic Youth organization in the last year and the part it is playing developing the city's youth mentally, spiritually, and physically in the national defense was told last night by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, its founder. He delivered the main address before 1,200 guests at the 11th annual CYO corned beef and cabbage dinner in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House.

Civic, religious, sports, and entertainment notables were present.

Ft. Custer Nine Defeats Western Michigan, 8 to 1

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 19 [Special].—Ralph Leonard of Fort Custer held Western Michigan to four hits until the ninth inning today as the Soldiers defeated the Broncos, 5 to 1.

ROOKIE ED HEAD STARTED CAREER AS LEFT HANDER

Accident at 15 Changed Dodgers' Star.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 19 (AP).—The leading pitcher of the National league right now is a rookie whom the Brooklyn Dodgers were not even certain could stick with the team when they came north last month.

This hurler, winner of five games without a defeat, is 22 year old Ed Head, who started out to be a left-hander and finally came to the majors as a righthander—because of an accident.

When he was 15 years old his left arm was crushed in a bus wreck while he was traveling with his high school baseball team. The youngster's vision of a diamond career also was shattered, but he learned to throw right handed and began playing at first base and in the outfield.

Has Tremendous Speed.

The lure of pitching brought him back to the mound and his dazzling fast ball brought him to the attention of major league scouts. But even tho he had tremendous speed, he had very little idea where the ball was going.

He won 19 and lost 8 for Abbeville in the Evangeline league in 1939 at the beginning of his climb. In 1940 he won 12 and lost 7 in approximately half a season for the Dodgers' Elmira farm in the Eastern league and in the middle of the summer Brooklyn called him in.

He spent all of last season at Montreal, winning 18 and losing 8 during the regular season and winning two more in the little world series.

But even when he went to camp this spring he still was what the Dodger coaches call a "pumper."

Coached by Fitzsimmons.

"I just stood out there and fogged the ball up to the plate," the good looking raven haired Louisiana boy said today. "I hadn't been able to develop much control at Montreal. I worked a lot there, but it was too cold for me. I walked more men for the Royals than I ever had before—92, I believe.

"But I got a great break this spring. Fred Fitzsimmons took me aside one day and gave me a little talk. He told me every time I threw the ball to have some definite idea where I was trying to get it—low inside, low outside, high outside, or wherever I wanted it.

"That's what I have been doing and almost all of a sudden I was able to put it in there."

In his last out, Head walked only four men and fanned seven and he is likely to keep on being a regular winner.

A. T. & T. Weakness Stems Early Try at Rally.

New York, May 19 (AP).—Price movements were about a standoff in today's stock market after an early attempt at a modest forward push had failed to draw in buyers. There were a few sharp rises and falls, but most changes were small.

American Telephone, which had retrieved more than 14 points recently after dipping to 7 year lows, began to sell off after the start and weakness here was reflected in several other so-called blue chips. The telephone stock apparently was influenced by fears directors might reduce the dividend at tomorrow's meeting. It finished with a net loss of 2½ points.

Du Pont Ends 4½ Lower.

Du Pont held up fairly well most of the day but slipped in the final hour and closed down 4½. United States Rubber preferred conceded 2½ and Chrysler, Dow Chemical, and Owens-Illinois a point or so each.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .2 of a point at 33.9. Volume picked up on the setback. Transfers of 376,780 shares compared with 216,260 yesterday and were the largest since April 29.

Among isolated strong performers, up 1⅜ to 2½ points, were American Air Lines, Eastern Air Lines and Pan American Airways. The revival here was attributed to the idea these issues had been oversold on announcement the army had taken over actual operation or control of all passenger lines. It was expected the transport systems would be given satisfactory federal compensation.

CHICAGO PRICES UNEVEN.

Prices were irregular at the close of limited trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Transactions involved 16,000 shares in 73 issues, of which 21 closed higher, 25 lower, and 27 unchanged. North American Car led the list in activity with 1,200 shares, and closed at 4⅛ with a ⅛ point advance. Chicago corporation, New York Central, and Eversharp, others among the more active stocks, were unchanged at the close and Middle West was down a minor fraction. Minor gains and losses were recorded in the half hour of trading after the New York close.

MORE DIVIDENDS PARED; A. T. & T. MEETING TODAY

Taxes and War Costs Squeeze Utilities.

Two more large public utility companies lowered their dividend payments yesterday, further reducing shareholders' returns from an industry whose revenues are being squeezed by mounting federal taxes and the cost of operating plants geared to the high pitch of war production.

The reductions, announced by the New England Telephone and Telegraph company and the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, served to intensify the already high interest in today's meeting of American Telephone and Telegraph company directors and arouse new speculation over continuance of the phone system's $9 annual dividend.

Directors of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, meeting in Boston, cut the dividend to $1.50 a share for the June quarter, 25 cents below the March payment. American Telephone owns 870,942 shares of the New England company's outstanding stock and next quarter will receive $13,064,130 in dividends from this source, a reduction of $217,736 from the last payment. On an annual basis the reduction amounts to $870,942.

Gifford Warning Recalled.

American Telephone's 634,151 shareholders already have been cautioned about the uncertainties of dividends. Walter S. Gifford, president, told the annual meeting on April 15 that because of increasing wartime taxes and other factors the system might not fully earn in 1942 the dividend of $9. Gifford said it would be unwise to predict in advance what the company's dividend policy would be.

Stock market fears for the safety of the $2.25 quarterly American Telephone dividend were reflected in yesterday's 2½ point fall in the stock.

The company dipped into surplus to pay $9 annual dividends in several of the last 20 years, particularly early depression years, but in 1942 earnings more than covered dividend disbursements. The system last year earned $186,974,735, equal to $10.01 a share. First quarter 1942 earnings also exceeded the dividend disbursement, equaling $2.66 a share, but were below last year's $2.74 a share.

John J. Robinson, president of the New England company, attributed the smaller payment to a desire to build up reserve against anticipated heavy tax bills.

Public Service Votes 20 Cents.

Directors of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, meeting in Newark, declared a June quarter dividend of 20 cents a share on common stock, 10 cents below the March payment, and 35 cents less than the dividend declared a year ago at this time. The dividend brings payments for the first half of 1942 to 50 cents a share. Payments for 1941 totaled $1.95.

Thomas M. McCarter, chairman of the company's board, explained:

"Gross earnings of the company have shown marked increases to date, but the federal tax proposals now under consideration would materially increase the company's taxes. Directors deemed it advisable in view of the uncertainties to pay 20 cents a share."

Heileman Omits Action.

Because of "the uncertainties confronting this and all other businesses," directors of the G. Heileman Brewing company, La Crosse, Wis., omitted payment of the May dividend, but promised to consider payments later in the year if conditions warrant. The company paid 25 cents a share on the common stock in March and distributed a total of $1.10 a share in 1941.

The announcement said the dividend was omitted notwithstanding the fact the company's sales were the largest on record during the first four months of the year, with profits above the level for the parallel 1941 period.

Yesterday's reductions in utility dividends served to center attention on the prospective action of Chicago's major utility, the Commonwealth Edison company, which, like the others, is subject to steeply increased taxes. After the Edison directors early in April declared the usual quarterly dividend of 45 cents for payment May 1, Charles Y. Freeman, chairman, announced the future dividend policy "will have to be reasonably related to the year's earnings."

Warns Rail Stockholders.

Stockholders of the Southern railway, who have been without dividends since 1930, were warned not to expect a resumption of payments "during this period of uncertainty," notwithstanding substantial improvement in the road's finances.

Ernest E. Norris, president, said at the annual meeting of Southern shareholders in Richmond, Va., that their best interests would be served by conserving funds to meet increasing taxes and bolster the company's capital structure.

The road hauled more freight in 1941 than in any preceding year, had net income of $19,369,894, the largest since depression years, and paid off a $14,955,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation loan, Norris said.

Celotex Stock Holdings Sold by Boulware

The sale of 4,000 common shares of the Celotex corporation, insulating and building material manufacturer with offices in Chicago, by Lemuel R. Boulware, vice president and general manager, was disclosed yesterday in the Securities and Exchange commission's summary of security transactions and holdings for March. According to the summary, Boulware held no common stock in the company at the end of the month.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad general mortgage convertible income bonds with a par value of $10,000 were sold by William A. Ragel, controler of the road, the report showed. Alfred Decker of Chicago, chairman of Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc., disposed of 1,255 of the company's common shares. Charles J. Faulkner Jr., a director of Armour & Co. of Illinois, sold 1,008 common shares of company stock.

L. R. Boulware (left), Cecil D. Southard, and Fred R. Tuerk report changes in security holdings.

Tuerk Buys Utah Stock.

Among the larger security purchases by Chicagoans listed were 2,500 shares of Utah Radio Products company common stock by Fred R. Tuerk, a director; 1,000 common shares of Butler Brothers by Cecil D. Southard, vice president, and 1,200 Chicago Mail Order company common shares by Roscoe L. Weiss, vice president. The summary also reported that in January Tuerk acquired 3,950 shares of Utah Radio stock.

Brach & Sons capital stock by Theodore Stempfel, vice president, to his wife; 1,600 shares of Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company common by James G. Kellogg, vice president; 1,200 shares of Bastian-Blessing company common by Charles E. Knight, vice president; 400 shares of Pure Oil company common by Henry M. Dawes, president, to his son, and 800 shares of Esquire, Inc., capital stock by David A. Smart, president and chairman.

Cunningham, secretary; 500 common shares of United Stockyards corporation by David F. Hunt, president, and 200 shares of William Wrigley Jr. company capital by Arthur Dole Jr., a director. Frank A. Hiter, vice president of the Stewart-Warner corporation, Chicago, purchased 700 capital shares of the company and Irving S. Florsheim, a director, bought 500 shares. Six hundred common shares of the John R. Thompson company were acquired by William M. Collins Jr. of Chicago, a director. Ralph G. Gardner of Quincy, Ill., vice president of the Gardner-Denver company, received 5,700 shares of the company's common stock from a trust.

STEEL WORKERS GIVE UP HIGHER HOLIDAY WAGES

Cleveland, O., May 19 (AP).—Organized steel workers today joined other labor groups that have agreed to sacrifice higher pay for Saturday, Sunday, and holiday work within a 40-hour week.

After scattered but heated opposition to the proposal, the CIO United Steel Workers of America—successor to the Steel Workers' Organization committee—accepted the recommendation made by the CIO executive board two months ago.

There was indication that employers would be asked to start the 40-hour work week on Monday, where possible, to reduce the amount of week-end work.

3 Bondholders Ask Ouster of Edgewater Beach Board

Suit was filed in Superior court on behalf of three bondholders yesterday seeking the removal of officers and directors of the Edgewater Beach Hotel company whom the suit accuses of "malfeasance and misfeasance" in connection with the extension of a company bond issue's maturity. Frances Blakely, William H. Melvin, and Marie Esslinger, who together own $22,000 of an original issue of $594,000 due in 1936, protested two extensions as illegal. They seek judgments for the amount of their holdings.

Federal Egg Drying Plant to Be Established in Cicero

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—Plans for the establishment of an egg-drying plant at Cicero, Ill., were disclosed today by Senator Lucas [D., Ill.]. He said the agriculture department had recommended such a plant as part of its program for processing foods for delivery abroad. A department letter to Lucas said the plant probably would be in operation within 10 days, with Armour & Co. as operator.

RFC ASKS RIGHT TO BUY OR SELL AT HUGE LOSSES

Hopes to Hold Price Level Steady.

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—Congress learned today that the Reconstruction Finance corporation expects to lose 320 million dollars by purchasing certain strategic materials and making them available for war production at prices designed to prevent inflation.

This estimate of the cost of assembling partly fabricated materials, scrap and certain metals necessary for the war program while at the same time preventing a price rise was given to the senate banking committee by Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce. The committee made public his testimony which was given in a closed session.

Asks Broader Powers.

Jones asked for legislation which would give the RFC broad powers to buy or sell commodities and make subsidy payments in order to hold down prices and maintain production in businesses where the war had caused an unusual rise in costs.

The committee approved the measure last week as part of a bill to increase RFC borrowing power by 5 billion dollars, but withheld a report to the senate pending a revision to exclude farm products from the commodities which the RFC might buy and sell. The provision would expressly authorize sales at a loss.

Altho Jones said he did not like use of the word "subsidy" in connection with the proposed payments to meet increased costs, he acknowledged that the effect was a subsidy.

Seeks to Keep Prices Steady.

Objective of the program, he told the committee, was to avoid inflation and keep prices down to ceiling levels, even tho special factors such as transportation, taxes or other considerations might rise too high to permit private business to realize a profit without selling above the ceilings.

"We are buying metals from time to time," he said, "and we could buy copper, let us say, at 17 cents a pound and sell it at 12 cents a pound. Now, instead of doing that we are paying the producer 5 cents a pound. That avoids a lot of duplicate bookkeeping and other work.

"We are having to ship coal to New England by rail instead of by water due to sinkings and lack of ships and barges. The price of coal must be increased to absorb the extra cost of freight unless some provision is made to cover these extraordinary costs, and that is just what would be taken care of.

Face Big Loss on Sugar.

"In buying scrap and partly fabricated metals and other things, particularly imported articles, we are purchasing them at a higher price than the selling price and will have to take a loss on them."

Jones said that the RFC would probably take a loss of 40 or 50 million dollars on the transportation of sugar because ceiling prices were made on the basis of normal sugar conditions, and that sales of molasses for alcohol at 50 cents a gallon would cost the agency 20 or 25 millions.

"It is the President's view," Jones told the committee, "that it would be a good deal better for us to lose a little money in the form of what is in effect a subsidy than raise the price of various articles to cover extraordinary costs.

"The President thinks we should try to keep this fixed price level as long as we can."

AAA's Agents Cool to Change in Farm Plans

The proposal of the department of agriculture to discontinue subsidies to farmers for curtailing production and substitute incentive bonuses for farmers to plant needed crops met some disfavor yesterday at a national meeting of state directors of the Agricultural Adjustment administration.

Representatives of the department attending the meeting with state and regional Agricultural Adjustment administration chairmen in the Morrison hotel said many of the farmer representatives were urging retention of much of the present soil conservation program.

Fred S. Wallace, chief of the AAA, had put the proposition up to the AAA chairmen Monday. He told them the department was considering whether it wouldn't be better to pay the farmer to plant the crops required in the war effort than to pay them not to plant crops of which there are surpluses.

Want Conservation Feature.

Department of agriculture officials said most of the AAA representatives were urging not only the retention of the conservation features of the program, but had asked that they be strengthened. This was particularly true of the department's policy of helping the farmer absorb the cost of terracing and of "doctoring" depleted soils. The officials said the AAA men believed the department should continue to discourage the use of land, labor, and equipment to plant crops not essential in the war program such as wheat, which is in vast supply.

The proposal to pay the farmers to plant such crops as soy beans, flaxseen, peanuts, and sugar beets, all vital in the war effort, probably will be presented by the AAA chairmen to the farmers in their states before the department takes further action, it was said.

Favor High Crop Loans.

Most of the farmers' representatives at the meeting seemed to favor retention of high federal crop loans on needed crops. They believed the present program of relaxing soil conservation allotments on nonessential crops and increasing them on vital commodities would be the best policy, the officials said.

Some of the AAA chairmen questioned how the government could continue to guarantee the farmer a parity income from his crops if the soil conservation payments were discontinued. Currently the farmer has federal crop loans of 85 per cent of parity available on his production and soil conservation payments and other crop allotments are granted to bring his total return up to a full parity price.

Parity is that price which will give the farmer a purchasing power in terms of nonagricultural commodities such as he had in past periods, usually 1909 to 1914, when the purchasing power of the farm dollar was the highest in history.

SEEK 'SPECIFIC SOLUTIONS' FOR TRADE BARRIERS

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones announced today that committees of federal officials and state governors will meet here tomorrow to seek "specific solutions" to state and local trade barriers "which hamper the war effort."

Jones said the meeting was suggested by President Roosevelt as an outgrowth of the recent conference of state officials to discuss the nature of these problems.

PLANE ENGINES MADE IN CHICAGO AREA TO POWER FORD BOMBERS

Aviation engines built in the Chicago region will power the big bombers being assembled in the world's largest bomber plant, just completed in the Detroit area.

The automobile industry disclosed yesterday that the powerful aviation engines coming off the mass production line at Buick's Melrose Park plant are to be installed in the bombers produced by mass production at Ford's Willow Run plant.

The war department authorized publication of an announcement of the collaboration by two of the most important auto makers as indicative of the spirit of coöperation in the industry.

Details on production at the two plants are not disclosed, but it has been announced that Buick's Chicago district plant is a year ahead of its production schedule, already shipping engines in trainload lots, and that the mammoth Ford plant is in production.

The Buick plant is producing high powered Pratt & Whitney type engines under license. Buick workers in the Flint district are supplying parts, but the main assembly is taking place here.

CUT MATERIALS FOR EXTENSION OF POWER LINES

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—The War Production board today prohibited open market purchasing, by electric utility firms, of materials needed in extending power service to housing projects. Henceforth, WPB announced, the utilities must draw on their excess stocks for such supplies, purchasing from other utility companies if necessary.

Further, WPB directed that no new housing project be started unless plans for extension of all utilities services—including gas and water as well as electricity—first have been approved by the government.

A power company also must obtain WPB approval for extensions of more than 250 feet, with such approval merely allowing the company to use its own materials or those bought from another utility.

Making further reductions in the quantities of critical materials for electric, gas, and water extensions to housing projects, WPB established new standards applying to houses on which construction began after April 22. For example, only 30 pounds of copper wire may be used for each dwelling unit instead of the 60 pounds previously allowed.

PATENT SEIZURE BILL FLAYED BY MANUFACTURERS

A bill pending before the senate committee on patents providing for federal seizure of patents was protested vigorously yesterday in a letter to Sen. Homer T. Bone [D., Wash.], chairman of the committee, from the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

The association opposed the measure with the following arguments:

1. Existing federal laws fully satisfy all government requirements.
2. The proposed legislation has no limitations as to time and, as drafted, might give the government the right to grant licenses and to seize patents long after the present war has ended.
3. The bill proposes to so remove incentive to inventors as to render the patent system of little value.

The association said it believed that enactment of legislation of this character would retard technological progress and would prevent many important inventions from ever coming to light.

The stability of the large compensation insurance carriers of America is seldom questioned. Service and saving to policyholders is the basis of comparison. Employers Mutual's substantial gain in premium income during 1941 shows the trend.

Air Lines Seek Ways to Offset Loss of Planes

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

The traffic and operations committees of the Air Transport association met in secret session here yesterday to rearrange passenger and air mail flight schedules that were disorganized by the army's recent commandeering of 70 air liners for war work. That seizure, plus the allocation of 80 other planes given the army in smaller groups during the last two years, has left the nation's commercial operators with about 150 planes.

V. I. Conroy.

The group meeting yesterday endeavored to utilize the remaining craft in such a way that the maximum amount of service would be obtained from each plane. V. I. Conroy, vice president of the traffic committee and a Transcontinental and Western Air official from Kansas City, said that the lines working together were setting up schedules that would allow passengers to make connections at junctions of east-west and north-south flights, and expedite mail distribution.

Will Fly Longer Hours.

One expedient the lines are now using is to fly each airplane for longer hours each day. Prior to the war a plane flown nine hours in any 24 was performing normal service. This is being stepped up thru new methods for servicing the planes and for changing motors after periods of service flying.

Thru arranging better connections, increased flying time for planes, etc., the conferences, it was learned, hope to provide for the general public and for defense workers almost the same air service that was available before the present emergency curtailment. At the same time the air lines are taking precautions to prevent infringement of their stringent safety regulations.

It is explained that with fewer ships available larger crews of mechanics will be available for every plane that is on the ground. There is no shortage of spare parts.

Decisions Await Approval.

Action taken yesterday will be secret until it has been approved by the Civil Aeronautics board in Washington and reviewed by the war department. The air lines are working closely with the army air corps because most of them are under contract to the Victory corporation or to the ferry command to operate cargo planes to far places and to various air depots.

The arrangements provide that they shall operate most of the planes most recently commandeered for war work as their own craft, but use them only for military cargoes. These contracts also provide that in cases of emergency all the existing air line planes—including those now used for passenger service—can be placed under army control.

Ready to Grant Union Rule to Aid War Effort

An official of the War Labor board said yesterday on the eve of the International Harvester plant elections that the WLB stands ready to grant unions the membership maintenance clause in labor contracts if that action is necessary to assure maximum war production. The statement was made by Thomas F. Neblett of Washington, D. C., principal mediation officer of the WLB and director of the Harvester elections, at a press conference in the Civic Opera building.

"It is pretty clear that the WLB is ready to do anything necessary to maintain production," Neblett said in reply to a question. "In three cases already decided the board felt that maintenance of membership clauses were necessary to assure maximum war output."

"Little Steel" Fights Clause.

Neblett's assertion was made at a time when the case of Inland Steel company, Chicago, and other "little steel" companies have pending before the WLB their battle against the union shop.

Under the membership maintenance clause the worker who belonged to the majority union in a plant would lose his job if he did not pay his dues to the union.

In the case of the elections to be held today, tomorrow, and Friday at eight plants of International Harvester company, the only question to be voted upon is whether a majority of the union members in each plant wishes to adopt the maintenance clause as a part of labor contracts recently entered into by the unions and the company. All other issues had been settled previously, and bargaining unions certified. The checkoff is not involved in the Harvester elections.

Could Require Dismissal.

If the clause is adopted, the union member will himself pay the dues to the union. However, the union could, in case of nonpayment, require the management to discharge an employé member who refused to pay the dues.

The ballot, which is secret, will be taken at the Chicago tractor works and the Milwaukee works today; at the McCormick works and the Farmall works tomorrow, and at the East Moline, West Pullman, Rock Falls, and Springfield works Friday. Results will be announced Sunday.

6 STORY BUILDING TO BE OCCUPIED BY SALLY STORES

Sally Chain Stores, Inc., yesterday leased the six story building, containing 70,000 square feet of floor space, at 310-14 West Washington street, for six years at an undisclosed rental. It will be used for executive offices, stockrooms, and warehousing facilities.

The building is owned by Van Schaak Building corporation. Arthur Rubloff & Co., represented both parties. The lessee, now at 233 South State street, will take possession about Aug. 1, according to Arthur S. Kahn, president of the Sally organization which operates 45 women's apparel shops thruout the country.

The building will be remodeled from plans by Sobel & Drielsma. Mutual Drug company, which occupies the building, will move to a west side location to be announced later.

THIS EXPLAINS THAT SHORTAGE OF 'FRESH' BILLS

Bankers explained yesterday, for the benefit of persons who like their folding money fresh and have had trouble getting it that way, that governmental economy has made new bills scarce. To ease the burden on the federal bureau of engraving, now working at top speed turning out war bonds and other government securities, currency is being kept in circulation longer than formerly, and relatively fewer new bills are being printed.

As a result, a smaller proportion of the 11 billion 861 million dollars of currency in circulation is made up of crisp new bills and a larger proportion is currency that, except for the war emergency, would be destroyed and replaced.

JOBS, PAY ROLLS MOUNT TO NEW ALL-TIME HIGHS

Many More Million Workers Required.

New York, May 19 (AP).—Increasing pay rolls, more hours of work, declining unemployment, and a mammoth backlog of war orders told the story of American industry today in surveys made by the National Industrial Conference board. Highlights included:

Total pay rolls were the largest in history in March in 25 representative manufacturing industries.

"Real" weekly earnings of workers—in effect, purchasing power—set a new record in those industries.

Total man hours worked in March were greater than ever before.

Unemployment dropped 850,000, pushing the total number of wage earners in the United States to 57,613,000 in March.

Conversion Problem Great.

"The conversion problem that lies ahead in the remaining months of this year is as great, if not greater, than the changes introduced in industry from Pearl Harbor to date," the survey declared.

Even after allowing for the increased cost of living, the board found earnings and pay rolls and hours worked all at record highs, on the average, in such industries as automobile, iron and steel, chemical, furniture, printing, and foundry.

"Real" wages were 7.7 per cent above March, 1941, and 39.1 per cent higher than the average for 1929. Man hours were 20 per cent above March, 1941, and 13.8 per cent above 1929.

Pay rolls were 38.8 per cent higher than in March, 1941, and 72 per cent larger than for 1929. Weekly dollar earnings at $38.14 in March were 19.9 per cent higher than in March, 1941, and 33.6 per cent higher than in 1929.

Weekly Earnings $23 to $55.

Weekly earnings ranged from an average of $55.95 in the automobile industry down to $48.80 in machines and machine tools, $41.28 in hardware and small parts, and $23.20 in hosiery and knit goods.

The board estimated that by the end of March completed war production amounted to 18 billion 700 million dollars, or less than 15 per cent of the existing orders.

"War commitments were further increased by 19 billion dollars in April, while the total amount of production completed in April as measured by payments on contracts was about 2 billion 500 million," the board reported. "At the April rate of production unfilled orders are equivalent to a 2½ year production load."

Even if monthly production rose to a rate of six billion dollars, unfilled orders would equal a year's work.

Million of Workers Needed.

By the end of the year, the survey said, the nation will have 17,500,000 worker-fighters and 4,200,000 armed fighters. War will have reduced civilian employment to 26,500,000 from 34,200,000 at the end of 1941.

In manufacturing, almost 70 per cent of the workers will be turning out war products. Half of all mine workers, about 90 per cent of all construction workers, and fully half of all transportation and public utilities workers will be producing directly or indirectly for war.

To reach that goal of 17,500,000 war producers, an additional 10,500,000 must be hired by war industries, 7,500,000 from civilian tasks, perhaps a million from the unemployed, and 2 million or more must be newly trained.

Australia to Offer New War Loan Late in June

CANBERRA, Australia, May 19 (AP).—A 35 million pound war loan will be issued by the Australian government at the end of next month, a government spokesman announced today. [The official exchange rate of the Australian pound is $3.228.]

QUARTER PROFIT OF MIDDLE WEST CORP. IS LARGER

Year Ago Figure Revised Under Tax Boost.

The Middle West corporation earned more in the first quarter of 1942 than a year ago, but only because retroactive provisions of the 1941 revenue act cut heavily into previously announced profits for the 1941 period. A statement issued yesterday showed the utility system's March quarter net income was $788,289, equal to 23 cents a share, compared with revised income of $701,532, or 21 cents a share, a year ago.

Purcell L. Smith, president, told shareholders in the report that the figure of $1,119,616, announced a year ago as first quarter 1941 profit, had been reduced by $418,084 to cover the increased federal taxes enacted after the original report was issued.

Operating Revenues Rise.

Operating revenues of the system, directed from offices in Chicago and Wilmington, Del., amounted to $19,376,827, or 9.9 per cent more than in the first three months of last year.

Freezing of refrigerator stocks by the government and expenses incurred in converting plant facilities for war production resulted in a net loss for Servel, Inc., Evansville, Ind., for the second quarter of its fiscal year, the company announced. Loss for the period, which ended April 30, was $99,886, in contrast with a profit of $646,057 in the corresponding period a year ago.

For the six months ended April 30 Servel's net profit was $94,709, equal to 5 cents a share, compared with a net income of $915,761, or 51 cents a share, a year earlier.

R. G. Le Tourneau, Inc., Peoria, Ill., manufacturer of earth moving machinery, reported earnings of $664,999, equal to $1.38 a share on common, for the four months ending April 30. Profit for the period last year was $1,032,590.

WHEAT FUTURES RALLY BUT RYE LOSES 1½ CENTS

The long decline which had carried wheat prices down more than 6 cents a bushel in a little more than a week came to an end yesterday. A sharp rally lifted the market more than 1½ cents at one time, but heavy liquidation of rye futures caused sympathetic reactions in other grains.

The bread grain futures closed ½ to ¾ cent higher on the Chicago Board of Trade, July contracts finishing at $1.21 a bushel. Corn was ¼ to ⅜ cent higher; oats, ⅛ cent higher to ½ cent lower; rye, 1⅛ to 1½ cents lower, and soy beans ⅛ to 1 cent higher.

Brokers reported a tendency developing among speculative interests to shift from a bearish view on wheat to a bullish outlook momentarily. Some felt the break had run its course and that the market might make up some of the ground between the present level and the loan rate on the 1942 crop.

Tomorrow is the last day for trading in May contracts and this accounted for much of the liquidation in rye, dealers said.

Grain men will meet with department of agriculture officials in the Palmer House this morning to discuss the grain storage situation.

LARGEST INSURANCE COMPANY.

Please report on Metropolitan Life Insurance company. In which type of securities have investments been increased to any large extent?—A. C.

Answer: The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, New York, is the largest insurance company in the world, both as to insurance written and assets. Admitted assets at the end of 1941 were $5,648,047,196, compared with $5,357,791,636 a year earlier.

The company was incorporated in New York in 1868 and mutualized in 1915. Types of insurance written are life insurance on individuals, standard and sub-standard, ordinary and industrial; group insurance; annuities, individual and group; personal accident and health insurance. The company engages in welfare work especially designed for the benefit of holders of industrial policies, group insurance certificates, and in general for ordinary policies issued for less than $1,000. A nursing service is maintained for such policy and certificate holders.

Insurance written in 1941 totaled $2,623,715,546, bringing insurance in force to $25,433,226,148 against $23,923,784,178 at the end of 1940. Insurance written in 1940 amounted to $2,071,380,948.

Investment in federal government obligations showed the largest increase in 1941 over the preceding year. The 1941 total was $1,319,913,987, against $1,147,603,321 in 1940.
